

DISCORD OVER THE PROHIBITION ISSUE

Becomes Hourly More Ominous as the Delegates and Party Chiefs Arrive to Attend National Convention.

DID BURLERSON SPEAK FOR WILSON?

Hope That Gathering Storm Might Spend Itself Before Closed Doors Has Been Virtually Abandoned.

(By the Associated Press.) San Francisco, June 23.—Rumblings of Democratic discord over the prohibition issue became hourly more ominous today as delegates and party chiefs arrived in increasing numbers for the national convention.

Hope that the gathering storm might have spent itself behind closed doors of the platform committee virtually was abandoned by leaders, and they are prepared to meet an outbreak of tempestuous debate on the floor of the convention itself.

Such development, it was agreed everywhere, would hold many dramatic possibilities, including a further complication of the uncertain outlook as to the Presidential nomination.

Already the overshadowing issue in pre-convention conferences, the question of a platform declaration against the present "dry" law almost took the whole stage for itself today as the gathering delegates heard of Postmaster General Burleson's announcement for modification of the Volstead act.

By many accustomed to regard the Postmaster General as the political spokesman for the White House, the development was accepted as a warning of which way the wind of administration influence would blow.

Others among the party leaders refused to take that view but no one here assumed to know for a certainty how far the sentiments of President Wilson might be in accord with Mr. Burleson's.

The latter, who announced his stand yesterday at San Antonio, will not reach San Francisco till late in the week.

What everyone knows is that both sides of the controversy are contenting their lines and bringing up heavy artillery for a bitter fight. After many conferences in an effort to lay a basis for harmony, Homer S. Cummings, national chairman, said today it seemed a "fair bet" that the question would be taken to the convention floor for settlement, regardless of what decision was made by the platform committee.

Closely intertwined with the question is the selection of a national platform, and among many politicians there is a feeling that the two decisions must be settled virtually at one stroke. So pleas of candidates' managers are falling on deaf ears for the present, while the leaders get their bearings on the more immediate question or the bone dry or beer issue.

The League of Nations issue has followed the candidates into temporary eclipse. Among most of the leaders it is agreed that whatever develops over the league will be only a drop in the bucket compared with the prohibition fight.

Leaders of the bone dry forces were confident today that they would command a good majority in the platform committee, where each state has only one member, and could keep out of the committee report any declaration for a change in the present law. With this view most of the managers have privately agreed, but they declared that when the appeal was taken to the convention itself the vote would tell a much different story. The large states, it was pointed out, while having only one vote apiece in the committee, will have a much greater voice in the whole body of delegates, who make up the national court of appeals. And most of the largest delegations are counted on for support by the advocates of a beer plank.

The manning of a watch is two feet long.

I. C. C. Has Big Accounting Job. Washington, D. C., June 23.—In a statement issued by the United States Civil Service Commission it is said that the Interstate Commerce Commission has on hand one of the heaviest accounting tasks that ever confronted any organization.

The law which became effective on March 1, providing for the return of railroads to private control, has added tremendously to the accounting work of the Interstate Commerce Commission, already heavy in connection with the physical valuation of common carriers.

Among other things, the new law provides for a fund of $30,000,000 to be under the control of the Commission from which fund loans may be made to common carriers for their extension and general betterment.

The Civil Service Commission states that until further notice it will receive applications for a large number of positions of examiner of accounts under the Interstate Commerce Commission at salaries ranging from $2,100 to $3,000 a year. Applicants will be rated on their education, training and experience.

It is stated that the positions are principally in the field and offer opportunity for extensive travel at Government expense. An allowance for subsistence is made in addition to the salary. The 30 days annual leave allowed Government employees is mentioned as a further advantage.

RAY MESSAGES ARE RECEIVED FROM LEADER BEYOND GRAVE

Members of the "Fugitive Research Got Communications From Dr. Hyslop, Dead For Days.

New York, June 23.—The American Society of Fugitive Research is investigating communications said to have been received by various mediums from Dr. James H. Hyslop, founder of the society, who died last Thursday. The nature of these messages, described by Dr. W. F. Price, acting director of the society, as "interesting" will not be divulged until the investigations are finished. Most of the communications, it was said, were received by Mrs. G. G. Sanders, a medium frequently employed by the society.

Mrs. Sanders today described to a reporter the receipt of Dr. Hyslop's first statement. She has since received others, she said, the latest Saturday afternoon. Seated in the darkened parlor of her home, the medium spoke faintly of what she said were spiritual visits of the scientist.

"I received my first message Thursday afternoon, just as Dr. Hyslop was dying," she said. "An investigator from the society called and told me that Dr. Hyslop wanted to ask several questions. At that time the general public, which included myself, did not know Dr. Hyslop was dead. I went into a semi-trance and saw Dr. Hyslop himself appear. He seemed conscious of the transition from life to death. Everything he said was recorded and taken to the society."

"There is nothing strange in this. If you were killed just as you went out of here it might be possible that you would call on me because I was the last person you saw and I would probably tell me you were the person who called here at such and such a time."
