RABY DAY AT THE AIR DOME.

It is not too late to send a picture of your little baby sweetheart to the contest office. We still have time to reproduce the pictures both in the paper and on the curtain at the Air Dome. Baby Day at the Theatre is always a day of the greatest excitement.

Don't neglect to have the darling's face smilling at you from the curtain. If you haven's a good picture we will take one free of charge.

Double the usual amount of votes your own. Get to work and give sub contest manager up to nine o'clock Saturday night. Suppose you have written a subscription to the Tribune for three or four months, in place of the 1,000 votes you will receive 2,000, for six months you will get 6,000 and one year, just think of it, 18,000 votes, or a subscription to The Times for one year means 6,000. Just see where this will put your baby and what a start it will give the darling. Suppose you are behind, how long is it going to take you to overtake the leaders with 18,000 votes on every yearly subscription you turn in to the office. How often do you get a chance to win the amount of money we are offering? the amount of money we are offering? mean your neighbor; we mean you, and vicinity to keep their eye on Jack. PIG IN SEWER PIPE.

This is the Picture Gallery of The How it Got There a Mystery, and All Present Teachers Who Applied How Long It Had Been There Un-

we have all heard about the proverbial "sig in the poke," but when it comes to the pig in the sewer pipe it is another story. Yesterday afternoon Mr. Black, of the Central barber shop, was out in the back lot in the rear of his shop. While walking calmly along he was suddenly surprised to hear a noise resembling the grunt of a pig emanating from directly underneath his feet. He looked aswn but saw nothing but the cold ground. Recalling the days gone by when as a boy he chased pine rooters over the hills of lower Gabarrus, he was positive that he was too familiar with the grunt of a pig not to be deceived and he stopped and listened. Presently there was another grunt, followed by another and another, and then came a faint squeal. Then he knew it was a pig, but where he could not tell. Calling Mr. Luther Boger, the speed king of Cabarrus, who he knew could take his Interstate and catch anything on top of the earth, he put him on the trail after the vice under anything on lop of the earth, he put him on the trail after the pig under the earth. An examination of the surface of the earth revealed an outlet to the sewer. A plank was prized up and the sounds that emanated there-from were unmistakably from his pig-

A colored boy was put to work with a pole at one end of the pipe while Mr. Boger held a rope with a loop at the other end. When the pole and pig came in contact the latter made a dash for Mr. Boger's end of the line and was lassed in true cow boy style. How long the animal had been under the ground cannot be told, but from his action it could be seen that he had been away from civilization and poand was as vicious and belligerent as his wild and wooly forefathers. His pigship was given nourishment and food, which tended to allay his savage nature and from last reports was sleeping contentedly in a easy pen, but no matter what his career in hogdom may be he will always be known as the Jean Valjean of his tribe.
