SOLAR ECLIPSES

TERRORIZED ANCIENTS

Aroused Superstition and Inspired All Primal Races With Awe.

Washington, June 8.—Today's solar eclipse, which will be visible in many parts of the United States, is not likely to arouse any such feeling of fear as similar phenomena aroused among the ancients. Before the dawn of astronomical science eclipses of the sun and moon aroused superstitious alarm and inspired all the primal races with awe. Among the ignorant and eclipse excited the same apprehension and dread experienced on the occasion of an earthquake, a volcanic eruption or a thunderstorm or a cyclone.

The earliest record of an eclipse was that of the sun, observed by the Chinese, B. C. 2158. The record is meagre and merely says: "In the last month of autumn, the first day of the moon, the heavenly bodies were not in agreement in Fang."

The first record of an eclipse approaching any definiteness of account was the Niveah eclipse B. C. 763. The records of these ancient eclipses are valuable chiefly on account of the data supplied by the dates and for the religious significance of such occurrences.

The most notable eclipse recorded in history and the most frequently mentioned in literature and among scholars was that of the sun at the time of the battle between the Lylians and Medes, May 28, B. C. 585. The battle was suspended and peace was made through the good offices of Thales. The most important eclipse, however, in the history of mankind occurred in A. D. 840, and which caused the death of Emperor Louis. The three sons promptly engaged in a war among themselves, which tore the country to pieces. The war lasted three years and ended with the treaty of Verdun, whereby France, Italy and Germany were carved out of Charlemagne's vast empire. This was the beginning of the three countries named.

The first eclipse observed in England occurred February 15, A. D. 533, and is mentioned in "The Saxon Chronicles." Columbus made good use of his knowledge of eclipses among the savages.

In the infancy of the human race the earth was supposed to be the centre of the universe, with the sun, moon and stars revolving around our globe at a certain fixed distance. Not only the seers and philosophers of ancient times understood the mechanism of the celestial world. Little enough is known about celestial subjects at this day, but an eclipse is the simplest phenomenon of all that occurs among the heavenly bodies.

The early races of men worshiped the sun and regarded its extinction by an eclipse as the work of a demon or the wrath of an unknown and superior god, or of a gigantic monster. In India the dragons Bahu and Keta were held responsible for the suffering endured by the sun and moon at the time of an eclipse. Sun worship was prevalent among the ancient Egyptians, Phoenicians, Assyrians, Persians and Hittites. All of these nations used the winged disk as their emblem of the sun god. The Egyptians worshiped animals for the most part, but the Semitic religions were based upon reverence for astronomical objects. Superstition and ignorance went hand in hand on the occasion of an eclipse and so created the most appalling apprehensions.

The eclipse of the sun is occasioned by the movement of the moon. The sun stands still, virtually, while the moon sweeps over its face. That is, the sun moves only about a minute and a half along his path during an hour, which is about the average duration of an eclipse. Hence, it is clearly apparent that both the eclipse of the moon and of the sun are brought about by the moon's motion, with virtually no reference whatever to the motions of either the sun or the earth.

In older times great calamities were associated in the minds of the people with an eclipse, but as a scientific and well known fact, an eclipse has no effect on the physical condition of the universe. The ancient alarm was the most groundless of all fears. Yet the most intelligent can hardly look upon such an event without a feeling of solemnity.

SOLDIERS ENCAMP FOR A WHILE AT SALISBURY

Body of Men Going North From Alabama Stop For Twenty-Four Hours

There are 500 soldiers in the camp and they were halted here Monday afternoon for 24 hours while en route north from an Alabama camp.

New York Cotton Review.

New York, June 9.—The features which have been most generally commented on in the cotton market during the past week have been the failure of high official condition figures to inspire fresh selling and the relative strength of July contracts both in New York and New Orleans. The market was rather nervous and unsettled at the beginning of the week. The appearance of German submarines in American waters created no real apprehension of anything more than a temporary disturbance of shipping, but for a time there was some confusion over the effect on marine war risk insurance rates while the decline of Monday was also influenced by the expectation of bearish crop figures and continued good weather in the south. The market was steadied by covering and trade buying on a scale down however, and as soon as it was certain that the optimistic view of the new crop start had been discounted prices turned firmer. The government's report placing the condition at 82.3 proved even more favorable than expected and was followed by a very favorable weekly report from the Weather Bureau on Wednesday, but neither of these features led to any pressure of consequence and the advance later in the week was stimulated by the evident nervousness of near month shorts. July contracts sold as high as 26.52 on Thursday comparing with 24.23 the low point of Monday and 23.05 the recent low level. Reports of an improving demand for low grade cotton and of a continued demand for spots out of the local stock, seemed to modify the expectation of heavy deliveries next month and shorts were very active buyers on the advance until July. Showed a premium of about 258 points over October. Offerings then increased slightly and the market showed reactions during Friday's trading under realizing for over the week end. There has been very little discussion of the Washington news regarding an investigation of cotton exchanges by the bureau of markets, the outcome of which appears to be waited without anxiety by local brokers who have been doing business in keeping with the provisions of the cotton futures law.

With Paw-Paw Added

THREE POWERFUL FORCES IN ONE

PUT UP IN LIQUID FORM

You can overeat, you can overdrink, you can overexert, you can go "Over the Top" and once again become a strong, healthy, active member of society—man or woman—if you will follow the directions how to take the Standard Nux-Iron Tonic.

If suffering from shattered nerves, anaemic conditions of the blood, mental or physical depression and lack the desire to accomplish what you would like to do, if suffering from indigestion or kindred troubles caused through the after effects of a severe cold or hacking cough or probably from an attack of pneumonia or pleurisy, get a bottle of Ironized Tonic from your druggist, take it exactly according to directions half an hour before meals, one tablespoonful with a little water added if desirable, but not necessary. Continue this treatment for a few days and you will find it seems to energize every fibre, flame and bone.

In your anxiety to get better quickly, don't overdo it. Many sufferers do, and take larger doses of the standard remedy. It will not act any faster and you will not receive the same benefits from its use you otherwise would.

Nux-Iron Tonic has been favorably known throughout the whole world for the past 20 years. There is no guesswork or necessity to praise its value—thousands of people have done so. Go where you will Paw-Paw is known, and in presenting Nux-Iron Tonic (the addition being nux and iron) we have achieved an unparalleled success in the thousands of grateful testimonials pouring in from without doubt.

Nux-Iron Tonic will do more to brighten the world; to dispel gloom; to make happy homes and strong iron bodies, than all the medicine that has been compounded. The evidence we are publishing every day should be conclusive proof.

There is no guesswork about these statements, they come from your neighbors from a whole you can see and you can see people that you are bound to believe.

ALABAMA MERCHANT ADDS MORE PRAISE

Prominent Southerner Gives Out Remarkable Statement for Publication. Tells of Stomach Troubles and Relief.

Here is a story that cannot fail to interest the hundreds of men and women of this section who are victims of indigestion, dyspepsia and the many other ailments and disorders that are bound to follow these ailments. It is told by Mr. Samuel Simmons, the prominent and highly respected merchant whose place of business is at Second Avenue and Twentieth street, Bessemer, Alabama. It is given for publication so that other sufferers may read and take hope of courage. This is what he says:

"For a long, long time I was a victim of stomach trouble and all its attendant evils. Constipation, liver disorder, rheumatism of the muscles and constant dizzy spells made miserable for me. My mother was also a sufferer from these disorders of the system and we feared there was no hope of cure for us.

"Some of my friends had gotten such wonderful results from this new herb medicine—Dreco, that I ordered six bottles of it for my mother and myself. Both of us took it faithfully and are wonderfully improved.

MOTHER SHIPS AID UNDER SEA PIRATES?

Floating Bases Have Enabled Patrol Ships Off the Coast to Report. An Atlantic Port, June 8.—Reports that mother ships or floating bases have enabled the patrol ships of the navy and are aiding the Hun submarines in their operations off the American coast, continue to accumulate in shipping circles here. Theoretical vessels, shipping men declare, during the past week or more, have brought in reports of two small sailing craft, hovering around the coast, sixty to one hundred miles at sea and moving aimlessly up and down the Virginia coast. A nondescript steam vessel flying no flag, is also reported to have been sighted within the past two days. One member of the Harpethian reports sighting such a strange vessel. These reports have been transferred to local naval department officials and are being investigated.
