The city of Wilmington seems to think it is bigger and better than the State of North Carolina. It asks the Legislature to give it privileges of local option, which means that it cially able to carry out any obligation would have saloons. If such a law is good for Wilmington, it is good for the whole State. This question was settled by the people of the State two years ago by a majority of nearly

Oath That Binds the Burmess.

Perjury having been rife in Rangoon courts because no form of oath existed which the Burman considered binding, the government prescribed a formula which is a queer admixture of Buddhism, Brahmanism and Shamanism. Here are phrases from it, picked at random: "If an untruth passes my lips, may all the gnats that live in lakes, ponds and brooks and the gnats of the five great rivers of India destroy me. May curdled blood pass my lips rather than a lie, and may I die

It can no longer be said that trampe are useless. In Wilmington, Del., they are used as artists' models. The more unkempt they are the greater the

J. Boulen, a noted artist and student of Howard Pyla, utilized the second of a pair of hoboes whom he found in a cheep saloon as a model for a buccaath century pirates drinking at a table outside a Spanish inn, on a com-mission from the Democratic league of that city. The work will be Mr.

Soulen's greatest effort.

The first chosen was very much under the influence of liquor and was as dirty as he was drunk, but the artist saw in him a prototype of what he de-sired—a bibulous individual who was tattered and torn. Mr. Soulen took his weather beaten model to the studio occupied by Mr. Pyle until the latter's recent departure for Florence, Italy. There the artist held his nose and painted from the real thing. The tramp thought it would be the easies kind of a task to sit still at a table for a couple of hours, but he soon found his mistake. He said it was the hardest work he ever had do

LONDON LOSING ITS FOG.

Abatement of Smoke and Increa Warmth Said to Be Responsible.

Statistics covering twenty-seven years have been published in London to prove that the great municipality is slowly but surely emerging from the fog. Years ago London used to wal low in fog for weeks at a time. The statistician shows by figures that improvement in that respect has been steady for close upon thirty years.

The period of observation has been confined to three winter months and the entire twenty-seven years divided into nine year periods. During the winters in the first nine years, begining in 1883, there was an average of ore than twenty-nine foggy days and about fifty-five hours of bright sunshine. In the second nine year period the foggy days numbered twenty and the sunny hours seventy. The third nine year period, which ended with 1910, showed ten days of fog and ninety-three hours of sunshine.

British weather sharps account for the improvement in different ways One man says that the increased dryness of the city's atmosphere, due to the greater area of warm roofs and chimneys, dissipates the fog; another believes that the increase in the strength of the winds has much to do with blowing the fog away. Others say that the success attending the ef-fort to abate the smoke nuisance has resulted in driving the fog from the
