PATRONS FORGED TO CALL FOR WHISKEY

WEBB LAW PREVENTS EXPRESS COMPANIES FROM MAKING DELIVERIES.

Every Person Who Orders Whiskey

order vinous, spirituous, malt and various other kinds of liquors as the law books say, need not make ready a snug little place behind the closet door and expect old John Barleycorn the Kannapolis Odd Fellows Sunday to be ushered into as has been the custom. The Webb law has changed the former system of delivering liquor and if a citizen is planning to next Sunday, and finish up the chain custom. The Webb law has changed stimulate up a little or to sit back in on the following Sunday, thus giving the cool of evening and sip a little the meaning of Frieadship, Love and of fame producing liquid from Mil- Truth. waukee's town he had also better plan to exercise to the office after his goods, Lodge, No. 242, have sent $10 to the for under the law the company does not make deliveries unless the party the goods are shipped to calls for them. There is also another little requirement embodied in the Webb bill, which will require that after the person who has ordered his booze presents himself at the express office, supposedly clothed and in his right mine, his name and the whiskey and so forth and so on or so on and so forth, whichever is preferable, must be made note of in a book, the said to be kept separate and apart for that specific purpose.

the company and the people who order whiskey by express are required to go to the office and secure it themselves. The result is that the patrons of the mail order houses and the public generally are finding out that the Webb bill contains fore "tushes" than was at first supposed and that had a large audience. All present they are stronger and bit with more vengeance than the kind planted in tainment. the gums of a certain anti-trust law of North Carolina fame.

THE CAMPAIGN HERE

vention.-Sermons to Odd Fellows. The People Are Awaking Up to the Situation.-They Demand That the Evil Be Broken Up.

The people are interested in the against gambling and other forms of evil that have been flourishing here for months. They are taking such an interest that there is every indication the people here who stand for law enforcement, decent government and the best interest and welfare of the community and who are against lawlessness and a policy of protecting vice by non interference on the part of the officials who are entrusted with enforcing the laws are going to demand that such evils be broken

The right kind of citizen, and Concord can rightfully boast of as many as any community this size, is not satisfied to sit idly by and see conditions grow up and evils become so entrenched as to cause a few to become enriched in violation of the laws that were made for the protection of the whole people. Such a citizen is against any system that creates a condition where a few men can violate laws and grow wealthy when such laws were created for the protection of all the people of the community and not for the destruction of the morals of a community. No condition exists in Concord where a of illegal business without being molested by officials and the right thinking people are not going to stand for official protection of various forms

Only a few days ago a young merchant here stated, in speaking of the matter, that the evil had reached out and So Says Connie Mack on His Arrival was growing to such an extent that it was getting to be a difficult thing to hire a young man who was not a devotee of the game. No such a condition has a right to exist and no such condition will exist if the proper er steps are taken by the officials to

The law on gambling is familiar to the average layman. This law can be enforced if the officers care to enforce it or else there is no reason why it is not enforced unless they are incompetent. There is no question about the law on the question and, buttressed by its power and responding to duty and the best interest of the public welfare, there remains no reason why the officials of Concord cannot put an end to the gambling rendervous and other illegal practices that are conducted here.
