THURSDAY, AUG. 15, 1918.

Each succeeding week sees the labor situation in Nash county and throughout the state growing more acute and the problem is getting to be one that is giving the farmers, especially those of the cotton and tobacco belt grave concern, since the crops this year are more abundant than within many years past and the demand for labor is on the increase. With the rural districts being depleted of labor and the farmers having to depend largely upon such assistance as is available from the towns and villages, the farmers are looking forward to even more trying times when the schools shall have been thrown open and those children who are now actively engaged in helping harvest the tobacco crop are called to their school-room duties. The scarcity of labor now confronts the farmers with another problem; that of harvesting their fodder and other roughage for live stock, especially among that class of farmers who yet follow the old custom of "pulling fodder" and do not use more improved methods of saving the entire stalk together with the fodder, as is the custom in the West and is practiced by many farmers of the South. The actual conditions as they obtain in all the townships of Nash county are not known, but, since the time has arrived for securing a school census in all the districts of the county, it would be an easy matter for these school census takers to obtain from the farmers such information as will clearly set out the labor conditions and, should the Board of Education see that to delay the opening of the various schools for a few more weeks would be advantageous to the farmers, then the Board could take just such steps as will meet the conditions. It is highly important that the educational training of the children should in no way be hampered, yet it is also vital that every particle of this year's crops should be harvested, even if it does delay the opening of the schools for a few days. The trustees, or committeemen of all the schools and the Board of Education should acquaint themselves thoroughly on this matter and take such steps as will be necessary.

Indications point to unprecedented prices for all grades of bright tobacco during the coming season, and farmers are going to reap in goodly measure a reasonable reward for their labors during the past few months, which have indeed, been very trying and fraught with much speculation. As will be seen by reference to the advertising columns of The Graphic this week, the Rocky Mount market will open on the 20th, and the warehousemen of that city are looking forward to the largest sales in the history of the market. While the warehousemen, as a rule, are anxious to see their floors covered each day from the very opening day, they are advising the farmers to exercise caution in marketing their crop and avoid any unnecessary "glut," when conditions do not warrant such a policy. It would be well for the tobacco growers to carefully watch the columns of The Graphic during the next few weeks, as some of the leading warehousemen will use this and other methods for keeping the tobacco growers of Nash posted as to market conditions. The warehousemen who are this week making formal announcements of the opening of the market are:

There should be no let up in the purchase of War-Savings and Thrift Stamps. This is one of the many ways you can let your idle cash do its part in support of the men who are to-day battling for your rights and the freedom of the world from the blighting influences of the Hun. Don't plan now to squander your earnings in the unnecessary frivolities that for half century have been one of the greatest menaces to the South and this entire nation. There are yet dark days ahead of you and, with the war continuing for possibly one or two years longer, it is no easy matter to foretell to what extent the people of the South will have to husband every available resource at their command.

Two Streams To Be Kept Flowing.

There is a never-ending stream these days of khaki-clad boys following the lines of American railroads to the Atlantic coast, from where they sail for France. These young fighters who go willingly and cheerfully that the principles of our Government may never be lost, and that liberty and justice may live forever, are the glory of America. Their slogan is Justice and Equality for the entire world. Their purpose is to make the world safe for women and children, where men may live as brothers.

That this large stream of khaki-clad boys may go over and do the work to which they are called, and return to their own country strong and victorious, there should be another unending stream, this of gold and silver dollars, pouring into the United States Treasury. It should flow unceasing that these boys may have clothing, food, medicine and the best equipment; in fact, everything that is needed to help them to win.

North Carolina is constantly adding to the khaki-clad stream. Therefore, she should take care that her rivulet of dollars and cents should be adequate to supply the needs of her soldiers. For every son that she sends away from home she owes a debt of support and equipment. Furthermore, she owes to make him feel that she is willing to stand back of him in every need and to make any sacrifice to show her appreciation of his willingness to die for her if necessary. No State and no people can afford to do less than its very best at all times as long as it has representatives over there in the struggle. The War Savings cause is now the call to the State's pride and patriotism. Through the response made to this call the boys over there may know the hearts and the feelings of the people back home.

When You Have a Cold.

It is when you have a severe cold that you appreciate the good qualities of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. Mrs. Frank Crocker, Pana, Ill., writes: "Our five-year-old son Paul caught a severe cold last winter that settled on his lungs and he had terrible coughing spells. We were greatly worried about him as the medicine we gave him did not help him in the least. A neighbor spoke to me of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and I got a bottle of it. In ten days he had recovered from his cold and was again giving it to him."

Valuable Land For Sale.
