JOHN M. COLEBY, City Editor

Concord, N. C., July 21, 1911.

The largest crowd that Concord has had in many days should be here on Friday, July 28, to see the Road Improvement Train sent out by the Southern Railway. This train will have lecture and demonstration coaches equipped with stereopticon, exhibits and working models, and is in charge of expert government road engineers, who are thoroughly qualified to give the most valuable information on good roads building. It is the object of the "Road Improvement Train" to not only stimulate interest in the good roads movement but to give practical instruction in the building of roads and their repair. President Finley of the Southern Railway is an ardent good roads advocate and realizing the vast economic importance of a system of improved highways to the people of the South, made it possible to have this "Good roads school on wheels" visit all the territory served by the Southern Railway and allied lines in order that he people might have the opportunity to receive the information as to the improvement of the roads which it affords. No matter of a material character is half so important at this time as the building of good roads.

Hickory is a live town, and has a live Chamber of Commerce. That organization is going after the location of manufacturing enterprises for the town in a business way. Nothing adds so much to the life of a city as manufacturing establishments, as all other lines of business follow these. Every town and city should have a commercial organization whose business it should be to connect local capital with competent and practical business men.

State Senator Lockhart credits Gov. Kitchin with boasting that it was his personality that secured the gubernatorial nomination for him. Judging from the way his friends are dropping away from him he will need some other qualification in his fight for the Senatorship.

The Albemarle Enterprise announces that in a few weeks it will install a standard Mergenthaler Linotype machine. Bro. Bivins is a live editor, and publishes his paper in a live town. We congratulate him on this evidence of prosperity, which he so well deserves.

The Square Deal.

Charlotte Chronicle.
The Chronicle is free to confess that it has been in favor of the retention of Senator Simmons in Washington for the influence for good he has been able to wield for the South in general and for North Carolina in particular. We have told him and we have told our readers, that we regret his vote on the reciprocity bill. He was dead wrong there, but we believe he was honest in his convictions. We are not championing his re-election, but we love to see fair play. The Wilmington Star gives expression to some sentiments entirely to our liking when it says: "Let North Carolina Democrats see that this loyal Democrat and useful representative of this State in the United States Senate gets a square deal. Let us see that ex-Governor Aycock, Governor Kitchin and Judge Clark also get a square deal." And that is just it. No matter the preference of a paper in the senatorial race, it should treat the other candidates decently and fairly. The Chronicle has said nothing bad of any of the four candidates. It has said what of good it could say of each of them. This is a time for newspapers of the State to weigh their words.

Seek to Improve Upper Mississippi. Alton, Ill., July 21.—The executive committee of the Upper Mississippi River Improvement Association met in Alton today to discuss plans for the next annual convention of the association, which is to be held here in October. The committee includes representatives of all the principal cities and towns between St. Louis and St. Paul.

THIS IS MY 51ST BIRTHDAY.

July 21.
Chauncey Olcott.
Chauncey Olcott, the well known actor, was born in Buffalo, N. Y., July 21, 1860. He was christened Chancellor John Olcott, but this name was discarded for "Chauncey" when the bearer adopted the stage as a profession. Though known to present-day playgoers as a dramatic star, Mr. Olcott in his early career enjoyed a wide reputation as a singer. After finishing his education in the schools of his native city he made his debut as a professional singer in 1880. For several years he remained under the management of the late Richard M. Hooley. Subsequently he appeared with several well known minstrel companies. His experience as a minstrel was followed by several consecutive seasons as a comic opera star. When he abandoned opera it was to appear as a star in Irish musical dramas. In this field he became the recognized successor of the late William J. Scanlan.

Cause for Thanks.

Greensboro News.
Rev. A. D. Betts, who is familiarly and lovingly known as "uncle Betts," has written this pointed reference to a cause that lies close to the heart of every right thinking man: The 2,600 orphans that have been cared for in the Oxford orphanage were born in hundreds of different homes. Take an average of two to the home. That would give us 1,300 mothers and 1,300 fathers praising God for the kindness shown to their children. John H. Mills, the man who started the first orphanage in our State, surely is meeting many who love him for his work's sake.

We now have about 1,700 children in the different orphan homes of North Carolina. God bless the men and women, officers and teachers, who are working for those children. There is no nobler work than caring for helpless orphans, and the prayer of Uncle Betts will be answered in large measure.

Western Corn Short.

Charlotte Observer.
"For the next eighteen months," a Kansas grain man is quoted as declaring, "little or no corn from this territory will move east of the Mississippi river, as the corn crop throughout the Southwest has suffered damage that is beyond repair." If this prediction is verified by the fact we believe the disaster to the farmers in the Southwest will spell an inevitable blessing to their brethren in this part of the country. If our farmers cannot import Western corn except at prices governed by a very short crop their attention will be necessarily directed to the possibilities of raising what they require upon their own farms. Commissioner of Agriculture E. J. Watson of South Carolina estimates that his State will produce very nearly enough corn for its own use this season, and if the Kansas grain man's view is correct it will come equally close to needing the whole supply.

"Guess My Time Has Come."

Philadelphia Public Ledger.
"Well, I guess my time has come," said Mrs. Lathia Williams, 108 years old, as she stood in the doorway of the home of her daughter, Mrs. Ellen Barnister, talking to a neighbor yesterday. With that remark she went inside, and lying down on a couch, passed quietly away. Mrs. Williams celebrated her one hundred and eighth anniversary on New Year's day.
