

TROY, THE QUAKER HEALTH TEACHER, MEETS WITH A MOST FLATTERING RECEPTION

Many People Visit Him at The Marsh Drug Company on the Very First Day.

Troy, the Quaker Health Teacher, can now be seen at The Marsh Drug Co. daily from 9 a. m. to 5 p. m. At his hotel last night he expressed his pleasure at the enthusiasm shown by Concord people on the very first day of his visit. A great number of people have now commenced to take the wonderful Quaker remedies, so results may be looked for soon, if the claims made for the remedies are true. People suffering from rheumatism, catarrh, constipation, kidney, liver, stomach or blood troubles should call on Troy at once and let him explain how the remedies will act and what they will do. It costs nothing to talk to him, and he came here purposely to prove things, not to make promises. Over in Spartanburg these remedies are certainly creating sensations, and another remarkable case there has just come to light, according to a letter received by Troy. Mr. Roberson, who lives on the north side, suffered for many years bloating, belching, heartburn, indigestion, etc., and he could retain nothing on his stomach, had dizzy attacks and severe headaches and was growing so weak that he was confined to his bed. At this time the Quaker Extract was sent for. That was some time ago. Things have changed now, because Mr. Roberson improved from the start and though he has taken three bottles of Quaker Extract he is now improving so much that he has returned to work. Any person wishing to investigate this case may write to Mr. Roberson. His address is North Side, Spartanburg, S. C. Once more it is announced that any person afflicted with tapeworm may call on Troy at Marsh Drug Co and he can obtain the Quaker Extract absolutely free, just to prove that the remedy will expel the worm in a few hours, complete with head. This is how Troy proves what he says. Has or could a more honest, sincere and reasonable offer ever have been made? Please call in the morning, if possible, to avoid the afternoon crowds. Remember it costs nothing to talk with Troy, and he never offers his remedies in such cases where he thinks they will be of no benefit. Are your children pale, puny and restless? Do they grit their teeth or bite their nails? Is their breath bad? Remember, these are symptoms of worms and Quaker Extract removes worms and Troy is here to prove it. Call on him at once at Marsh Drug Store on Union street. Mail orders and all letters of inquiry receive personal attention.

LITTLE SUMMER AFFAIR

By ADELE JOHNSON.

"Do you mean to tell me, Gertrude, that you do not care for me? That you have been trifling?"

"Yes, if you want to put it that way, Mr. Henry Croydon. It was purely a little summer affair. I supposed you understood the game. Now that the season is ended, it's called off. I think there's lots of pleasure in such little affairs don't you? I'm going back to my dear old noisy city. Really, I'm tired of the quiet of the country. These hills seem to stifle me. I'm off for the world of light and music, the theater and good times. Three cheers for Broadway!"

"Gertrude, you are trying to tease me. Come, dear, if I know anything about girls, you do love me. You have given me every reason to think so. Why, just last week you told me you loved these hills; that you hated the restless life; that you had found your real self here; that you had felt a peace of soul and happiness that were past understanding."

"Yes, yes, but—but a girl has a right to change her mind. And as for your understanding girls—ha! ha! my dear friend, you may know your country product, but not us of the city. I'm in earnest, Henry. I'm a creature of moods. I crave adventure, excitement, travel—oh, everything! The stir and bustle appeal to me now. My home is calling, calling for me. Come drink to my health. Ah, you must go? Goodby, Mr. Croydon. Come, shake hands."

"Excuse me, Miss Arlington, I've washed my hands. You are a cruel woman, Gertrude Arlington. I cannot believe such as you are the handiwork of God. You and all your clan should go through life labeled 'Poison.' Good evening."

When Gertrude recovered her senses she gasped, "Oh, that he should think of me in that way. I who love, love him. I, who would consider it the greatest privilege to share his life, to do the most menial work for him; the only man I have ever loved. But I had to force him to think me hard and cruel or he would never have gone back to her. Her! What is she to me? Why should I let her ruin my happiness?"

She drew from her pocket the letter she had received that morning, the contents of which had caused her a struggle:

"My Dear Miss Arlington: I trust you will pardon me for writing to you, almost a perfect stranger to me. Six times I have written to you, only to destroy the letters and despise myself. I have heard that you are as good and kind as you are beautiful, and I feel sure you will understand."

"Henry Croydon and I were schoolmates and childhood lovers. He has been attentive to me all these years. Indeed, our friends considered us engaged, although no formal declaration had been made. I love him, and I think I could make him happy. He has been the only bright spot in my otherwise colorless life. I was sure of his love until you came to spend the summer in our village. Before that I was the only girl he cared for."

"Miss Arlington, you have money and friends. You are young and attractive. I am an orphan, to whom the prospects of a home means heaven. Perhaps I should be silent and give no sign of the pain within me. That is considered a woman's duty. I fear I am weak—weak. I hope you may never suffer what I have during this summer. Oh, can you understand? Yours sincerely, "MARY GOODWIN."

Gertrude Arlington slowly tore the letter to shreds. A beautiful smile lighted her face. As she went to her room to pack her trunks she murmured, "Yes, Mary Goodwin, I understand."

Poor Bairn! Which did baby resemble the more—its father or mother? Its parents were, to put it charitably, not very prepossessing, nor was the baby; so, to settle the matter, they finally resolved to refer it to arbitration.

"I'll ask old Farmer B— to step in and see baby," said its proud father. "He never spoke a flattering word in his life, and we may trust his verdict implicitly."

So Farmer B— was called in, and, after pinching the baby to see what it looked like when crying, he wrinkled his forehead.

"Well," he began, while the parents listened eagerly, "it's the will o' Providence, no doubt, but it's hard on the nipper, for all that. It has a look of both of you—poor bairn!"—London Tit-Bits.

Cling to Old-Time Toys. The eternal feminine of the juvenile variety still concentrates its affections on dolls as gifts, with the result that no other toy is sold so largely at holiday times. Boys, say the dealers, scatter their affections on various military toys, tin soldiers, trumpets and bugles being their favorites. The boy's voice, it seems, is still for war, while few little girls have become so "advanced" as to despise the make-believe baby.

Puts and Calls. "I think," said young Mrs. Torkins, doubtfully, "that I understand what is meant by 'puts and calls.'" "Oh, you do!" rejoined her husband. "Yes. A person with a tip puts some money in a broker's hands and after a while somebody calls and gets it."

Wilson Visits Capitol for Fourth Time.

Washington, May 7.—President Wilson went to the capitol today for the fourth time and after an hour conference with a score of senators came away wearing a happy smile at having cleared up to his own satisfaction a number of troublesome situations that had arisen over appointments.

LIKE MESSAGE FROM DEAD

Photographs of Fax Messages Via Time Are Found After Their Death.

Like a message from the grave have arrived at the office of L'Illustration in Paris some photographs taken just a few days before the massacre at Fes, in which the photographer himself, Jean Bringuat, and his young and charming wife, met their deaths, together with other members of the French colony.

On the day following the signing of the treaty acknowledging the protectorate by France the sultan invited to his palace several French officials and their wives. Mulai Hafid was in excellent humor, and was particularly attentive to Mme. and Mlle. Regnault, Mme. Jacques Dumerant, wife of the deputy for Seine-et-Marne, and Mme. Max Choublier. M. Bringuat was also present, and the sultan insisted that he photograph the party. Mulai Hafid also operated the camera himself and took several pictures.

A few days later while M. and Mme. Bringuat were breakfasting with some friends the revolt of the Shereefian troops began, and the crazed soldiers started their bloody work. The plates of L'Illustration's pictures were found in the ruins of M. Bringuat's dining room, and were later developed in Paris.

Dallas Prepares for Shriners.

Dallas, Texas, May 8.—The annual meeting of the imperial council, Ancient Arabic Order Nobles of the Mystic Shrine, will be held in Dallas next week, beginning Monday, and it is estimated that 35,000 or more visitors will be in the city. Every section of the country will be represented.

Monday will be devoted to the reception of the visitors and to sight-seeing trips about the city. Tuesday will be featured by the morning parade of bands and patrols acting as an official escort to the imperial officers to the place of meeting of the imperial council. At night the big spectacular Shrine pageant will take place, following which the delegates will be entertained at a Mexican dinner and vaudeville show at the fair grounds.

Wednesday the patrols and bands will assemble for battalion formation and exhibition drills for rich prizes to be awarded by the executive committee. Late in the afternoon there will be a barbecue and a grand spectacle illustrating pioneer days in the southwest. A reception and ball will be given Wednesday night.

The last half of the week, following the close of the imperial council sessions, will be devoted by many of the delegates and their families to a grand 1,000-mile tour of Texas, Galveston, Houston, Waco, San Antonio, Austin and other of the principal cities will be visited.

An army of decorators is already at work dressing up the downtown section of Dallas in anticipation of the coming of the Shriners. The night illuminations will be among the most brilliant ever seen in an American city. From all the trolley support wires along the leading thoroughfares are being hung immense Shrine emblems of the scimitar and crescent. The emblems are painted in white and gold and on each side illuminated by incandescence lights. On each side of the emblems will be suspended American, Texas and Shrine flags.

Particular.

Two young sports met on Euclid avenue Tuesday morning. One was a mushy person who had all the money he wanted; the other was a hardened chap who wanted more money than he had. Said the first:

"I hear your uncle is seriously ill, old boy."

"I'm afraid he is," was the answer. "Don't be a bally hypocrite. You don't love him, do you?"

"No."

"And you're his only relative?"

"Yes."

"Then why pretend you're not glad?"

"You darned fool! I've got two uncles—and the poor one is the one who is not expected to recover!"—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Concord People Tell of the Wonderful Curative Power of the Now Famous Globe Tonic.

Excitement in Concord and vicinity over the astonishing cures of various chronic diseases that are being effected by the use of Globe Tonic is increasing daily.

Reports of cures of homefolks have spread like wildfire and people from many of the surrounding towns are flocking here to investigate. Many of those who obtained a supply of the medicine when it first became known are making the most remarkable reports and some are so enthusiastic over it that they are anxious to have their experience published so others may investigate and be benefited as they have.

At the store at 15 N. Union street (opposite St. Cloud Hotel) where we are giving free samples every day and selling the regular $1.00 size bottles for 50c, or 3 for $1.25 so an in-terductory price for a short time. People are calling and exchanging stories of what seem to be almost miraculous cures, and were it not a fact that these people are well known here and their torture has been known by their friends the reports would almost seem to good to be true.

Mr. T. S. Shinn, who resides on the Salisbury road, just outside of the city limits, who has suffered from indigestion for the past three years had to be very careful about his diet, eating only the lightest of food. If he ate solid food or anything containing acid he would almost die from cramps in his stomach and bowels. Since he has used 3 bottles of Globe Tonic he has gained flesh, says what he wants, sleeps well and feels like a new man.

Much interest is centered in the case of Mr. E. M. D. Stearnes, of Rocky River, who is better known as "Uncle Mack." He suffered for the past 18 months from rheumatism and could only walk by the aid of a cane. Since using three bottles of Globe Tonic has given him his cane to the demonstrators and "Uncle Mack" is just as chip and spry as can be and now he has as good use of his limbs as anybody.

Mr. M. J. Hunsucker, employed at the Hartwell mills. Kidney trouble and backache just refused to take Globe Tonic had not been able to work for three weeks, as he said: "When I would stoop I could not straighten up again, but three days after I had taken Globe Tonic I went back to work and since I have been using it 30 days I am as strong as an ox and advise all who suffer from kidney trouble to take Globe Tonic.

Mr. Robert L. Plett, who resides at 76 McGill street and is employed at Locke mills says: "Since I have been taking your Globe Tonic Remedy and expelled that 35-foot life-sapping tapeworm I have gained weight and strength until my friends hardly know me and I wouldn't have that monster back in me again for all the money in the world."

Our demonstration is in progress daily at 15 North Union street. We want every person who suffers to call and try the free samples and talk to the representatives. Remember, we are here to stay, make no unreasonable claims and prove what we say. You should procure the wonderful treatment before the price is raised.
