Boy Scout Organization Plans Training Centre

NEW YORK, Nov. 17.—The National Council of the Boy Scouts of America, carrying out its program of expansion, has announced its purpose of opening four big national centers, probably one in the middle west, one in the far west and one in the south. This "headquarters in the field" will furnish an opportunity to concentrate experimental work as well as furnish an excellent training center, especially for courses in "How to Train Scoutmasters." It is not practical to bring the executive to the centers for training along these lines, it will be possible to move the head faculty to different parts of the country. The scout executive is the salaried official in a big city, or community, who makes scouting his business, and directs the volunteer leadership of the movement. For many years there have been available in different parts of the country, various training courses for scoutmasters. The scoutmaster is the volunteer leader who takes charge of a unit called a troop.

Mortimer I. Schiff, who has served as Vice-President of the National Council, has recently been appointed International Commissioner of the organization. He will devote his time to the international affairs of the Boy Scouts.

Since the beginning of scouting in this country over twelve years ago, a total of 4,777 eagle badges, the highest rank in scouting, have been issued. Of this number 1,477 have been allotted since the first of the present year.

It is considered remarkable that such a large proportion of these marks of distinction should have been given out in the past 10 months. In order to attain this much coveted eagle badge, the scout begins as a tenderfoot and climbs up the ladder one rung at a time until he becomes a second class, and then a first class scout. It is at this point that the boy begins to do his real climbing, which calls for training along special lines. After he is a first class scout, he may become a life scout, and then a star scout, and then comes the highest rank, which is Eagle. Eleven of the merit badges the scout must obtain to become an Eagle are specifically in the fields of first aid, life saving, personal health, public health, cooking, camping, civics, bird study, path finding, pioneering, and athletics or physical development.

From now until next February the scout organization will conduct a campaign for more members. It is hoped to increase the enrollment by 100,000 scouts, or twenty-five percent of the present membership.

U. N. C. LEAVES FOR CHARLOTTE

Carolina Squad, Confident and Chipper, Go To Continue Victories

CHAPEL HILL, Nov. 17.—The Carolina football squad will leave here tonight for Charlotte to meet Davidson tomorrow.

Fetzer's men are in good condition. There were some hurts received in the V. M. I. game last Saturday, but they turned out not to be serious. The Fetzer and Dr. Roberts & Lawson, the team's physician and trainer, have been mighty careful not to run any unnecessary risks since the team came back from Richmond. They don't believe in working players too hard as the season nears its close.

It is possible that Fred Morris will play out of the Davidson match, but this is not known for certain.

Merritt, the Chapel Hill battering ram who was put into the V. M. I. game to make the final line-backers for Carolina, toward the end of the 94 yard march for a touchdown in the last quarter, is almost certain to perform in Charlotte. Some of the close followers of the practice these last few days think he may go in at the very beginning.

An advertisement in a Richmond evening paper received here today has created considerable interest among those who have seen it in Graduate Manager Woolen's office. This advertisement of a bank takes the Carolina V. M. I. game for its text. It tells that V. M. I. scored on a fumble and came very near winning, but that Carolina, by steadiness and persistence won out. The moral is that you must be a steady and persistent saver if you want to win out financially—and the best place to deposit your savings is the Suck and Suck bank. The big feature of the advertisement is a photograph of the Carolina and V. M. I. teams in action.

The most probable line-up in the Davidson game is:

VOLLEY BALLERS STARTING TODAY

Fast Team To Be Organized And Daily Practices Held At The Y. M. C. A.

The Men's Volley Ball Class will start up in big numbers this afternoon at 5 o'clock. All business men are cordially invited and urged to attend these exercises each afternoon. They will be so beneficial and a match team will be organized to play Washington at an early date.

The boys from over Pamlico river way are rearing to go and now that Carl Goerch is back from his boll weevil expedition in Texas, and John Tolson has got his business lined up, and Batson has placed all the sewing machines needed for this year, and Rouse is not worrying about anything and Henry, Jowdy and the rest are restless for something to do, so look out from this afternoon on, there will be something doing.

MUSTAPHA KEMAL SENDS NOTE CONGRATULATING RUSSIANS

Angora, Nov. 17.—Mustapha Kemal Pasha, Nationalist leader, has telegraphed the Moscow government his felicitations upon the fifth anniversary of the Soviet revolution in Russia.

"The soviet revolution," says the message, "overturned the old regime and inaugurated a new era, one of the principal features of which has been the establishment of a Russo-Turkish friendship which I am convinced will grow stronger and stronger."

Thieves who robbed a Newark church didn't know much about what they were getting into.

Center—Blount.
Right guard—Poindexter.
Right tackle—McIver.
Right end—Cochran.
Quarter—McDonald.
Left half—F. Morris or Merritt.
Right half—Johnston.

FIGHT ON THE DRAFT BY MINOR LOOPS BRINGS TROUBLE

NEW YORK, Nov. 17.—A proposal that the American League boycott the minor leagues which have held out against the draft will be made by Ban Johnson, at the December meeting of the junior circuit in New York, according to reports here today. This, it is said, is the bomb which Mr. Johnson said recently he intended to toss into the meeting.

The draft question has been agitating baseball for the last two years. When Commissioner Landis was inducted into office five of the minor league clubs obtained exemption from the provisions of the draft program. Last year a proposal that the minor league clubs be boycotted failed.

Now it is proposed, according to reports, to place the proposition before the American League. The five minor leagues that are not bound by the draft agreement are: The American Association, International League, Pacific Coast League, Southern Association, and Western League.

Johnson has promised to drop a bomb-shell into the major league meeting. This, it seems, is to take the form of a demand that the American League either force the large five minor organizations to swallow the draft, in toto, or suffer a boycott.

Such action would break the major-minor agreement, by the terms of which the American Association, Pacific Coast League, International League, Southern Association and the Western League were declared immune from the draft and automatically would line up Johnson and Landis on opposite sides of the fence.

To be consistent, the National League would, of necessity, line up with the commissioner, since it went on record as late as last year as opposing a similar play, introduced by Charley Ebbets. And there you have the ingredients of another diverting little family brawl.

Some go as far as to intimate that an inter-league war is brewing. That we believe, is stretching the poise to an elastic limit.

Johnson still is a power in the American League and if a showdown came, no doubt would have the St. Louis, Cleveland, Philadelphia, Washington and Detroit clubs with him, but show-downs are often unpleasant and expensive. Ban Johnson might wish to make a further test of his authority and control at this time but with three clubs in his own organization ready to take issue with him at the drop of the hat he must realize that he cannot hope to gain a decision over a rival league, standing in a body behind baseball's supreme head.

The weak spot in Johnson's armor is the adverse attitude of the New York, Chicago and Boston clubs toward him. It was this trio that forced his abdication in favor of Landis some three years ago in the famous Mays controversy, and although relations are harmonious on the surface and Til Huston may link arms with the deposed sovereign for the benefit of the general public, old wounds still smart and twinge.

Inside, they have been very reopened as a result of the recent attempt to waive the same Mays out of the major leagues. Mays is not through as a pitcher, but every American League club waived on him as the result of a tacit agreement to send the disturber to the American Association for a year as a disciplinary measure. The Cincinnati Reds, however, need pitchers and declined to become a party to the proceedings. Whereupon the Yankees hurriedly withdrew their request for waivers and fully expected to keep the entire business under cover. However, news of the attempted transaction became known somehow and the Yankees were not altogether pleased when they traced the leak to its alleged source, viz., and to wit: Mr. E. B. Johnson.

P. O. DEPARTMENT URGES PEOPLE TO MAIL EARLY

Washington, Nov. 17.—"Wrap well, mail early!" This now familiar Christmas slogan of the post office department has started across. Expecting an extra heavy Christmas business this season, department officials are warning postmasters to lay their plans early.

So well has the post office service been organized of late years that no new methods will be tried this year. Postmasters whose "patronage" is so large that greatly augmented working staffs are needed, have been directed to give preference in employment to men with families, and those long out of a job.

Christmas always costs Uncle Sam between four and five million dollars for extra clerks, carriers, transportation facilities and renting of extra quarters.

Some towns are so lucky. In Seattle a dog really bit a collector.

Former Kaiser could act nice and send his wife on their honeymoon.

American Speed In Boxing Dismays Foreign Fighters

BERLIN, Nov. 17.—Boxing has become so popular in Germany that the American system of matinee programs has been adopted. Some 10,000 "fans" crowded the Sports Palace at each of two recent bills, and it was stated the demand would have been even greater had it not been for the fact that the bouts were staged in the evening and many suburbanites were kept away by the difficulty of getting midnight trains home.

Americans here are interested in the outcome of a challenge which Hans Breitenstrater, Germany's heavyweight champion, had lodged with an American boxer, Samson, who provided the sensation of the evening in his Berlin debut recently. Samson is reputed to have been a sparring partner of Jack Dempsey, and to have made good showings against such fighters as Tom Gibbons and "Kid" Norfolk.

Samson surprised the spectators by showing a speed and an aggressive aggressiveness contrasting with the sluggish maneuvers of the native talent. Although twenty pounds lighter than Hugo Peduhn (175), a Bavarian of considerable ring experience in Germany, the American knocked his opponent down so often in the two opening rounds that the latter's seconds saved their fighter from the other rounds by throwing in the towel, and Breitenstrater, who was at the ring-side, immediately issued a challenge to the winner and it was accepted.

Americans who attended this program found highly amusing two other bouts on the bill. In one of these a baby, 150-pound boxer who has become somewhat of a local favorite, as German pugilistic standards go, put up a comic-opera opposition to a lighter man, engaging many enthusiasts who had been expecting a stiff battle. After stolidly looking about the ring for eight rounds with little or no guard to ward off a rain of punches which lacked knock-out effectiveness, the favorite finally walked over to his corner, giving up the fight. He was greeted with a bouquet of roses from an admirer.

A Dutch boxer, understood to have a fair reputation behind him, figured in the windup as a substitute for the Italian Spalla, who was prevented from appearing because of illness. After keeping the audience and a huge German opponent impatiently waiting ten minutes for him to enter the ring, the Hollander appeared, attended by an imposing retinue of assistants. This opponent landed several stiff blows early in the fight, and thereafter the visitor fled in panic from one him long enough to secure a knock-out in the next round. The rounds by throwing in the towel, and Breitenstrater, who was at the Yankees Will Drop Mays. Is The Latest Rumor

NEW YORK, Nov. 17.—Since the defeat of the Yankees by the Giants, rumors galore have been spread relative to changes that would be made in the club before the opening of next season. Some of these changes will no doubt materialize, others will prove to be mere piffle.

However, of all the rumors circulated, one thing seems certain, Carl Mays will not be with the Yankees next year. Ever since joining the club Mays has been a bone of contention that has kept the teams in a constant turmoil.

The purchase of Mays by the Yankees from Boston after President Johnson had suspended the pitcher, caused a wide split in the American League that has not yet been healed. The New York club in order to be able to play Mays went to the courts and had a permanent injunction, restraining President Johnson from interfering with him in any way.

Boston and Chicago side dia with New York in the fight on Johnson demanding that he be ousted. The other five clubs remained loyal. For a time it appeared as if the split might cause the formation of a third league.

Then came the unfortunate killing of Ray Chapman by a wildly pitched ball by Mays. At one time it looked as if the seven other clubs would go on strike unless Mays was removed from baseball.

Ruth and Mays have been at odds ever since they became members of the club, and as a result discipline has been hinted.

It is surmised that waivers have been asked on Mays and that all the American League clubs have passed him up. However, it is said that several National League clubs are willing to take him on. All of which makes it look as if Mays might drift out of the American League before the opening of next season.

TROUBLE BREWING

New York, Nov. 17.—Another of those political flare-ups for which major league baseball has become famous long since, is in prospect when the joint meeting of the American and National Leagues, is held here in December. This one, so we are informed, is to be an issue between Ban Johnson and Judge Landis, baseball autocrats, past and present, and while the draft ostensibly will be used as a basis of argument, it will be nothing else than a fight to swing the balance of power to the man who has become something of a baseball figurehead.

Boxer Agreement Ratified

Paris, Nov. 17.—The chamber of deputies today ratified an agreement applying the balance of the Boxer indemnity to refloating the Industrial bank of China, which suspended payments in June, 1921. The vote was 444 to 15.
