THE REPUBLICAN DISAGREEMENT

Certain Republican leaders seem determined to make President Harding retract on his court plan. On the other hand some of the most powerful of the G. O. P. leaders have promised their support to the President in his efforts to get his plan adopted by the United States.

Former President Wilson is said to feel that we should go all the way to the League or leave the League alone all together. The President's plan, Mr. Wilson is quoted as saying, does not go far enough, and therefore is no good.

All of which indicates that the people of the world are coming more and more to see the wisdom of the League. If Mr. Harding and his followers did not see something of the attitude of the people of the United States in regard to the League they would not advocate even the court plan. Secretary Hughes is given credit for urging the President to approve the court plan, and he unquestionably felt that the people wanted such action or he would not have suggested it.

And this action also indicates that the Republicans are trying to get their ducks in a row for the next election. They want to have some kind of a foreign policy to go to the people with.

The proposal of the President is causing a great furor among the Republicans, and promises to cause a serious split in the party ranks. Mr. Harding is now trying to avoid the split, but for once is sticking to his guns, and so far has shown no inclination to quit under fire and forsake his court plan.

A REAL ASSET.

The Cabarrus County Building Loan and Savings Association this month celebrates its 25th anniversary. From a business concern with assets of $12,000 in 1901, the association has grown to an enterprise with assets valued at a quarter of a million dollars. More than $1,000,000 is handled annually by the association, which is recognized generally as one of the most successful in North Carolina.

This association is one of three in this city. Each has played a big factor in the building of Concord. They have made money possible to every class of citizen and are a real asset to Concord. We believe a check-up of this city would show that a great majority of the homes here were built through the assistance of one of these building and loan associations.

The new High School site offers plenty of ground for a fine athletic field and we hope the field will be laid off, built and equipped as soon as possible. The school locations heretofore have never offered enough ground for such a field and now that one is available we hope some plan will be adopted by which the various athletic teams of the high school can have a ground to work on. It is possible that the business men of the city will be asked to help in this work and if they do we hope they will respond generously. A better spirit will be aroused among the students of the school if they are given their own athletic field which they can use at their leisure. At present they are forced to depend on the generosity of some citizens or organization when they want to stage a football game, baseball game or athletic meet of any kind.

KAOLIN AND ALUMINUM DEVELOPMENT PROPOSED

Valuable Property Owned By Virginians to Be Opened Up Near Lynch.

Lynch, April 20.—There is a probability that a kaolin and alumina mine will be developed on a big basis a short distance from Ratterton. The property is located about eight miles from here. B. V. Booth, cashier of the First National Bank of Danville, Va., M. R. Warren and Charles Guenter, mining engineers, also of Danville, Va., owners of the property, were here a few days ago. The property is known as the Harper-Jackson property, and consists of about 180 acres.

The survey and explorations were made by Mr. Guenter sometime ago. He reports that there are valuable deposits of kaolin, aluminum, tin, etc. There are well defined veins and not mere pockets, is the way Mr. Guenter describes the property. The estimated cost of the development is placed at $50,000 by Mr. Guenter. A tunnel will have to be dug, and this is placed at $25,000. The minerals taken from building this tunnel would more than pay for the cost of building it. Engineer Guenter's report also covers a water power development for furnishing power for the development of the mining property.

The owners of the property do not make any statement as to how early they expected to begin mining operations. It is believed here, however, that work will be started before summer is over.

The visit of the owners to this property several days ago has caused a number of rumors to get in circulation. One of them is that it is a big gold mining property that will require something like $500,000 to develop it. This rumor has it that there are millions of dollars in gold buried beneath Chestnut mountain. This same rumor says that one local concern tried to buy $50,000 worth of stock in this gold mining enterprise, but request for stock was turned down by the men who owned the property.

COTTON SPINNING SET NEW RECORD FOR PAST MONTH

Reaches More Than Nine and One-Half Billion Active Spindle Hours, Says Census Bureau.

Washington, April 21.—Cotton spinning set a new record in March, reaching more than nine and one-half billion active spindle hours, the census bureau's monthly report today showed. In cotton growing states spinning activity exceeded the five billion active spindle hours for the first time.

Active spindle hours for March for the entire country, totaled 9,331,062,951, or an average of 225 hours for each spindle in place, compared with 8,449,376,685, or an average of 227 hours per spindle in February this year and 7,769,741,174, or an average of 211 in March last year.

Spinning spindles in place March 31 numbered 37,508,843 of which 38,390,218 were reported at some time during the month, compared with 37,276,392 in place February 28 and 35,307,707 operated at some time during February, and 3,857,877 in place March 31, last year, and 31,872,812 operated at some time during the month.

The average number of spindles operated during March numbered 40,383,029 or at 88.3 per cent of capacity on a single shift basis, compared with 40,407,845, or at 100.6 per cent capacity in February.

Statistics for cotton growing states follow:
Active spindle hours, 5,116,534,762, or an average of 314 hours per spindle in place.

Spinning spindles in place March 31 totaled 16,313,156 of which 16,065,544 were active at some time during the month.

Declined With Thanks.
J. Fuller Gloom's antiquated car ran against a telephone pole, to the detriment of itself and its alleged master. "Al" ejaculated a by-passer. "Have an accident?"

"No, thank you!" replied the pessimist. "I've just had one."

The head of the house came downstairs in an irate frame of mind and told his wife that Bobbie had taken some change from his pocket.

"I don't think it's fair of you to accuse Bobbie that way, Jack. Why, you might as well say I'd taken it!"

"Oh, no, my dear," the brute answered, "it wasn't all taken, you know!"

NO REDUCTION IN THE SUPPLY OF FARM PRODUCTS

So. Economists and Statisticians Report—Home Demand Is Active.

Washington, April 21.—At least no reduction in the supply of American farm products this year, a slightly less favorable foreign demand and an active demand at home as long as the present business conditions continue were forecast today by a committee of 18 prominent economists and statisticians in a report to Secretary Wallace, of the department of agriculture, after a two-day conference here.

"It is of the most vital interest to American agriculture," the report said, "that the United States lend aid in every way possible to the settlement of the reparation and other European problems."

"The favorable factors with respect to foreign demand are: First, the influence of American prosperity upon the demand for European goods, and second, the possibility that the slight business recovery that has occurred in a number of European countries may gradually gain momentum."

"The unfavorable factors are: First, the progressive piling up of government debts on the continent of Europe, with its offset upon exchange, currency and business; second, the Ruhr situation."

"With some overflow of the business activity of the United States to the rest of the world, particularly the European part of the world, the prospect would rather be that there will be some increased production of foods in foreign countries. We cannot, therefore, confidently offer any reason for the expectation that our farmers will meet any less severe competition in European markets during the coming year than they have met during the last year."

Prosperity for a While.
Predicting the domestic demand for agricultural products would be active as long as the present condition of business with full employment continues, the committee said most competent observers seem to agree that the country may expect general business prosperity to last at least six to nine months longer.

The enormous net movement of 1,120,000 persons from farm to towns and cities in the two years ending with December 31, 1922, leaves the farm in an unfavorable position to meet emergencies, the committee declared.

With European countries making efforts to place their grain production on a pre-war basis, the heavy wheat exports of the last two years may be expected to decline, and the committee advises that American production should be readjusted to meet these changing conditions. The condition of winter wheat is unfavorable, included plantings of spring wheat are 5.5 per cent below last year's acreage and weather thus far has been unfavorable for spring planting.

There is no evidence that the consumption of American cotton in 1923 will fall below the indicated world consumption for 1922-23 which is not less than 13,000,000 bales, the committee reported. Available information indicates the world carry-over of all cotton on July 31, 1923, will be 6,800,000 bales, largely of foreign short staple cotton, and that American cotton will be little, if any, restricted on account of foreign production.

On the basis of farmers' intentions to plant 12 per cent greater acreage this year, the cotton acreage harvested in 1923 would be 35,885,000 acres. Should the yield prove the same as the average of the last five years the total crop would be 11,180,000 bales; if it is the same as the lowest yield of the five years it would be 9,610,000 bales, and if the same as the highest yield of the five years it would be 12,770,000 bales, the report states. The indicated carry-over in the United States July 31, 1923, will be 1,184,000 bales, including 100,000 bales of imported foreign cotton.

Corn Conditions Normal.
The corn situation is about normal, the committee found, but between now and the time will be some tendency toward corn shortage because of the larger number of pigs on feed. Hog production has been heavy and is still in a state of expansion. Unless bad weather and other conditions have reduced the number of spring pigs to an unusual degree, the price of hogs may be depressed next fall and winter. During the last winter more pounds of pork products were produced than in any previous winter in history, amounting to a 30 per cent increase over the preceding year. The prospect which producers must face before a year has elapsed is the absorption of domestic and foreign consumers of a surplus of over 6,000,000 hogs and 250,000,000 pounds of stored products.

A ten per cent increase in the intended tobacco acreage raised serious questions, the committee reported. The general business situation warrants expectation of an active demand from ultimate consumers during the next nine months.

Forecast of 1923 Cops.
Winter wheat production this year was forecast recently by the Department of Agriculture at 52,217,000 bushels, and rye at 75,782,000 bushels, compared with 586,204,000 bushels of winter wheat 95,457,000 of rye last year.

The forecasts were based on the condition of the crops April 1, which for winter wheat was 75.2 per cent of a normal compared with 78.4 per cent a year ago and 84.1 the ten-year average and for rye 81.8 per cent of a normal compared with 89.9 a year ago, and 88.6 the ten-year average.

Rural Enterprise.
There came to the farm of a man in Vermont, a stranger, who was full of advice touching certain needed improvements in and about the place.

"The first thing you should do," said he, "is to have that mudhole in the road repaired."

"Whereupon the owner grew scornful, "You performers and experts don't understand local conditions. Why, I have nearly paid off the mortgage with the money I have made hauling automobiles out of that hole."

Mothers of Famous Men

The Mother of Anthony Trollope.
Practically all of the gifts of that extraordinarily gifted writer, Anthony Trollope, were inheritances from his mother, either directly or from some of her forbears. Frances Milton, daughter of a successful inventor, was an exceedingly brilliant, witty and clever woman, with an ironic twist of mind which made even more lovable a heart full of kindness and a nature capable of the most tremendous sacrifices.

Mrs. Trollope was a woman who, having married her husband for pure love, was prepared to suffer any trouble and poverty with him in cheerfulness, and without reminding him all the time that she was being deprived of many joys. She was, according to the biographers, the most capable and unselfish wife in the world. She was resourceful and gifted. Her moral courage amounted to positive heroism. She had an "indomitable faculty of finding material success in the very veils of misfortune." She was a good looking woman, whose pleasant face was given point by a pair of very keen, bright eyes, and whose apparently gentle manner was attractively spoiled by the wit of a sharp, sarcastic tongue. She was the chief and most admirable of a positive flood of admirable qualities was this woman's combined sense of humor and proportion. She never felt sorry for herself, for instance, and had small patience with self-sympathy. She believed that if she were to really accomplish any good by making a sacrifice for her husband or her children, that she must not keep reminding them of the sacrifice. She did it, and never mentioned it again. She was not always on a still hunt for "appreciation" in consequences of which she received her full share of it. Altogether she was a wise, kind and brilliant woman.

Dodging the Income Tax.
"Sorry to inform you, ma'am, but I won't be able to come any more."
"Why not, Sarah?"
"I can't afford it. My husband says if I earn any more money he'll have to pay an income tax."

New Ambition For Nervous People.
The great nerve tonic that will put vigor, vim, and vitality into nervous, tired out, all in, despondent people in a few days is the celebrated Prunitone.

Anyone can buy a bottle, it is inexpensive, and the Gibson Drug Store sells Prunitone in such large quantities, that it proves that it is a remedy of unusual merit.

Thousands praise it for general debility, nervous prostration, mental depression and unstrung nerves, caused by overindulgence in alcohol, tobacco, or overwork of any kind.

As a brain food or for any affliction of the nervous system Prunitone is unsurpassed, while for hysteria, trembling and neuralgia it is simply splendid. Mail orders filled for out of town customers.
