Substitute for Cotton.

London, March 14 .-- A new substance which it is claimed will take the place of cotton is undergoing experiments. Arghan, as it is called, is said to be immune from the diseases which destroy cotton, capable of resist ing the action of acids, less affected changes of climate, and ready for manufacture almost as soon as it is picked. It can be used in the mak-ing of sheets, shirts, and so on, and articles made from arghan cloth will cost very much less than those mann factured from cotton.

Scientsits have reported favorably on the new material, and enormous fields of it are being laid out in the Malay States and India, where it Maiay States and India, where it flourishes.
