TEST QUESTIONS.

Ever since Thomas A. Edison created uch a stir with his list of test "questions" for college students seeking employment in his plant, there have been a number of other lists compiled, dealing with various questions.

We can't resist the temptation of following the crowd, so we have prepared our own list of questions. It is a list to determine whether or not you are well read. Read it over and check up on yourself, and when you have done so, read the socies of questions to some other member of your family and see whether or not they can equal or better your record in the number of questions answered cor-

PAYING THE PRICE.

If you want to purchase anything of merit,-you've got to pay the price for it. That statement is true, regardless to what you apply it.

A house that rents for $50 a month is a better house than one which you can lease for $20. A suit for which you pay $50 will give you better service than one that you can buy for $15. A piece of property worth $1000 is more valuable than another section that is worth only

And the same is true of men. If you have a vacancy in your business and you hire a man for $25 a week, you expect him to give a certain standard of service in exchange. If you pay $50 a week, you expect him to be of much higher calibre.

Especially is this true of men whom towns employ as secretaries of Chambers of Commerce.

There is a certain community in North Carolina-no need to mention nameswhich contains a progressive citizenship. The business men meet and decide to employ a Chamber of Commerce secretary. They heard of two men; one who asks for a salary of $125 a month and another who demanded $250. They hired the former. They fired him four months

Whereupon they employed another man, whom they also secured at a very nominal salary. He lasted only about the same length of time.

That town is doing itself an injustice, it is doing an injustice to the men it employs and it is doing an injustice to Chamber of Commerce wrok as a whole.

There are other towns that probably have gone through the same experience. They are learning their lesson, but it is proving an expensive and discouraging

If you want anything good-you've got to pay the price. You can't expect to get something for nothing.

Now that Thanksgiving has come and gone, there's a clear road ahead to Christmas. Get that shopping of yours done as early in the month as you can.

Give a Days Work to Orphans Thanksgiving day comes on Thursday of this week, and if we follow the suggestion of President Harding and Governor Morrison we will make it a day of thankgiving and appreciation of God's goodness and such a year of health and happiness as we may have enjoyed. Certainly we should not forget the spirit of the Pilgrim Fathers who gave to America the first Thanksgiving day. It has usually been associated in the minds, millions of us as a day of gluttony and feasting on turkey and then may be a football game. With others it has been the day of the biggest hunt of the fall season an dnone of these are to be criticised even to that of the housewife's having a special dinner that day, nevertheless we should not be unmindful of the benefits and privileges which have been ours in turn give thanks for them.

In North Carolina we have hit upon the happy idea of not alone making it a day of Thanksgiving but there is afforded an opportunity of a comforting self-sacrificing occasion in the appeal which has been made in behalf of all orphanages in our Statenamely that on Thanksgiving Day you might share with them the earnings of one day. The sum from any one individual is not large yet in the aggregate it amounts to much for the great cause of the comfort, health and support of the father and motherless ones who are being cared for by some church society or fraternity. Certainly if you might enjoy a real Thanksgiving season, one of greatest conscious satisfactions of a real observance you will embrace this opportunity and use one days pay in a furtherance of the happiness of those less fortunate than yourself. It doesn't matter as to the orphanage let that be the one of your choice .-Rocky Mount Telegram.

It must Not Fail

It is agreed that the organizations through which the funds are expended are doing a necessary and uplifting wrok. It is conceded that these causes should be supported by the people. There is no question of the business methods by which the funds are raised and administered. BECAUSE HE felt.

THAT HE could lose.

TEN OR fifteen pounds.

TO GOOD advantage.

HE COMES over here. EVERY ONCE in a while. FROM WASHINGTON. TO PAY us a visit. AND HE weighs. SOMEWHERE AROUND 200 lbs AND YESTERDAY afternoon. AFTER THANKSGIVING dinner ALL OF us felt. MORE OR less uncomfortable. AND THE conversation turned. . . . TO THE subject of dieting. AND OTHER methods. OF REDUCING weight. AND HE chimed in occasionally. TO GIVE us his views. AND AFTER a while, HE CLEARED his throat. AND FIRMLY announced. THAT HE intended. TO UNDERTAKE a system. OF THOROUGH dieting. AND HE wanted to know. WHAT tPARTICULAR things. HE WOULD have to eliminate. FROM HIS bill of fare. AND I told him. HE'D HAVE to cut out. ALL STARCHY foods. AND CREAM and sugar. IN HIS coffee. AND RICH pastry. AND THINGS like that. AND I proceeded to give him. A LOT of good advice.

AND GIVE it a trial.

AND LAST night. AS WE sat down to supper. THE SUBJECT came up again. AN DE declared. HE WAS going to begin. RIGHT THEN and there. AND HE refused to take. ANY CREAM or sugar. WHEN I passed them to him. AND STIRRED his coffee. UNTIL IT was cool. AND TOOK one sip. AND MADE a wry face. AND TOOK another one. AND MADE a wryer face. IF YOU know what I mean. AND PUT down his cup. AND SORT of frowned. AS THOUGH he were thinking. OF DELIBERATING on something AND THEN he asked me. TO REPASS the sugar and cream. AND I did. AND HE used them both. AND DRANK his coffee.

WITH EVIDENT enjoyment. AND THERE ended. THE FIRST lesson. IN DIETING. I THANK you.

ONE THING AFTER ANOTHER

THE DAY AFTER

Thanksgiving, along with the debate in the House on the ship subsidy bill, has passed into the discard. All that remains is the neck and promise of turkey hash for supper.

'Twas a grand and glorious day. Practically everyone in New Bern had plenty to eat, Carolina, beat Virginia, and there was nobody drowned while swimming in the Neuse river.

It is estimated that 450 turkeys were sold in New Bern for Thanksgiving. It is further estimated that of this number, only 7 were carved without spilling any dressing or gravey on the tablecloths.

Which establishes a record that Kinston will have to strive for many years without attaining it.

A careful checking up of the list also shows that 437 heads of families had some remark to make about the carving of knife being dull while they were engaged in operating upon the

And 450 husbands and fathers received private instructions before the meal regarding the manner in which the carving was to be done and helpings dished out.

But all that's past and gone.

Every rose has its thorn; every crap game has its losers, and every turkey has its hash,

Further delving into national tatistics shows that there are more family quarrels during the week immediately following Thanksgiving than during any other time of the

Turkey hash and turkey croquets have broken up more than one happy u home. Especially when the day after Thanksgiving comes on the first of the month and the bills begin pouring

However, there are still some good things in life left to look forward to. New Bern's victory over Sanford this afternoon, for instance.
