

British Government To Protest On Liquor Ruling

LOCAL MAN LOST IN SWAMP WAS FOUND TODAY

Co-Op Test Case Nearing End

DECISION EXPECTED TONIGHT

Arguments for Prosecution Heard This Morning at Nashville
RECESS TAKEN
H. G. Connor, Jr., of Wilson to Wind Up for Defense This Evening
ROCKY MOUNT, N. C., Oct. 13.—Arguments for the prosecution featured the morning session of the case of the Tobacco Co-operative Growers' Association against W. T. Jones, of Nash county, and Z. A. Harrell, of Edgecombe, being heard in Nash superior court before Judge Daniels this morning.
The address of the morning were by J. H. Pou, of Raleigh, W. T. Joyner and Judge Stephen C. Bragaw, of Washington, the last named concluding the argument for the prosecution, after which recess was taken. It was understood that H. G. Connor, Jr., will conclude the argument for the defense this afternoon and the injunction will be passed along to Judge Daniels for a decision.

Cunard Line Is Now Seeking An Injunction

LONDON, Oct. 13.—Unless an injunction is granted the Cunard Line, the British government probably will protest formally through the foreign office against the ruling prohibiting liquors on foreign ships in American waters, it was stated officially today.
Officials here, however, expressed the opinion that an injunction would be granted in the American courts. It is understood that the government takes the attitude of remaining in the background and allowing the private lines to take the lead, but that it will intervene in the event of the failure of these efforts.

SERMON ON SALVATION WAS ENJOYED BY THOSE WHO WERE AT THE TENT THIS MORNING

Forceful Argument Presented by Evangelist Ham At Splendid Service Held at The Tabernacle
Although the congregation was not quite as large as it has been for the last two days, a goodly number were present to hear Mr. Ham's sermon on "Salvation" this morning. Those who attended felt well repaid for their attendance, for the sermon was a most interesting one throughout. During the early part of the service, members of the congregation who were sitting in the rear were somewhat startled to see the evangelist suddenly pause and begin to dance around and make motions with his arms, at the same time admonishing someone to "Get out of here." They were relieved to find out a moment later that it was only a dog that had strolled into the tent.
Service was held this afternoon in the office of the Singer Sewing Machine company. Tomorrow afternoon at 4 o'clock the men are invited to be at The Stag, on Pollock street, where Mr. Ham will deliver another address.
The sermon this morning was, in part, as follows:
The subject was "Salvation," and the scripture lesson cited was I Cor. 1: 17-31, and the text was verse 30 of the above scripture, reading as follows: "But in him are ye in Christ Jesus who of God is made unto us wisdom and righteousness, and sanctification, and redemption." In discussing the text the evangelist made the following points:
Let us who are saved inquire this morning into some of the good things God has in reserve for us in addition to our salvation. In the verses of this chapter preceding the text Paul shows that the wisdom of this world tends to draw men away from God, and that this wisdom is brought to naught and made foolishness by the wisdom of God as it is revealed in Christ. That is, Christ is the embodiment of the wisdom of God, and by God is made unto us righteousness, sanctification and redemption.
Righteousness means being right and doing right. You must be right or you can't do right. You can't imitate Christ; you must have Him enthroned in the heart to rule your life. And note this: The Bible never speaks of the righteousness of Christ; but always of Christ as the righteousness of God. That is, Christ does not mere-

PASSENGERS ON HONOLULU NOW ON TRANSPORT

No One Lost Life Aboard The Ill-Fated Passenger Liner in The Pacific
TRANSPORT IS DUE IN FRISCO ON SATURDAY
Passengers and Crew Were Taken Off by Freighter and Then Put on Transport
SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 13.—The passengers of the City of Honolulu, which burned at sea, were transferred to the U. S. Transport, Thomas, from the rescue ship, West Farallon, at dawn today according to an official message received by the Federal Telegraph Company. The Thomas is due in San Francisco tomorrow but it is expected she will be at least a day late.
The message said the Honolulu was burned beyond repair and that it would be two days at least before any ship would be able to approach her on account of the intense heat. The message said that the transfer of the passengers had been effected without any particular incident.
Two messages sent by the Thomas here today to army transport headquarters were made public upon their receipt. The first said the Thomas was alongside the West Farallon at 3 a. m., and the second said that it had been decided to wait until dawn to transfer the passengers "as they are asleep." According to this last message, the West Farallon advised the Thomas that it did not have proper accommodations for the passengers and crew on the City of Honolulu. The second message gave the list from the City of Honolulu as 39 women; 35 men and 187 members of the crew.

FRANCE TO OPPOSE GERMAN MORATORIUM

(By Associated Press.)
PARIS, Oct. 13.—The French government has instructed Louis Barthou, its representative on the allied reparations commission, to oppose the latest proposition made by Sir John Bradbury, of England, that an immediate moratorium for a period of five years be granted Germany on all cash payments it was semi-focally announced this afternoon.
Tobacco Selling High
According to an announcement of Moyer, Gentry & Co., of Greenville, appearing elsewhere in today's paper, tobacco is selling at a high figure at their warehouse. They call attention to some high averages which were made on their sale yesterday.

SKULL CRUSHED BY TREE LIMB

Cumberland County Man, Who Suffered Fatal Accident at Florida, Taken Home.
FAYETTEVILLE, Oct. 13.—The body of Albert H. Slocumb, who was fatally injured in an accident at a lumber camp near Perry, Fla., Tuesday and who died last night in a hospital at Thomasville, Ga., will reach here tonight. Mr. Slocumb's death was caused by a limb of a fallen tree striking him and crushing his skull. He was a son of the late Paul R. Slocumb, a member of one of the most prominent families in this section of the state. His mother, Mrs. Candler McDaniel Slocumb, who survives him, is a native of Wilson, N. C.
Horror upon horror crowds Russia. Latest one is the railways have opened their restaurants again.

HARROWING EXPERIENCE WAS SUFFERED BY GEORGE GREEN IN SWAMPS OF NEUSE RIVER

CANDLER PROMISED TO CHANGE WILL

(By Associated Press.)
NEW ORLEANS, La., Oct. 13.—Mrs. Onizima de Bouchard, who arrived here today, declared that opposition to her marriage to Asa G. Candler, Sr., Atlanta capitalist, on the part of Candler's children, was due to the fact that Candler at the time they were engaged had planned to change his will so as to leave his entire estate to her.

MRS. R. P. HOLT HEAD OF U. D. C.

Rocky Mount Woman Elected President of State Division at Wilmington
WILMINGTON, N. C., Oct. 13.—Mrs. R. P. Holt, of Rocky Mount, will lead the activities of the North Carolina Division, U. D. C., for the coming year, having been elected as president at the convention here late yesterday after a warm contest between supporters of her and of Mrs. James M. Giddiger, Jr., of Asheville. The latter's supporters, however, paid her tribute afterwards by the presentation of a wreath by the Asheville chapter and a corsage by the Waynesville chapter.
Tribute to Robert E. Lee was paid at the night session by Dr. Henry Louis Smith, president of Washington and Lee University, who told how the great Confederate leader had refused many offers of high salaries to become head of what was then Washington college.

Spent Entire Night in The Open, Drenched to The Skin, Unable to Find His Way Back to His Automobile.

SEARCHING PARTY OUT ALL NIGHT

Men Scoured Woods in Vicinity Where Mr. Green Was Seen Last But Were Unable to Locate Him During Night.

Lost in the swamps of the Neuse river, twelve miles from New Bern, where he spent the entire night, shivering with the cold and with his feet and legs in water, George Green, well known local citizen for whom a dozen or more men had been scouring the woods for long and weary hours, managed to extricate himself from his uncomfortable and dangerous plight at the approach of daylight and is now safe at home again. His experience was a harrowing one and when he finally succeeded in getting out of the swamp he was in an almost exhausted condition.
Mr. Green is keeping to his home today, at the advice of physicians, and his friends are hoping that he will suffer no aftereffects from his exposure to the cold and water.
Was on Squirrel Hunt
Mr. Green left here early yesterday afternoon in his car to enjoy a little fishing and squirrel hunting. He was accompanied by a colored man who took him out in his boat. After spending some time fishing, Mr. Green suggested that they separate and see if they couldn't kill a few squirrels. He said he would meet the negro at his car in an hour or so.
Pushing his way through a swamp, Mr. Green walked for a mile or more without seeing any trace of squirrels. He decided finally that as it was beginning to grow dark, it would be advisable to return to the car and meet the negro. Turning around, he stepped out briskly but it wasn't long before he was wading through water. The tide had come up through the swamp and it made walking extremely difficult. However, he kept plowing along, hoping to be out of the marsh in a short time. Darkness came upon him and it was then that Mr. Green realized he was lost and that it would be dangerous for him to wade along any further.
Spent Night on Cypress Stump
"I found an old cypress stump," said Mr. Green today, "and I sat down on it, my legs being in water up to the knees. I had my gun, a box of shells, fishing tackle and several fish that I had caught earlier in the afternoon. I also had one cigar, and I was never more thankful for anything in my life. When I found out that I couldn't go any further, I fired the gun two or three times hoping that the negro would hear it, but he must have been too far away.
"The cold was beginning to make itself felt in my body and I swung my arms around in the effort to keep warm but it didn't help much. I had matches in my pocket but could find no place where to build a fire. At about eight o'clock I commended to grow hungry, but I had nothing to eat except the raw fish, and wasn't quite hungry enough to start in on them.

Boat Passed Close By
"I found out later that I was on a point of Green's Thoroughfare and about 150 yards from the Neuse river. At nine o'clock I heard a gas-boat come chugging down the river. I shouted for all I was worth and fired two or three times, but failed to attract her attention. It was impossible for me to get to the shore in time to do any, more signalling. As I heard the sound of her engine dying away in the distance, I went back to my cypress stump, prepared to spend the night there.
"And that's exactly what I had to do. Altogether, I fired my gun fifteen or sixteen times in the hope of attracting attention, but nothing resulted. Once I heard the baying of a dog and I found out later that it belonged to one of the party of searchers that were hunting for me. I fired a few more shots. However, the wind was coming from their direction, so I don't reckon that they could hear.
"The only visitor I had was a raccoon. He came along about one o'clock in the morning and I could see him distinctly about twenty feet away. I reached for my gun to take a shot at him, and dropped the gun into the water. The splash frightened the raccoon and it scrambled away.
"Never in my life have spent a longer night and never have I been more uncomfortable. Sleep, of course, was impossible, and all I could do was to sit there and kick at bits of rubbish as they were carried along by the tide.
"When daylight came I started out again. It was then that I discovered that I was over two miles from where I should have gone to get back to the car.
"It wasn't long before I ran up with some of the men who had been out hunting for me. I got into my automobile and drove back to town as possible.
The colored man who had been out with Mr. Green was the one who gave the alarm and started searching parties on the hunt for him. When the negro got back to the car and found that Mr. Green had not reached there, he waited for an hour or more and then realized that there was something wrong. The news of incident spread rapidly and it wasn't long before a number of men had started searching for him.
News of Mr. Green's disappearance reached New Bern last night and his many friends were extremely anxious over his safety. It was at first feared that he had been drowned or had been taken suddenly ill. When morning came and no further word had been heard of him, this anxiety was greatly augmented. At about 8:30, however, it was learned that he was safe.

Unique Organization Exists In Saint Mary's School Today

RALEIGH, Oct. 13.—A unique organization, whose members are restricted to daughters, granddaughters and great granddaughters of girls who once attended the institution, exists at Saint Mary's school in this city.
One of the oldest institutions for girls in the south and the largest Episcopal Church school in the United States, Saint Mary's is renowned for its proud traditions and atmosphere of the "Old South."
One of the traditions at Saint Mary's is that every girl who comes under its influence one day sends her daughter to the old school which so endeared itself to her.
So out of the succeeding generations of the same families who attend Saint Mary's has grown the "Granddaughters' Club" whose list of members reads like a roster of the oldest and most prominent families of the south.
The granddaughters love to "dress up" in the prim ruffled frocks of their great grandmothers or the calico dresses of their grandmothers and be photographed with "Miss Katie," a dear little old lady who has spent fifty-five years at Saint Mary's, first as a pupil, then as teacher, and finally as special supervisor.
The "great granddaughters" at Saint Mary's are descendants of the "original thirteen" girls who—clad in quaint little bonnets and queer little shawls—made the journey to Saint Mary's stage coach to enter the school in 1842 when it was opened by the Rev. Aldert Smedes.
Many of the old families of the South have had several representatives in the Saint Mary's granddaughters. (Continued on page three.)

"SHUFFLIN' PHIL' IN JAIL AT BIRMINGHAM

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Oct. 13.—"Shufflin' Phil" Douglas, erstwhile star pitcher of the New York Nationals who was banished recently from organized baseball by Commissioner Landis, was in the city jail today on charges of disorderly conduct preferred by his wife, who called officers to their home and declared Douglas had beaten her.
Arresting officers said they found Mrs. Douglas suffering with both eyes blackened and quoted her saying she had been abused in the presence of her two children. The domestic disturbance, Mrs. Douglas was declared to have stated was the climax to a series of outbreaks.

Terms of The Armistice Are Being Carried Out

CHANAK, Oct. 13.—A general retirement of the Turkish troops from the immediate vicinity of Chanak is in progress.
A Chanak dispatch Thursday announced an advance of the Turkish forces towards the British lines, against which the British commander protested as a violation of the armistice agreement. The Turkish commander, replying, declared he had not yet received notification of the armistice, but would give orders for retirement as soon as such notice came.

TOPSY SAFE ON TRAIN AGAIN

Stubborn Elephant Was at Last Induced to Go Aboard Box Car at Wilmington
(By Associated Press.)
WILMINGTON, Oct. 13.—After jumping her contract with a circus on Monday night and going on a rampage in Wilmington and environment for three days, Topsy the 4-ton elephant, is now safely aboard an 80-ton box car en route to Charleston, S. C., where she will rejoin the show and probably take her place in one of the rings.
Topsy was in a mighty nervous state yesterday after her lark about Wilmington and near-by swamps and absolutely refused to go into the berth which had so comfortably provided for her on the car. Her trainers petted and pleaded with her to board, but she declined. As Topsy had escaped twice while being loaded since she made her first get-away Monday night, her trainers did not believe it a good idea to take any chances and a hoisting engine was brought into play last night. She wiggled and fussed a bit but she was hoisted into the car. Topsy's sleeper was attached to a freight train at 8 o'clock this morning and started on its journey to Charleston.
Topsy's visit to Wilmington will not be quickly forgotten here. She damaged property to the extent of several thousand dollars, it is claimed, and terrorized many persons who are not accustomed to walking around among elephants. Suits have been instituted against the circus to recover alleged damages.
Slobodskala, a new singer, does not sing like crying out loud.