On July 20, 1963, Mr. and Mrs. Johnsey Arnold and Nancy attended Parents' Day at the Governor's School of North Carolina, being conducted on the campus of Old Salem College, Winston-Salem. Their oldest daughter Sue is a student of the choral department at the school.

The activities began at 9:15 a.m., when the proud parents of the 400 students were escorted to the several departmental classes of the school to look in on the students at work. At 11:30 a.m., all parents assembled in Memorial Hall for a welcome address by C. Douglas Carter, program director, and J. E. Miller, associate director of education with the State of North Carolina.

Immediately following the welcome everyone was invited to a picnic on the grounds under the very beautiful trees of the campus. They sat under the trees and enjoyed a nice visit with Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Brantley, Jr., and Robin, their daughter. Robin is a student of the drama department of the school.

At 1:45 p.m., they boarded buses and were transported to the Community Center of the City of Winston-Salem, a very lovely and air-conditioned theatre. Here they witnessed a performance by the drama department of the "Twelfth Night: or What You Will" by William Shakespeare. These students really did an outstanding performance as was evidenced by the seven or eight curtain calls and standing ovation they received.

At 8:15 p.m., a Choral and Symphony Concert was presented to a standing room only audience. This truly was a grand performance. The audience was spellbound. The encore for more went on and on. This group also received a standing ovation. Daughter Sue is a member of the contralto section of the choral group of which she has been chosen as one of the soloist.

This was really a big day for students and parents. The school will end on August 2, 1963.
