Mr. L. T. Hartsell Presented With a Gun.

During the session of the Democratic county convention Saturday, on motion of Mr. W. A. Foil, the regular order of business was suspended and Mr. L. T. Hartsell was requested to come forward. Prof. Chas. E. Boger on behalf of the Democrats of the county presented to Mr. Hartsell a handsome Remington gun as a token of their appreciation of the faithful and efficient services during the eight years he had guided the destinies of the Democratic party in Cabarrus as chairman of the executive committee.

The gift was a complete surprise to Mr. Hartsell and when he arose to thank the Democrats of the county for the gift, his eyes filled with tears and he was so overcome with a feeling of appreciation that his words were almost inaudible. Upon regaining control of his feeling Mr. Hartsell expressed his appreciation of the gift and stated that during the eight years he had been chairman he had never tried to advance the political cause of himself or his friends and that he had always left the matter of nominating candidates to the people and that his work as chairman was a labor of love for the purpose of advancing the interest of the Democratic party.

James Wilson, who built the Western North Carolina railroad through the Blue Ridge, which at the time was conceded to be the most wonderful piece of engineering in America, passed away at 8 o'clock at his home in Charlotte Saturday night at the age of 84. The greater part of his life was spent with this railroad and for many years he was inspector, rising from the position of civil engineer. He was a gallant Confederate soldier, entering the army when he left the university and surrendering as a major. Major Wilson was a son of the Rev. Dr. Alexander Wilson, an eminent Presbyterian minister.

That church people have as much right to yell when they are moved by religious enthusiasm as baseball enthusiasts have when the home team makes a hit was argued by Bishop A. Sellow, of Jamestown, N. Y., at the Tri-State Encampment of Free Methodists at Battle Creek, Mich., last week. Bishop Sellow criticized the local police for their efforts to check the noisy enthusiasm of the encampment.
