

BOURKE COCHRANE, NOTABLE FIGURE IN POLITICS, IS DEAD

Representative Cochran Died This Morning in Washington Home, After Illness of Several Hours.

MADE SPEECH IN HOUSE LAST NIGHT

For Years He Was Power in New York Politics, and Was Wheel Horse of Tammany Hall.

Washington, March 1.—Representative Bourke Cochran, democrat of New York, died suddenly today. Mr. Cochran celebrated his 69th birthday yesterday, became ill last night, and died early today. He was on the floor of the House last night and made a spirited speech in opposition to the pending farm credits bill. Mr. Cochran's death, which occurred at 7:10 a. m., came as the immediate result of a stroke of apoplexy, it was said at his home. A native of Ireland, educated in France and the United States, and active for many years in the legal profession and in politics, Mr. Cochran was one of the picturesque forces in American public life. He was an orator of the old school, endowed with a remarkable voice, and with a delivery and diction which long ago won him a place among the most eloquent orators of the country. In politics Mr. Cochran was a hard horse of Tammany Hall, whose stables he fought in New York and elsewhere on many occasions. At the San Francisco National Convention he made the speech which nominated Governor Al Smith for the presidency, an oratorical effort which carried the convention into a prolonged demonstrationavoring of old time revival politics. He also addressed the convention in favor of a plank endorsing the sale of light wines and beers.

Bowie's Rail Measure Passes Senate By Vote 27-20; Ready For Ratification

Raleigh, Feb. 28.—The Bowie railroad bill to construct a main line and several branch lines in the mountain counties of the western section of the state went through the Senate tonight by a vote of 27 to 20 votes against, after an amendment offered by C. S. Bell of Bertie, to submit the question to referendum of the people at the next general election. The action of the Senate was a surprise to some of the folk who thought that this body would make short order of the house bill, but the merits of the proposition appealed to the senators and the bill went through without an amendment. The bill limits the amount the state can invest in the main line of the road across the Blue Ridge mountains into Tennessee or Virginia to form a part of a great carrying road, to $10,000,000. The state can own and control the main line fully, but the five branch lines, such as the connecting of Lenoir with the main line, Taylorsville with Wilkesboro, completing the Statesville Air Line and the Ekin and Alleghany, must have private capital subscribed and put in 51 per cent, before the state can put in its 49 per cent.

The passing of the bill opens again the hopes of the people of Ashe, Alleghany and Watauga counties that they can soon be connected with the state by direct rail routes. The mountain people have for years asked the state for help, but this is by far the largest single effort that the state has made toward getting a railroad line to them. And if a first class, low grade line can be built, it will serve a very useful purpose in the state's transportation structure.
