THE UNPARDONABLE SIN.

Rev. L. Gill Preaches Powerful Sermon at Second Presbyterian Church.

On Tuesday night the seating capacity of the Second Presbyterian Church was taxed to its limit by the crowd that turned out to hear Rev. Leonard Gill in his presentation of the subject of the "Unpardonable Sin."

Mr. Gill made a soul-stirring impas-ioned appeal to the unrepentant and nearly every one in the audience who was not a professing Christian manifested a desire to become a follower of Christ.

"Taking as his text Matthew 12:32 "Whosoever speaketh against the Holy Ghost it shall not be forgiven him," Mr.
Gill said in part:

"There is a point beyond which a man goes he commits the unpardonable sin.
There is a sin unto death that a man may not be forgiven. Three questions we will consider: First, what is the unpardonable sin? Second, have I committed it? Third, how can I know if I have committed it? All sins are hateful and heinous in God's sight, laziness, conceit, profanity, drunkenness, adultery, gambling, stealing, slandering, murder.
Yet the blood of Jesus Christ can cleanse from all these sins if the sinner repents and turns away from them. But there is one sin that the blood of Jesus cannot cleanse, and that is the continual and repeated rejection of Jesus Christ. God says: 'My Spirit will not always strive with man.' The unpardonable sin is saying no to God for the last time, and His Spirit will leave you never to return. The heart that repeatedly rejects Christ and slights the many opportunities to confess Him before men and take Him for his savior, becomes harder and harder until the Holy Spirit leaves that heart forever. There is a point—the dead line, beyond which a man cannot and be saved. I have not much faith in death-bed repentances, sent back to the world. There may be just a heart-between you and eternity. This may be somebody's last call."

Mr. Gill closes this series of services tonight with a sermon on "What Lack I Yet?" Come.

THOMAS MARSHALL TALKS AT CONVERSE COLLEGE

Makes Strong Plea for Returns to the Ideals of Christianity.

Spartanburg, S. C., May 28.—Former Vice President Thomas Riley Marshall delivered the commencement address at Converse College today in the presence of 55 members of the graduating class, the college faculty and a large audience and visitors from a number of states.

Mr. Marshall spoke without notes and said after the exercises closed that he had not prepared a manuscript of his speech. He introduced himself as an "antique, a bit of the ancient furniture that has been set down in the north among the adornments of political and economic life." His greatest boast, he said, was that he was born a Presbyterian and a Democrat and had never departed from their teachings.

Mr. Marshall's speech to the college graduates was an urgent plea for a return to the ideals of Christianity. America, he said, was founded upon the Christian home and America cannot survive if the Christian home is to disappear.

The speaker pictured the changes that have come in life as the country has developed, and referring to the disposition of the people to discard the old things and adopt the new, he said:
"America is going to be what she is by your face against these untiring innovations, preserve above all else the ancient ideals of the Christian religion and beware of those who try to convince you that a thing is good because it is new."
"America is going to be what she is by the work of her women. Do not let the ballot deprive you of the ideals of your Christian home."

"In my generation," said Mr. Marshall, "a youth looked forward to a plot of ground on which he might build a home; he is now looking to a flat and a flivver. You can take it from me that there is no government that can conscript me to define the family in a boarding house."

THE OLD HOME.

(By JOHN E. ELKINS.)
"Chickens come home to roost." Well, I am not exactly a chicken, but in company with my brother, William H. Elkins, of Cisco, Texas, whom I had not seen for fifty-two years, until last Saturday, I am in the old home town, where brother and I will be renewing old friendships, and make new ones.
But in reflection over the past, my heart is made sad by reason of the fact that the grim monster has exacted such a heavy toll from old friends. Even during the past four years, of those who have "gone to that bourne from which no traveler has ever returned," I recall "Bill" Cook, John Bandy, Captain William Bross and Mrs. Propst, Mrs. Elbertine Murr, Mrs. William C. Boyd, George Brown, Col. J. N. Brown, Daniel Stiller, Mrs. Jim Erwin, Charlie McDonald, and perhaps others.

As I perambulate the streets I look or ask for this or that individual but in vain, as the echo says they are silent dwellers in the city of the dead. I will remember the twenty-first of April, 1881, when the Cabarrus Guards, under Col.
Nelson Slough, and the Black Boys, under Capt. James Atwell, pulled out for the scene of action. Of the Guards Noah Correll was the fiercest, David Corzine led the bass drum and James Benson the kettle drum. Well, folks, there was some music, no one could surpass Correll in blowing the life and Jim Benson was ahead of the profession in beating demonstrative quavers on the kettle drum. All honor to these soldier boys.

Yes, friends, on that fateful morning, I was at the station as were hundreds of fathers, mothers, brothers, sisters and sweethearts, to say goodbye to those brave boys, many of whom never saw home again. But their deeds shed a halo of glory over their lives. I have not time in this article to note the material improvements of the city here of the strides it has made, in education and religion, but I may touch on these all important questions in a subsequent communication.

It has been forty years since I was a citizen of this commonwealth, and in that time many have been the changes in citizenship in material progress. Many of the older ones have crossed the river, but in crossing left many sons and daughters, worthy descendants of noble deeds and never will, and it is a source of unalloyed pleasure for me to scribble to spend awhile in the old home, in meeting friends of by-gone days, in rehearsing events of the past and in making new friends where the laughing hangs on the outside.

BROTHERS SEPARATED FOR FIFTY-TWO YEARS

Story of Two Brothers, W. F. and J. R. Elkins, Who Were Born in Concord.

Some seventy-six years ago, in the city of Concord, there was born to Mr. and Mrs. Willie Elkins a son who was christened William Franklin. Two years later another son blessed the happy home, he taking the name of John Rogers. These two sons of North Carolina were brought up in the city of Concord, where they were happy and carefree, playing and enjoying each other's companionship for twenty-two years. Then on the 9th of October, 1871, William, who had married and was the pride of his father, decided to leave his old home for Texas. He and his family were accompanied to Charlotte by brother John, who did not know how long it would be before he would set eyes on his brother again.

William Elkins' route lay by way of New Orleans, he having to go from that city to Texas by water on what was known then as Morgan's land steamers. He settled in Bryan, Texas, taking up the trade of what was known in those days as a timber, new, steady, however, as a metal iron work or sheet metal workers. He lived in the city of Bryan for a period of nine years after which time he moved to Calvert, Texas.
He resided in Calvert for one year and then he and his family moved to Comanche, Texas. Here they resided for thirty-nine years. Mr. Elkins still carrying on the trade that he had selected as his life's work. For the last three years he has resided in Cisco, Texas.
During the last year of the Civil War, Mr. Elkins saw service in a regiment of young soldiers known as the "North Carolina Boys of 17," commanded by Col. John Anderson and Major Beasley.
Even though he was only a boy of seventy-six years old, Mr. Elkins is enjoying the best of health and is a fine specimen of physical manhood.

John Elkins left Concord just a short time after his brother William, taking up his residence at Locust, Leavel, Stanley county. Here he entered the merchandise business, carrying it on successfully for two years. He then moved to Albemarle, where he again entered the merchandise trade. He also owned and edited a newspaper at that place for a period of eight years. After this time he resided in Salisbury for several months, finally coming to Winston-Salem, where he has resided ever since.
John Elkins, though not enjoying health like his brother, nevertheless, is still an energetic man and enjoying life.

The two brothers have kept up a correspondence all this time, but from October 9, 1871, to May 19, 1923, fifty-two years, neither had seen nor spoken to the other. On last Saturday afternoon, May 19, William Elkins walked into the store of his nephew, W. B.
Elkins, of North Liberty Street, and was instantly recognized by his brother, who was present at that time. It was a meeting that is seldom seen and one that was interesting indeed. The resemblance of the two is marked and as they have not seen one another in so long a time they are together continually talking of old times and exchanging news and discussing questions that are too old for you or I even to know about.
The two left on last Wednesday morning for Concord, where they will visit friends for several weeks. William Elkins will be here until some time in October before returning to Texas.

In talking of the Lone Star State, Mr. Elkins said: "Texas is a fine country and I like it very well, but it is not any other country can beat the Old North State."

(Mr. George C. Goodman, of No. 3 township, tells us that, so far as he can ascertain, there are only four people now living in Concord who were living here when Mr. William Elkins left for Texas. These are, A. M.
Brown, D. A. Murr, J. P. Allison and R. E. McDonald.—Editor Times-Tribune.)

He Sucks the Blood.
When mice and other small animals are abundant, a weasel makes great havoc among them, says the American Forestry Magazine, killing one after another, merely to suck a part of the fresh blood, and then abandoning the bodies for some other animal.

TRY SULPHUR ON AN ECZEMA SKIN

Costs Little and Overcomes Trouble Almost Over Night

Any breaking out of the skin, even fery, itching eczema, can be quickly overcome by applying Mentho-Sulphur, declares a noted skin specialist. Because of its germ destroying properties, this sulphur preparation instantly brings ease from skin irritation, soothes and heals the eczema right up and leaves the skin clear and smooth.

It seldom fails to relieve the torment without delay. Sufferers from skin trouble should obtain a small jar of Rowley's Mentho-Sulphur from any good druggist and use it like cold cream.
