ting the Odd Game.

The first paragraph of this report is reserved, set apart and deeded in fee simple to A. Campbell Cline. The second is of the Has-Beens-Cineo baseball game vesterday afternoon, which the Has-Beens aron by the score of 4 to 3. And, as Cline, was the bright, particular star of the fray he comes first in relating what transpired. The long, lanky twirfer bent the pill across in such great form that one lonely little hit, a Texas lenguer over third, was all he allowed the chasity Ciness. His famous old drop was dropping in such an clusive manner that many took three awipes at it and then dropped their bats. Cline was the force and motor power that uped the Has-Beens to victory.
