The county arrangd to issue four notes for $25,000 each for the work, and levied taxes suffi-cient to retire the notes at maturity.

The plaintiff contended the county had violated Article V, Section 6, of the constitution; that the board of commissioners was not authorized under the statutes to issue the notes or to levy the tax; and that the board even if cuthorized, had failed to comply with the statutory provisions.

The lower court refused to continue its temporary restraining order and the County appealed. The supreme ourt held the resolutions and proced ings of the board of commissioners had been on record for several weeks and that it had not violated the state
