

THE BATTLE OF BALLOTS NOW A PART OF HISTORY

The Official Announcement of the Winners of Prizes With Figures Showing Complete Returns Over 33,000,000 Votes Cast—Biggest, Fairest, Best Contest That Central Carolina Has Ever Known—Losers Congratulate Winners—Hundreds of New Subscribers Were Added to Tribune and Times' List, Making the Papers One of the Best Advertising Mediums in the State.

OFFICIAL REPORT OF JUDGES.

Table listing winners and their prizes, including Prof. G. F. McAllister (One Hundred Dollars in Gold), Mr. Joe Sills (Suit of Furniture), and various district winners for items like Gasoline Ranges and Sewing Machines.

To the Candidates and Their Friends: After counting the votes of Saturday night and checking and re-checking the votes to insure absolute fairness of decision, the labors of the ballot clerks and judges are at last over, and the complete results are announced above.

A Main Feature. If there is one class of citizens more interested than another in the great contest that has just closed, it is the business men and general advertisers, who have watched with interest the daily increase in votes made by the contestants, and have drawn their own conclusions as to the great increase in circulation.

Fairness of the Contest. Disinterested parties everywhere, business men and the contestants themselves, are praising the Tribune for the impartial treatment accorded every candidate. Everything was done to facilitate the work of the contestants and their friends, and the result is that everything has turned out in the most gratifying manner.

Loss With Good Grace. The candidates will have been the gainers although their names do not appear on the list of winners, for they have increased their acquaintances and have cemented their bonds of friendship even closer than when admiring friends placed their names before the public as candidates for prizes.

The Largest Contest Ever. With the closing of the contest for the beautiful prizes offered by the named today as the result of the official count of the prominent and distinguished gentlemen who acted as judges and who had no concern in the contest other than to accept the invitation of the management to make a thorough and complete canvass of the votes.

Everybody Satisfied. That every one might have an equal chance, no matter where they lived the territory was divided into two districts, and each one knew that a reasonable amount of effort would bring a handsome reward, for there were four prizes in each district in addition to the grand prize. In this way every one was satisfied, which was the chief desire of the Tribune and Times.

Whole United States Voted. Votes came from all parts of the United States and even from Canada and the Philippines, showing how widespread is the friendship for both the contestants and the Times and Tribune and only the stimulus of the contest was necessary to bring this fact into prominence and to add hundreds of new subscribers to our circulation.

Received Enthusiastically. It was impossible to anticipate such an enthusiastic reception as the one accorded the Times' and Tribune's great prize contest. It has appealed to the public mind, and by the increased circulation resulting the merchants and advertisers who use the columns of the Tribune and the Times for the purpose of advertising are the ones to be directly benefited.

All Could Not Win. The one feature of the contest that we do not like is that every one could not win a prize, but in the very nature of things this is impossible, and there is sympathy in plenty for those who have no material benefit to show for their effort. Later on they will surely find that benefit there has been, and of a high kind, for they have necessarily developed self-confidence, business ability, and independence which will help them to be successful in the battle that lasts long after the "battle of ballots" is forgotten, that this is the battle of life.

Make the Awards With Pleasure. It is a pleasant task for us to make the awards to the successful candidates. And we do this with the heartiest good wishes for their enjoyment of them, and a keen appreciation of the work that they have done in our behalf during the past ten weeks.

GOVERNOR KITCHIN PUT ON DEFENSIVE

MR. JAMES A. LOCKHART BITTERLY ATTACKS HIS RECORD.

Former Warm Friend of the Governor Makes a Confession. — Tells Why He Turned Against Man He Helped to Elect—Advocates Clark.

Hon. James A. Lockhart, of Wadesboro, spoke at Madison Saturday. A full report of the speech was made in Sunday's Charlotte Observer by Mr. T. W. Chambliss, of the staff of that paper, and is part as follows: Madison, Oct. 12.—The senatorial campaign received a new impetus here this afternoon. Gov. William Walton Kitchin is now on the defensive and the man responsible for the situation is former State Senator James A. Lockhart, of Wadesboro, who was the manager of campaign in Anson county for Mr. Kitchin four years ago, and who spent considerable money out of his own purse for the purpose of securing the nomination for the Governor.

The remarkable speech delivered here today and repeated at Maydon tonight makes an entirely new epoch in the senatorial race. The personality of Mr. Kitchin was not considered by the eloquent speaker of Anson, but his record as Governor was the sole subject of discussion.

During his speech one weak voice in the rear of the hall was raised for Kitchin and when the sentence "Hurrah for Kitchin!" was voiced, Mr. Lockhart quickly responded: "That's right. Cheer Kitchin; for years and years he has been running on hot air, and he needs it now."

When the people of North Carolina were groaning under the oppression of negro domination, Aycock came to the front and said: "Elect me, and I will do the work." He was elected and negro domination is busied forever. Governor Aycock was also heartily in favor of educational reforms, and the reforms were accomplished. Later Governor Glenn determined to bring about prohibition and the adjustment of the passenger rate question, was elected, and the history of his service shows how well he accomplished his promises.

Then the people having heard the fair promises of William Walton Kitchin elected him as successor of Aycock and Glenn, and the result has been simply four years of whining, "I can't do anything." At this point with tremendous emphasis, Mr. Lockhart shouted, "Do we want a man who can't do anything in the United States Senate?"

Immediately a strong response "Not No!" came from the audience. Then he asked, "Do the people of North Carolina want a cry-baby in the United States Senate?" The applause was great.

Mr. Lockhart said by reason of freight discrimination the Southern Railway alone had received $11,000,000 from the people of North Carolina. There is a way to bring railways to terms, but Mr. Kitchin had not tried to find a way. He illustrated with the Southern Railway, and said that the State of North Carolina had leased to this railroad the line from Charlotte to Greensboro. This lease contains certain provisions and he did not believe that Mr. Kitchin had even read the lease, for, in fact, Mr. Kitchin had been so busy for the past four years making speeches and running for the Senate that he had not had time to attend to the business of the State.

and Senator Simmons; "but the time has come," he said, "for the people to select a man who can do things for the State, rather than choose a man because of his personality. I contend," he said, "that public officers are the hirelings of the people and should attend to the interest of the people. Judge Clark will do this."

Mr. Lockhart illustrated with the American Tobacco Company, and for a little while he handled that corporation without gloves. Then he referred to the position of Governor Kitchin. "Kitchin is the great self-announced trust-buster, who has never even attempted to bust a trust. If chosen as United States Senator, he will bust just as many trusts as he has busted during the past four years."

Mr. Lockhart then said that he had a confession to make. "Four years ago Mr. Kitchin came to Wadesboro and opened the campaign, and in that speech Mr. Kitchin said, 'elect me Governor, and I will put the trust officials behind prison bars and in stripes.'" Mr. Lockhart said:

"I believed him. I knew that he had failed to do anything while he was in congress; but he had told me that he did not know how and that if he could be made Governor he would be made an independent and active Governor. I trusted him and supported him. I spent money for carriages, hired a brass band, paid for the printing of tickets of the tickets, and I worked for him. It is true he offered to repay me; but I would not let him and told him that I did not want the money; but I did want him to be a man for the people of North Carolina, and fulfill his promises to the people."

"The first suspicion of Mr. Kitchin came to me when the convention was in Charlotte four years ago, and then it was that Mr. Reuben D. Reid of Rockingham county came to be in the Selwyn Hotel and said that he was afraid we were making a mistake and that Kitchin was in the hands of the American Tobacco Company. His closest friends were the close friends of that big corporation. They were apparently backing him."

"Still, I believed in Kitchin. Then as the deadlock continued, Mr. Reid came to me again and begged me to withdraw my influence from Mr. Kitchin. But I still believed in him, and I still thought he was all right until I, as the Senator from Anson county introduced the bill known as the Lockhart anti-trust bill. I was not its author. It was drawn by Reuben D. Reid of Rockingham county. I was told by William Walton Kitchin that the people of North Carolina did not want any anti-trust legislation, and that the people of Rockingham county had defeated Reuben D. Reid because of his interest in that legislation."

"Mr. Kitchin said to me 'go slow, the people don't want anything done.' I went out from his office disgusted and undone, and my confidence in W. W. Kitchin was gone, and gone forever, and I am opposed to nominating that kind of a man for the exalted office of United States Senator."

WATER IN LIQUOR.

Witness Swore Liquor He Purchased Was Diluted With Water Wagon Solution—James Scott Bound Over For Selling the Stuff.

James Scott, a young white man of No. 1 township, was tried before Squire C. A. Pitts Saturday afternoon, charged with selling liquor. Scott was represented by Mr. John W. Hutchinson and Mr. T. D. Maness represented the State.

Matthew Honeycutt and his wife were the chief witnesses against the defendant. Honeycutt testified that one day in August 1911, he met Scott on the railroad track and that Mrs. Honeycutt was sick and that he purchased a pint of liquor from him paying him the sum of 55 cents for the liquor. He also testified that the liquor was half water and the defendant would not return the 55 cents, hence the suit at this time. His wife corroborated his testimony. Squire Pitts bound the defendant over to the October term of Superior court under a bond of $25, which he gave.

HOMICIDE SATURDAY NIGHT AT LOCUST

ADAM HARTSELL SHOOTS AND KILLS ANDY YOW.

Shooting Took Place in Front of Green's Store, and Was the Result of a Drunken Brawl.—Yow's Death Resulted Instantly. After Four Shots Had Been Fired Into His Body.

Adam Hartsell shot and killed Andy Yow at Locust Saturday night about 8 o'clock. The shooting took place in front of Green's store and is said to have been the result of a drunken brawl, both being having been indulging freely in liquor. Hartsell, it is said, fired four shots, two taking effect in Yow's neck, and his death resulted almost instantly.

The exact cause of the tragic affair could not be ascertained this morning. A phone message from Georgeville stated that the report reached there that the men were drinking and that Yow and several sons of Hartsell had been in trouble in the afternoon. Hartsell and his boys, the reports states, met Yow in the evening in front of the store and the shooting took place. It is stated that Yow had accused Hartsell of running an illicit still. Yow was not armed and no weapon of any kind was found in his pockets.

It is said that after the shooting Hartsell exclaimed: "Now, — you, see what you came to." Hartsell and his son, Albert Hartsell, surrendered to the officers and are now in jail at Albemarle. Yow is survived by his wife and two children. He worked at a saw mill near Locust. Hartsell is survived by his wife and several children and also grand-children. He is a farmer. The funeral of the deceased was held at Meadow Creek church in Stanley county yesterday.

Well, well, well! Our old friend, Mr. John A. Smith, of Bessemer City, a native born citizen of this good county is likely to be put up as a Bull Moose candidate against Congressman Webb in the ninth district. When did John "get religion?" Not many weeks ago he talked like a Taft man; he was giving the Bull Moose crowd hail Columbia happy land of Canaan!—Greensboro News.
