VALUE OF FARM PRODUCTS.

There has been quite a bit of interesting comment upon the statement of the Department of Agriculture regarding the value of the products of the farms of the various States.

The value of wealth produced on farms of the United States was $3,226,000,000 during 1910, and estimated by the department of Agriculture in a statement just issued.

Texas with her ten millions of acres of cotton, wrested from Illinois during 1910 the honor of being the first State in the Union in point of value of her principal farm crops which aggregated $364,110,000, an increase of 14.9 per cent over 1909.

Georgia made a rapid stride in crop production for the year and jumped from 10th to 4th State with a total of $310,192,000, an increase of 26.5 per cent over 1909.

All the other Southern States made good increases except Louisiana and Kentucky. South Carolina made the largest, 26.4 per cent, of $140,009,000, jumping from 21st to 13th State.

New Jersey has enacted a law prohibiting the keeping of bees with contagious diseases. Those who recall boyhood days in semi-rural regions will reflect that the most contagious disease that they knew bees to carry is that which they always have with them at their business end.

A New York Judge has severely criticized Cornelius Vanderbilt because he crossed his legs in the court room. Mr. Vanderbilt should respectfully content himself with the twiddling of his thumbs or the twisting of his mustache.

A lawyer in Boston in an argument talked fifty-three and a half hours and used over six-thousand words. No wonder judges who have to listen to arguments complain that the pay is often poor for the work.

Col. Garibaldi Talks of Campaigns and Fighters

Soldier of Fortune Schooling Himself for a Definite Work. Mexican Government Forces Good Fighters, but in the Wrong.

ONE starlit night, just before the battle of Juarez, Colonel Giuseppe Garibaldi sat on a blanket in the Insurrecto camp near the Mexican border, and talked of fighting men and campaigns the world over, fingering all the while the polished cartridges that filled many loops in the double belt engraving him.

"After the Greek war I went home to Rome and proceeded with my studies for six months. I could not see that they were helping me toward what I had in mind and still have on my mind, so I abandoned them and went to Buenos Aires. First of all, I fancy, I wished to see the world, but I also wished to see what use all the things which I had learned in college were and find out if I could get on alone. I became a draftsman on the Buenos Aires and Belgrano Electric railway, then a civil engineer on the Nicaraguan railway. It was fine ground for me to visit, for my grandfather fought nine years in Uruguay—from 1838 to 1847. Presently I began to organize the young men of the Partido Colorado, the same party he had fought for. Before I left these young men gave me a dinner in Montevideo, at which they made me swear that if a revolution overtook the country I would answer the call."

"And did the call come?" "It may some day. It was from there I went to South Africa. At first my sympathies were with the Boers, but later, acting under direct orders from my father, I was made an official attaché with Kitchener. It was a great experience, and as I learned more about the situation I was glad I had been forced to change the side of my allegiance. Thus I served more than a year and was fortunate, for I saw eleven fierce engagements. The Boers were good fighters, but were wrong. They lost. The government soldiers here in Mexico are good fighters, but are wrong, and they must lose."

"It is merely one more manifestation of the worldwide movement toward real freedom. That republic which, like Mexico, becomes monarchial is a certain of its downfall as that monarchy which in the face of the modern democratic tendency does not go halfway to meet it. There have been and there are kingdoms which are so administered that to a large extent they meet the modern yearning after freedom. Here was the case of a republic which did not. Really, the Mexican republic has been a despotism and one in which the despot and his followers took full advantage of every opportunity their power gave them to preserve the system by whose favor they existed."

"Education means destruction to monarchial institutions; education means invariably the spread of republican ideas. The strongest possible indictment of the Diaz system in Mexico lies in its definite opposition to the education of the people."

"Has it been a really patriotic struggle?" his visitor inquired. "Are these men really patriots?" "It has been an absolutely patriotic struggle, and these men are true patriots," said Garibaldi. "A few of them and by no means those least admirable—for the government down here in Mexico has outlawed many a good citizen—are officially outlaws, but nearly all of them are farmers, tradesmen and the like, who, finding it impossible to live in peace and average security through earnest industry beneath the Diaz government, decided to join hands with the more radical who had begun the movement and enforce a change."

"There has been a tendency, I think, in some American minds to belittle the advance of the various South American nations. It is unjust. They have been folk of high ideals—these Latins to the southward of you—and they have, with their extraordinary revolutions, worked out many problems much in need of working out. This Mexican revolt is very worthy. You of the United States should be the first to recognize this."

"Again the talk drifted to Garibaldi himself, to the man who chooses to spend his time in armed camps or in the wilderness. "Like all men," he remarked, "I have an aim in life, and that aim involves a training, not to be found in schools. It can be found in part in working through real wildernesses after which is left of the big game, but such training for it is but a poor substitute for work upon the firing line in any just and worthy cause. No schools make soldiers as the field does. With difficulty I have managed to secure about twenty-four months of actual fighting life in which I have through great endeavor actually participated in thirty really big battles with almost every kind of army. It has been a fine experience—blu-ming-pan-pan."

"I was a wild boy in an Italian college, but I had already settled on my life-work, and as soon as the Greek war broke out left my studies of naval construction and engineering and became a member of the foreign legion. My father was an officer in the same

GUNNERY RECORDS BROKEN.

Fine Work With Heavy Coast Defense Guns on Corregidor Island. All previous records for gunnery work by heavy coast defense guns have been broken by two batteries at Fort Mills, Corregidor Island, the newest fortification to have target practice. One was the record for day firing and the other for night firing. The best night work, so far as records of the war department show, was made by the Thirteenth company, commanded by First Lieutenant W. Watts Ross. This company, firing with twelve inch guns, made four hits out of six shots in a few seconds less than the minimum time recorded for this number of shots. The target was at a distance of 7,500 yards.

A greater degree of accuracy was made by the Eleventh company on day firing with twelve inch guns. This company, commanded by Captain E. L. Bennett, made six hits out of six shots at 8,100 yards. The time was 3 minutes 48 seconds, a fraction more than one and a half hits per gun per minute. This makes a figure of merit of 283. For both practices the target was the regulation target, thirty feet high and sixty feet long and towed at eight knots an hour.

BONBONS LOSING FAVOR.

Confectioners Say Girls Demand Something More Substantial. The bonbon has passed out of favor, according to statements made by leading confectioners of the country. The young women have become more practical, so dealers say, and demand something in the line of confectionery which will take the place of a meal.

"Our greatest problem," said D. J. O'Brien of Omaha, secretary of the National Confectioners' association, "is trying to keep abreast of the rulings of the federal pure food authorities. They demand that each separate piece be weighed and labeled. They prescribe how many pieces can be placed in a carton and how much each piece shall weigh. According to their rulings at present, each piece of chewing gum or chocolate must be so weighed and so labeled."

Deafness Cannot be Cured by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by the Eustachian tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces. We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free. F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, O. Banks and Lost or Destroyed Bills. Bank bills are merely printed promissories of the bank or government issuing them, to pay the face value of the bill or note, on demand, in coin of the realm. If a bank bill, or bank note as it might well be called, should be destroyed, the holder of the destroyed bill is the loser, and the bank the gainer by reason of the fact that it would be relieved of the obligation to make good its promise to pay the face value of a note which no longer exists.
