The report of the Bureau of Census on cotton consumed, on hand, etc. for the month of May shows that 467,123 bales were consumed as against 481,993 for the same month last year. The cotton growing States consumed 224,196 bales. On May 31 there were on hand 1,336,648 bales in manufacturing establishments and 947,230 bales in independent warehouses, a total of 2,314,378 bales of the old crops. There are 31,028,776 active spindles, or 472,799 more than in May last year. The world's production of commercial cotton, exclusive of linters, as compiled from published reports, documents, and correspondence, was approximately 22,255,000 bales of 500 pounds net. The consumption of cotton (exclusive of linters in the United States) for the year ending August 31, 1913, was approximately 21,089,000 bales of 500 pounds net. Except for the United States, cotton included in this amount refers almost exclusively to that used in spinning and does not include large quantities which are consumed in the manufacture of felts, hats, etc. The number of active consuming cotton spindles during that year was 143,398,000.

Can any one wonder that the public is compelled to make up the shortage and make disbursements for services which is paid for before? If ever a trust needed looking into and shaking up, it is the Pullman trust. In fact, it ought to be arraigned for peonage.—Asheville Citizen.

It is passing strange that in these days of investigation and regulation of trusts the "gigantic octopus," known as the Pullman Car Company, has escaped. It is the only absolute monopoly there is, so far as we know. All other great trusts have some show of competition, but the Pullman Company has none whatever. It has an absolute monopoly of the sleeping car business in the United States.

What will the Colonel do now? He has been forbidden by his physicians to make speeches. While in London recently he consulted an eminent throat specialist, who told him after examination that his larynx is in bad shape owing to the strain on it in the last Presidential campaign, aggravated by the fever which attacked him in Brazil. Col. Roosevelt said to a New York World reporter:

"It will be impossible for me to go into anything of a fight or continuous campaign for some months. I could not make as much as one speech a day. This means that it will be impossible for me to enticed, as I had been asked to do, any campaign, either primary or electoral."

PARAGRAPHS.

Many of us will be inclined to leave the faulty map of Brazil to be fixed up properly by the cartographers under the stern eye of Col. Roosevelt.

Mr. Mellen's disclosures are, however, not a part of the railroads appeal for high freight rates.

France is to honor Col. Roosevelt who is to reproduce by making the occasion as interesting as possible. He always does.

OLDEST SENATOR IN 52.

Uncle Isaac Stephenson Celebrates His 85th Birthday Today.
 Washington, D. C., June 18.—Senator Isaac Stephenson, of Wisconsin, who has the distinction of being the oldest member of the United States Senate, celebrated his eighty-fifth birthday anniversary today. Mr. Stephenson's term in the Senate will end next March and it is understood he will not be a candidate for re-election.

The career of Senator Stephenson affords a striking illustration of what may be accomplished by energy and determination in the face of obstacles that many would regard as insurmountable. His birthplace was a small farm near the city of Fredericton, N. B. His parents were extremely poor and young Stephenson was not able to acquire more than an elementary education before he had to go to work to assist his parents in supporting the family. When a year had he went to Bangor, Me., and later he joined a family going to the wilds of Wisconsin to seek a new home.

The future senator worked hard and faithfully and at the age of 17 plowed 130 acres of land near Janesville, Wis., and helped put in 400 acres of wheat. In the winter he went to the lumber region and hauled logs with a team of sixteen oxen. In 1847 he was placed in charge of a lumber camp and in 1850 he engaged in the lumber business on his own account. During the summer he sailed a vessel between Milwaukee and Escanaba and when winter came he returned to the hard work in the lumber camps.

In 1857 Mr. Stephenson purchased a quarter interest in some timber and saw mills and later he acquired control of the corporation, which was capitalized at $700,000. About the same time he became associated with William B. Ogden, Chicago's first mayor, in the Peshigo Company, with a capital of $1,500,000 and built for it the largest woodenware factory in the world.

Mr. Stephenson was the first man to tow barges on Lake Michigan. In association with Jesse Spalding and William L. Strong he organized and built the Sturgeon Bay Canal, which was afterwards sold to the government.

He was selected by the lumbermen of Wisconsin in 1867 to devise a plan for running logs on the Menominee River and built the boom that handles more logs than any other in the world. He became president of the Stephenson National Bank of Marinette and head of several of the largest lumber companies in the country. He placed the first steamboats on the rivers of Wisconsin and the neighboring States.

The public career of Senator Stephenson dates from 1866, in which year he was elected to the Wisconsin legislature. In 1883 he was elected to Congress and retired voluntarily after having served three terms. He did much to advance the political interests of Robert M. LaFollette and was a candidate for the United States Senate when the late Joseph V. Quarles was elected, and again when Mr. LaFollette was chosen at the end of Senator Quarles' term.

Mr. Stephenson came to the Senate in 1907 to fill the unexpired term of Senator Spooner who resigned. Later he was elected for a full term of six years. After his election charges were made by his political opponents that he had been elected as a result of corruption. After a full investigation of the matter the Senate Committee of Privileges and Elections reported that the charges were not proven.

Newman Says Something.

Salisbury, June 17.—Walter George Newman, who was in Salisbury when the stories reached here about the boosting of his Gold Hill company on the Senate stationery, made the same explanation that was given by the Senators—that a stenographer had copied the letters on stationery without the knowledge of the Senators and that that was all there was to it.

PROTOD "DRY" STATES.

Constitutional Amendment Introduced in Senate by Mr. Dillingham.
 Washington, June 17.—A constitutional amendment designed to protect "dry" states was introduced in the senate today by Senator Dillingham of Vermont. Instead of prohibiting the sale for beverage purposes of intoxicating liquor in the United States, as the Hobson-Shepard constitutional amendment does, the Dillingham amendment merely prohibits the transportation into a state for sale or use for any purpose contrary to the laws of such state. Its purpose similar to the recently enacted Kenyon laws, but it would remove all questions as to the validity of the legislation embraced in these measures.

A White Farm.

G. G. Brownell, in The Progressive Farmer.
 During a recent vacation spent in the North, we were driven through a most prosperous county, lined with beautiful farm homes.

Among others we passed a white farm. The house was white, the barns were white, the fences were white. Milk-white cows were grazing in the fields and snow-white chickens were running upon the lawn. A huge white dog lay upon the grass and a white horse, with a white harness and white carriage was hitched to a white post by a white strap. The white gravelled drive was bordered with white rocks. A white fountain threw up a white spray, while white ducks floated beneath.

Just as we drove by, a lady dressed in pure white, with white shoes, stepped out of the door and seated herself in a white hammock.

The white effect was most striking, and was an excellent example of advertisement without expense. The cost would have been the same if no attention had been paid to one color. There was no need of giving a name to that farm. It is known as the White Farm for miles around and is one of the show places of the district.

The same idea, of course, could be carried out with other shades.

Wouldn't Receive Money From a Dance.

Charity and Children.
 Some time ago we copied the statement from the Presbyterian Standard that the Alexander Rescue Home, a small Presbyterian orphanage of Charlotte, was to be given the proceeds from a dance on the 20th of May. Subsequently this notice appeared in the Standard which we publish with real pleasure: "We are glad to be able to say that whatever may have been the intentions of the managers of the dance at the auditorium the twentieth of May week, to give one-half of the proceeds to the Alexander Rescue Home, the managers of that Home have never had any intention of receiving it. They have in past years, we learn, refused to accept the proceeds of the Charity Ball, and they do not now intend to break their record."

DID YOU EVER MEET HIM?

The Fellow Who Holds the Screen Door Open While He Stands on the Outside and Talks to You.
 Salisbury Post.
 There are plenty of them about; probably you have met him some time or other. We mean the fellow who steps up to your door, stands on the outside and talks to you on the inside and at the same time takes hold of the screen door and pulls it wide open and holds it that way while he talks to you. Did you ever meet him? Of course you could not bear him talk if he did not do this, his voice will not penetrate the wire netting over the door. This fellow is a first cousin to the fellow who leaves the door wide open in January and February; who always walks to the left, and who holds the end seat in the church and the moving picture theatre. His tribe is many and they are increasing. Yes, you've met him.

Cone's Apple Orchard.

Charlotte Observer.
 When Mr. Moses Cone laid out the apple orchard on his estate at Blowing Rock, he was told by those who knew that he had selected the wrong exposure and that he would never get a crop. Mr. Cone, however, was not setting out the apple trees just for the beauty of their blossoms and was confident he would reap a crop in due time. The orchard is now but fairly matured and an item from The Lehigh News says it will this season produce 40,000 bushels of apples for the markets. It must be conceded that this is doing pretty well for one orchard, and goes to show that apple trees planted anywhere on a North Carolina mountain will bring results.

HOW FAMOUS ACTRESSES BANISH SUPERFLUOUS HAIR.

BETTY LORRAINE, the popular actress who has scored such a great success in "The Little Parisienne" and other comedies, writes: "Theatrical women are now using a remarkable prescription that quickly removes all traces of unsightly hair growth without injury to the skin. It is Mrs. Osgood's Wonder. It acts like magic and is absolutely harmless. Unlike the electric needle it can be used with perfect safety. Unlike anti-hairing depilatories, it doesn't burn the skin.
