

MONUMENT TO WOMEN UNVEILED

HANDSOME MONUMENT TO WOMEN OF THE CONFEDERACY.

Was Presented to the State by the Late Col. Ashley Horne—Ceremonies Very Impressive.—Address by Dr. D. H. Hill, Reading of Special Poem by Dr. Henry Jerome Stockard, and Speech of Acceptance by Gov. Craig.

Raleigh, N. C., June 10.—Hon. J. A. Long, of Roxboro, as chairman of the memorial commission, in presenting to the State the splendid Horne monument to the North Carolina women of the Confederacy in connection with the unveiling ceremonies, paid a most fitting tribute to Col. Ashley Horne, who gave the monument to the State, declaring that Col. Horne loved the South and loved most that type of life found in the southern women which the monument is to memorialize as "the bravest of the brave."

Chairman Long declared that it took the generous soul of Col. Horne to make possible this memorial occasion. He appealed that while this monument is dedicated to the very best there is in southern history that we not forget that type of southern heroes found in the life of Col. Horne who always measured the full breadth of a man, a hero in times of war and patriot in times of peace.

The ceremonies for the unveiling today were most impressive and successful. They opened in the city auditorium with an invocation by Rev. E. A. Osborne. There was stirring music by the Third Regiment band. Then followed the address by Dr. D. H. Hill, being a most admirable and concise story of the heroism and sacrifice made by the women of the State for the "Lost Cause." He declared that this was undertaken by the South not in a struggle "for feeding ground or share in the foder," but with deepest reluctance, without rancorous thought and with a full knowledge that self interest is being ignored. He portrayed the character, spirit and deeds of the North Carolina women of the Confederacy, declaring her to have been a woman of metal, of cool-blooded iron-willed pioneer ancestors, a most capable woman, inventive and resourceful to a degree, and self-forgetting and most of all a womanly woman, craving no queenhood, save the sovereignty of her own home, ruling there with gentle yet imperative graciousness, never doubting that her sphere of action was her own home and centering her efforts on making that home a place of refinement and comfort and training her children to rigid obedience and to despise cowardice and dishonesty. She taught her sons that an office was held or the State, a trust was sacred and one's word as inviolable as a volume of oaths.

Following the address by Dr. Hill there was the reading of the special poem for the occasion by its author, Prof. Jerome Stockard, of Peace Institute, a most lofty and inspiring production that was admirably read, eliciting round after round of applause.

Then the procession formed for the parade up Fayetteville street to the monument in Capital Square, just opposite the main entrance to the new administration building, for the erection of which the lamented donor of the monument, Col. Ashley Horne, was chairman of the building commission. It was at the monument, after the vast throng had gathered there, that the brief, but stirring presentation address was delivered by Chairman J. A. Long, of the memorial commission.

The speech of acceptance was by Governor Locke Craig. He declared that the State accepts it with grateful appreciation as the tribute of a knightly soldier to the women of the Confederacy. The statue, he said, is an epic with heroism and devotion as its theme, the grandmother unrolling to the eager youth, grasping his father's sword, the scroll of his father's deeds, the etchings in the faces of the pedestal suggesting the outlines of her story. The Governor referred eloquently to the trials of the Confederacy and the reconstruction that so tried the women as well as the soldiery of the South. He declared the monument a symbol of veneration dedicated as a covenant that we in blessed remembrance shall strive for fidelity and courage.

Paying a tribute to the soldiery of the South, the Governor said: "Hail to you women of the Confederacy who here and nurtured them and sacrificed them. For you I plead the promise of Abraham. Henceforth all generations shall call you blessed."

The Governor declared that the veterans of the Confederacy have lived to see their faith triumphant, a southern man President of the United States adorned with the wisdom of the just, restoring the government to a higher ideal for all sections and for all classes. He declared that we are citizens of a great nation with a broader purpose and with sectional animosities forgotten. "The South," he said, "is having a voice in the chorus of victory."

The Confederate veterans in a meeting preliminary to the unveiling of the Horne monument this morning summoned Governor Craig to their presence for a speech in which he paid tribute to the service of the veterans in war and peace and welcomed them to Raleigh in the name of the State.

While speaking the Daughters of the Confederacy, headed by President Marshall Williams, President-General Stevens, of Tennessee, Mrs. Josephus Daniels and other distinguished ladies, filed in the auditorium for the preliminary unveiling ceremonies. After the unveiling 1,500 veterans shared the picnic dinner on the lawn of Capitol Square, the Daughters mingling with them in delightful comradeship.

The monument, the work of Augustus Lukeman, was admired by every one present. It is a gift to the State from the late Colonel Ashley Horne of Clayton, in memory of his mother, who sent six sons to Lee's army, three of whom were killed.

The central figure of the memorial is a statue depicting another of the Confederacy seated, with a Bible in her lap, while kneeling at her side is a boy with a sword in his hand, to whom she is relating its history. Determination is written on both faces, but the countenance of the mother also bears traces of sorrow.

164 183 300 264

164 264 300 351

164 351 300 413

164 413 300 514

164 514 300 638

164 638 300 730

164 730 300 823

164 823 300 940

WHITE WAY DISCUSSION.

Comment From Various Sources Heard About Proposed White Way For Concord.

Concord's proposed white way is a theme of interest just now. The announcement that the white way would be constructed along with the permanent pavement was received with great interest and favor by many and numerous expressions commended the action were heard.

However, the comment was not altogether unanimously favorable. One well known business man, in speaking of the subject, said to a representative of this paper: "You have published articles favoring the white way, why not give an opinion opposing it?"

"I have no special objection to a white way, but I think there are other things we need just now more than we do a white way. We need a fire pump and a number of mains need extending, which would cost about $5,000. I think we should have these things before a white way. I also think that it would be better if we are going to make an appropriation for a white way to spend the money for putting down more streets and sidewalks. A white way, to me is extravagant, when we need these other things."

A well known merchant also gave his views on the matter. He is out and out in favor of the white way and is boosting it in a most enthusiastic manner. "It is what we have been needing for years," he said. "It will reflect progress, beautify our town and create pride in it," he added.

Another citizen remarked that he would be in favor of the white way if it accomplished no other purpose than the removal of the numerous sheds along the street. "The idea of a town," he said, "big enough to have paved streets tolerating a cross roads relic of a shed."

291 216 425 303

291 303 425 351

291 351 425 413

291 413 425 514

291 514 425 638

291 638 425 730

291 730 425 823

291 823 425 940

DEMONSTRATOR HERE.

Mr. Baker, of the Department of Agriculture, Making a Survey of Water Sheds at Training School.

Mr. Baker, of the Department of Agriculture, is spending several days at the Jackson Training School. Mr. Baker is making a survey of the water sheds at the school's farm for the purpose of ascertaining the best method of draining and conserving the farm's resources.

The agricultural department sent Mr. Baker here for the purpose of demonstrating this important feature of farm work, which has never been accorded the attention equal to its importance in this section.

During his visit here Mr. Baker has talked to several farmers and business men of the importance of every county having a farm demonstrator. Cabarrus employed a demonstrator for a time, but for various reasons the office was abolished. It is generally recognized, however, that a properly trained demonstrator, who would give his entire time to demonstration work, would be of great aid in advancing the agriculture work of the county.

425 216 530 303

425 303 530 351

425 351 530 413

425 413 530 514

425 514 530 638

425 638 530 730

425 730 530 823

425 823 530 940

SEAHORN CASE AGAIN.

Lillie Seahorn Begins Sentence for Selling Liquor, But Does Not Get Far Enough Inside Jail to Suit City Attorney Maness.

Another chapter has been written in the case of State vs. Lillie Seahorn, who was convicted of selling liquor last fall and sentenced by Judge Long to four months in jail.

She was sent to jail a few days ago and the board of county commissioners established jail bounds, the bounds extending to the limits of the jail property. After she was committed she was allowed the privilege of enjoying freedom within the specified bounds.

City Attorney Maness, who prosecuted the woman, heard of the jail bounds and that she was not being confined strictly to jail. He immediately became active and demanded that she be locked up. He states that it is illegal to establish jail bounds for persons convicted of criminal offenses and cites chapter 3466 of the old Code and chapter 1339 of the revised.

530 216 660 303

530 303 660 351

530 351 660 413

530 413 660 514

530 514 660 638

530 638 660 730

530 730 660 823

530 823 660 940

SPECIAL OFFER WILL NOT BE REPEATED

THOSE WHO WISH TO WIN MUST MAKE HAY WHILE THE SUN SHINES.

Turn in Every Possible Subscription This Week While You Are Sure of the Extra Votes.—By the Rules You Are Assured That You Will Not Lose By So Doing.

Yes, it is positively going to end next Saturday night at 9 o'clock and it will not be repeated at any time during the contest. If you want to get in on this offer, and that will be necessary if you want to win one of the prizes, you must get busy at once.

But perhaps there will be another and a bigger offer later, is the remark made by many of the contestants. This is true that there may be another offer later, but it is also true that there may not be any more offers of any kind and that this will be the last chance of getting any extra votes.

And, even if there are other offers made later all are assured that they will not lose any votes by turning in their subscriptions now. By the rules and regulations of this campaign you will receive credit for all subscriptions turned in previous to any offer. That is, if there is another and better offer made later in this contest you will receive full credit for all of the subscriptions that you have turned in during this offer.

A record is kept of all subscriptions turned in by each contestant

660 216 930 303

660 303 930 351

660 351 930 413

660 413 930 514

660 514 930 638

660 638 930 730

660 730 930 823

660 823 930 940

164 940 930 960

164 960 930 980

164 980 930 1000