Those Ten Thousand Extra Votes Will Look Like Standard Oil Dividends!

HOW MANY PINK SLIPS WILL YOU HAVE TO YOUR CREDIT SATURDAY NIGHT?

It is Already Apparent That This Week Will Be Even a Greater One Than Last When Double Votes Prevailed—The Offer is in Some Respects a Greater One—Ten Thousand Free Votes to The Tribune and Five Thousand to The Times in Addition to Those Regularly Issued for Every Yearly Subscription is Really a Splendid Inducement and Should Impel Everybody to the Most Vigorous Effort.

Saturday night is but a short distance away and those free votes mean a whole lot to your little one; 19,000 votes for every yearly subscription to The Tribune and 8,000 to The Times that is paid in advance one year. No contest ever conducted in Concord or vicinity has been marked by such liberal offers. The easiest obtainable subscription is one for a year. So many people pay by the week or by the month, why not pay a year in advance and do away with all the annoyance attendant on this mode of doing business and pay a year in advance and at the same time you will help some little one on her way? And will also save yourself 80 cents.

Everybody has an equal chance in this race, the field is open to all; it is a fair field and no favors. It will depend entirely upon how much interest you show in your darling whether you win or not. If you are already hustling for new subscribers, if you will continue to hustle right up to the last minute, you are very likely to be pleasantly surprised at the result of your labors.

There is plenty of room for plenty of good work in both of the contests. Carry our campaign with you where ever you go. Talk contest to everyone you meet and don't be deterred or discouraged by any of the stories afloat. Ninety-nine of those stories are not true, nor could they be true, if one just stopped to think it over in a cool, dispassionate manner. You cannot be defeated if you will give your little darling the best service. Don't let anyone who is only prompted by jealousy or envy turn you aside from your course. Do something on every day of the week, not merely one day but every day. Stick to the task with tenacity of purpose and a grim determination that will brook no defeat. Don't be beaten and above above all don't be discouraged. Would you admit even to yourself that some other baby stands higher in the public estimation than yours? Certainly not. It means a little work but it means a whole lot of satisfaction at the end of the race if we know we have done our very best.

Now is no time to stop. When the race is over lay down, not before. There is a time to work and a time to sleep and this happens to be the time to work and work as you never worked before. After the contest is over take all the sleep you need. That will be the time to sleep. Adopt for your motto, "I never sleep," and just see if anyone gets ahead of you, see if you don't come out on top of the heap.

To those who are in arrears on their subscriptions we would like to say that it should be a pleasure to pay the charming solicitors that we have in the field at present. There is something that anyone can do for a mother that will please her or compliment her so fully as to do something for her baby, and when you pay up those subscriptions you are doing that very thing. We love all the babies and we would like to see them all win, but as that is an impossibility, we would at least like to see them make as good a showing as possible.

Don't be at the bottom, of you can not get clear to the top, get as far as you can.

Encampment Dates.

Raleigh, May 15.—The encampments by regiments of the North Carolina National Guard at Camp Glenn, Morehead City, this summer will be held July 10 to August 10. This decision was reached in a conference in Raleigh Monday between Governor Kitchin and the advisory board of the North Carolina National Guard composed of Gen. B. S. Royster, Oxford; Gen. F. A. Mason, Henderson; Col. J. T. Gardner, First Infantry, Shelby; Col. H. C. Bragaw, Second Infantry, Washington; Col. J. N. Craig, Third Infantry, Reidsville.

The conference resulted in the selection of the following dates for the regiments to be in camp: First Infantry, July 10 to 17, inclusive; Second Infantry, July 20 to 27, inclusive; Third Regiment, August 3 to 10.

It was decided to take steps at once for the erection of two badly needed storehouses for the Camp Glenn. One will be for the quartermaster's supplies in the camp ground, and the other will be on the rifle range for ordinance supplies.

Another Group of Officers Designated for Duty on Border.

Raleigh, May 13.—Adjutant General Leinster designated today as another group of four guard officers for special training in the San Antonio, Texas, camp on the Mexican border, to report there May 27: Maj. R. L. Flanigan, First Infantry, Statesville; Capt. W. S. Privott, Second Infantry, Edenton; Capt. W. O. Burgin, Third Infantry, Thomasville, (mayor of the town); and Capt. E. D. Kuykendall, Third Coast Artillery, Greensboro.

The State Executive Committee of the Laymen's Missionary Movement met Friday at noon in Greensboro in the directors' room of the Commercial National Bank to formulate plans for holding county conventions throughout North Carolina. The purpose of the conventions is to awaken a more enthusiastic and effective interest in the advance of the Foreign Mission work and is an item of importance in the movement for a speedy evangelization of the world.

PRESIDENT MITCHELL DELIVERS FINE ADDRESS.

Program of Fine Literary Merit Being Enjoyed at Mt. Pleasant this Week.

Commencement was officially opened this morning at 10:30 o'clock by the Declamers' Contest in which six young men of the Collegiate Institute measured their ability in declamation for the high honor of winning a gold medal and the hearty congratulations of many friends. This they did in great style. Mr. Frank G. Davis, of Charlotte, began the contest with the familiar subject, "Lest We Forget," using it in a winning manner. He was followed by Mr. Frank R. Henderson, of Springwood, Va., in "Our United Country," which showed marked ability and training. No little forethought and training was also in evidence in the delivery of "American Ideals," by Mr. Fred R. Peck, of Mt. Pleasant. The subject chosen by Mr. Hedrick M. Penninger, of Concord, was "The Confederate Dead," which was met with hearty applause. Mr. Clyde O. Ritchie, of Concord, did himself credit in "Men and Memories of the Southland." Mr. C. Homer Ritchie, of Concord, measured fully up to the high standard of his classmates before him in his presentation of the "Supposed Speech of Patrick Henry." Altogether the contest was a distinct credit to the young men with but little previous experience in public speaking. That each fully deserved the high honor of being given first place was evident from the fact that the judges found themselves in a close quarter in making up their decision and the audience was on the verge of being dismissed when the result was announced. Mr. C. Homer Ritchie was the fortunate one to get the medal. The judges were Messrs. B. Barnhardt, of Mt. Pleasant, Martin Baringer, of Albemarle, and A. E. Crisp, of Walthalla, S. C.

Perhaps there is no better known speaker in educational circles than President S. C. Mitchell, LL. D., of the University of South Carolina, who delivered the annual address this afternoon. We find ourselves at a complete loss in attempting to say anything with respect to this magnificent address without marred its beauty. Electric, thrilling, full of so many big thoughts that it defies analysis. President Mitchell's address was built around, or rather it grew like a multitude of spontaneous thoughts about the central idea, "The Makers of Tomorrow." The speaker briefly reviewed the past in our country's history, assigning to each Southern State her period as leader among her sisters and placing that enviable position today in the safe keeping of North Carolina, because of the great educational awakening and campaign for schools that has been on for some time. He made the teacher the real maker of tomorrow and reeled many instances where an idea instilled by a teacher made the foundation of a government—the functions of the Supreme Court of the U. S. as one. He took a glimpse of the great task of the twentieth century in bringing about world peace, a subject with which the speaker was wonderfully at home. The theme of home making for a hundred years he handled with a master hand. He saw the boys of today the world statesmen of tomorrow. In order that tomorrow might be properly built, President Mitchell laid down a platform of progress, or the ten commandments of progress. They are:

1. Good Roads.
2. Improved Farming.
3. Public Health and Sanitation.
4. Drainage.
5. Better Schools.
6. Public Libraries.
7. More Rigid Enforcement and Observance of Law.
8. Cooperation of Community Life.
9. Greater Independence of Thought and Toleration of Opinion.
10. More Applied Christianity in the Church.

Each of these was enlarged upon and made to sparkle with large ideas, yet the speaker was far from visionary, but on the other hand he made his audience feel his own inspiration and deep earnestness. In presenting a work of the weight and character of the celebrated Grecian drama, "Ingomar," the local players tonight did what few amateurs would dare attempt. That they abundantly succeeded in their difficult task is fully attested by a crowded house. The play, full of thrills from rise to final curtain, brings into action all the elements of holding the mirror up to nature; situations in which the truly dramatic must be in evidence otherwise the lines fall, but in all these the players rose to the exacting demands, pleased the large house and won glory for themselves.

Too much credit for this classical production cannot be given Miss

Ethelyn Crabtree, who took the role of "Parthenia," and in addition to this most trying emotional character which she interpreted with great force and beauty, she had the entire production under her direction which requires wonderful ease and training. Mrs. D. D. Barrier as "Aetes," mother of "Parthenia," won new laurels in her long experience on the local stage by her superbly fine playing in the first act. In the leading character of "Ingomar," Prof. D. B. Welsh did some fine work in the third act, also the fourth, that went far toward making the play the big hit it was. Special mention we desire to make of Mr. C. H. Crane in his interpretation of "Polydor," the merchant, in which he not infrequently rose to heights beyond which amateurs seldom tread. At the risk of detracting from the fine work of others in the strong cast, we give Mr. Crane first distinction for classical work in a classical play. M. . . .

Other characters, while not having the opportunities of those mentioned, interpreted their various roles in a most pleasing and acceptable manner. Altogether the play was the most classic production ever presented on the local stage, and the company have the thanks of the entire commencement regime.

The great burden of the subject matter of the young men's declamations this morning made it a most fitting memorial day for the dead soldier boys of '61, both Confederate and Federal. The daring deeds of those days yet fire the minds and hearts of our young Americans and they will never tire of eulogizing what their fathers did then, nor will the people ever tire of hearing and cheering the old, old story. And the modern heroes, like Hobson and Fitzhugh Lee, came in for their share of the glory.

Though there was nothing doing yesterday of interest quite a number of visitors came to town. Among them we note: Misses Bessie Bang, Willie McGhee and Helen Wilkinson and Mr. Horace Blackwelder and J. B. McAllister, of Concord.

Commencement with Sunday sermon left out is like the celebrated play with the leading character left out. Many are expressing the hope that future commencements will have the baccalaureate on the Sabbath, according to former custom.

Among those who have come to enjoy the next few days here are Mrs. John M. Cook, of Concord, with her brother, Mr. L. S. Shirey; Misses Mary Harris, of China Grove, Olivette Cline, of Concord, Grace Ritchie, of St. John's, with Miss Mary Heilig; Miss Ethel Hammond, of Georgia, with Miss Ethel Corzine; Mrs. Annie Thompson and Miss Jenkins, of Salisbury, with Mrs. C. H. Thayer; Miss Maggie Boston, of China Grove, with Miss Ora Fisher; Mr. and Mrs. A. P. Crisp, of Walthalla, S. C., at Mont Arnoona Seminary.

Mrs. Annie Welsh Long, of Charlotte, is visiting her mother, Mrs. M. E. Welsh.

Mrs. M. C. Bowman left last week for an extended visit to relatives at Kershaw, S. C.

Prof. O. D. Ritchie, of Richfield, is spending commencement here.

Mr. F. S. Cline is looking after the chief marshaling like a veteran.

Good news comes from all along the line—the railroad is going to be built.

Mt. Pleasant is delighted with Dr. Mitchell. He made the acquaintance of more of our citizens than any other man has ever done in the same length of time. The many nice things he said about us, will not be forgotten.

If you are a pessimist don't come to Mt. Pleasant, we have no room for you just now.

Many are the kind remarks visitors are making upon our progress. Thanks, Mt. Pleasant is really and truly the young folks' mecca.

Reports from Synod assure the schools continuing as heretofore. Consolidation, co-education and the like will likely be forgotten when Synod meets again.

One gold medal fell today, two more come tomorrow, while Wednesday will witness the real shower when two more fall and all of them will be presented.

Mr. F. S. Cline, chief marshal, was forced to retire to his room this evening on account of a chill. It is hoped that his stay in his room will be short. Mt. Pleasant, N. C., May 13, 1911.

STANDARD OIL COMBINE ORDERED TO DISSOLVE.

Highest Tribunal Holds that Oil Corporation is Guilty of Conspiring to Restrain Trade—New Interpretation of Sherman Law.

Washington, May 15.—The Standard Oil Company of New Jersey and its nineteen subsidiary corporations were declared today by the Supreme Court of the United States to be a conspiracy and combination in restraint of trade. It also was held to be monopolizing interstate commerce in violation of the Sherman anti-trust law. The dissolution of the combination was ordered to take place within six months.

Thus ended the tremendous struggles of years, on the part of the government to put down by authority of law a combination which it claimed was a menace to the industrial and economic advancement of the entire country.

At the same time the court interpreted the Sherman anti-trust law so as to limit its application to acts of "undue" restraint of trade and not "every" restraint of trade. It was on this point that the only discordant note was heard in the court. Justice Harlan dissented, claiming that cases already decided by the court had determined once for all, that the word "undue" or "unreasonable" or similar words, were not in the statute. He declared that the reasoning of the court in arriving at its findings was in effect legislation which belonged in every instance to Congress and not to the courts.

Ever since the decree in this case in the lower court, the United States circuit court for the eastern district of Missouri, was announced, hope was expressed by the "business world" that the law would be modified so as not to interfere with what was designated as honest business.

Tonight that section of the opinion calling for the use of the "rule of reason" in applying the law is regarded in many quarters as an answer to the prayers of the "business world."

The opinion of the court was announced by Chief Justice White. In printed form it contained more than twenty thousand words. For nearly an hour the Chief Justice discussed the case from the bench, going over most of the points in the printed opinion, but not once referring to it in order to refresh his memory. Before him sat a distinguished audience of the most famous men of the country. Senators and Representatives left their respective chambers in the Capitol to listen to the epoch-making decision of the court. Most eager to hear were Attorney General Wickersham and Frank B. Kellogg, special counsel of the government, who had conducted the great fight against the Standard Oil. None of the brilliant array of counsel, corporations or individual defendants was present in court during the reading of the opinion. Rival brokers agents with messengers in line to the various telephone and telegraph instruments throughout the Capitol were on hand, but to their dismay the announcement of the decision was not begun until an hour after the closing of the stock markets.

Many expected that the decision of the court in the dissolution suit against the tobacco corporations would be handed down immediately after the decision in the Standard Oil case. This was not done, however, but the decision is expected on May 29, the last decision day of the court until next October.

The opinion of the court today was construed to mean that the tobacco case, like every other case in which restraints of trade are alleged, must be subjected to the new test of reasonableness of the restraint, as laid down in the Standard Oil decision.

A Delightful Bridge Party.
Mrs. R. K. Black was hostess to a delightful bridge party yesterday afternoon at her attractive home on North Spring street in honor of her guest, Mrs. Martin Dewtoe, of Birmingham, Ala. There were seven tables of bridge and Miss Marguerite Brown was awarded the prize, a pair of silk hose. At the close of the game a delicious salad course was served.
