LOCAL MENTION

Mr. Joe T. Cress is confined to his home today on account of illness.

No new cases of measles or whooping cough were reported yesterday to the county health officer.

Work of grading and improving the grounds at the Litaker and Cold Water schools has been going on for the past few days.

Mr. E. B. Grady today is moving his family to the home of Mrs. M. J. Blackwelder, where they will make their home while their new home is being erected.

Mr. T. W. Smith has returned from Greensboro, where he attended a meeting of insurance men. Mr. Smith is head of the insurance department of the Southern Loan and Trust Company, of this city.

The ball fans of the city are looking forward with much interest to the game that is to be played at the Cabarrus Park tomorrow afternoon at 3:30. The Cabarrus Mill team will play the Salisbury Mill team.

Mrs. Amos Davis and daughter, Frances, returned to their home in Winesboro, S. C., Thursday. They were accompanied by Mrs. M. L. Brown, who will spend several days there with them.

"The back lots of Concord are a disgrace to the community," said Dr. S. E. Buchanan, county health officer, this morning. There is more trash in the back lots at present than usual, and something should be done toward cleaning up.

Interest in the Cabarrus Fair continues to grow, it was stated this morning by a representative who was in Kannapolis yesterday. The merchants in that place showed a live interest in the coming event, it was stated, and are already boosting the Big Fair.

The Bethel community club held its regular meeting Friday night, with a good attendance of members. Prof. J. B. Robertson made a talk, outlining the proposed system of High Schools for the county, at the conclusion of which the club voted its endorsement of the proposed plan.

Mr. Fred Patterson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jno. K. Patterson, of Concord, will sail tomorrow for Edinburgh, Scotland, where he will spend several months studying medicine. Mr. Patterson is going with a party of professors and medical students from the University of North Carolina, who will also spend some time studying abroad.

Local tennis players are looking forward with much interest to the Y tennis tournament which will be held next week to determine the 1923 champion of the city. Although a large number of players have already entered the tournament, others can also enter by notifying Joe McCaskill, at the Y. The first three matches will be played next Tuesday, beginning at 3 o'clock.

O. A. Swearingen, J. A. Blackwelder, H. B. Troutman, A. F. Hartsell and T. H. Webb have returned from Morganton, where they attended the State convention of Knights of Pythias. The Concord Pythians were delighted with the meeting, which was one of the best in the history of the organization, according to one man who was present. The Concord delegation made the trip to Morganton in automobiles.

It is probable that the part of the Kannapolis road between this city and the Country Club will be completed this week or early next week. In fact, most of the road is completed now, the only stretch remaining to be paved being just north of the city limits. Above Cook's Crossing but little work has been done on the road, but most of the workers will be moved there, it is reported, as soon as the stretch now nearing completion is finished.

The site for the County Fair is beginning to take definite form now. A large number of stalls and other buildings which will house livestock and some of the equipment for the stock, have been erected during the past week, and other buildings are under construction now. The Secretary of the Fair has about completed his program and with everything booked for the week, efforts to get the grounds in shape will be doubled from now until October, when the fair will be held.

BUREAUCRACY IS NATIONAL EVIL

So Declares Lowden, Who Denounces Infringements on State's Rights.

Williamsburg, Va., June 13 (By the Associated Press).—Bureaucracy in Washington, the seat of the national government, must be curtailed in its far-reaching progress or the value of the federal principle "will be dissipated forever." Frank O. Lowden, former Governor of Illinois today told the student body of William and Mary College in his commencement address.

Touching upon the constitution, the things which the constitution stood for, Mr. Lowden denounced the attempts of various bureaus in Washington to infringe, as he put it, upon the rights of the states as individuals.

Propaganda, he said, is daily being carried on by these bureaus, "under the guise of liberal contributions to the state, which will result in taking from the federal treasury, hundreds of millions of dollars for objects which must remain the care of the state if the state is to remain an entity in our national system."

He expressed his opinion that the country is now entering upon an era of "indiscriminate amendments to" the federal constitution. Once, he stated, the representatives of the people in congress regarded the constitution so sacredly that an amendment thereto was approached with something of awe. But today, he further declared, amendments to the constitution seem regarded as hardly more than the enactment of a statute is regarded.

Mr. Lowden said further that if this spirit was allowed to grow unchecked, "it will not be long before the states are mere satrapies, with all power issuing from Washington."

In reverting to constitutional amendments he mentioned the bill which would regulate child labor, said he thought the welfare of the child in this respect was a noble thing, but asked where, if federal intervention were permitted in this respect, will the federal government stop.

Asserting that another cause for deep thought was upon the nation, he referred to the Russian government, called it a new political creed, and cited it as one wherein "not the rights of all men, but the rights of the majority are its basis." This, Mr. Lowden termed, was a government of equality in fact, not of equality in opportunity. To such a government then, the speaker declared, the University, the college and the school house is an enemy.

Mr. Lowden touched briefly on the history of the constitution of the United States. Speaking of the convention in Independence Hall, he said it was the most remarkable meeting of free men in the history of government, measured by results achieved. The constitution that was framed there, he asserted, has been, in some sense, the model of every free government since formed. The principal of representative government, the speaker continued, was made the cornerstone of the Republic.

The federal principal of government, Mr. Lowden said, has survived the test of armed opposition; it has come down through the march of history unscathed as a great system which becomes more complex and involved. "It is constantly confronted, however," Mr. Lowden continued, "with dangers of a more insidious kind. The federal government tends to encroach more and more upon the just prerogatives of the state. Bureaucracy at Washington is always bent to extend its power. It does not distinguish between those functions which pertain to the federal government and those which under our scheme of government belong exclusively to the state. "Hitherto it has found the states jealous of their rights and capable of resisting this tendency. So the Bureaucracy now seek to gain by bribes what they failed to gain by other means. During the great war, the federal government, in order to give unity to our efforts, undertook to do many things which the states had formerly done. It intruded into the administration of almost every field of state activity such as education, employment and public health. "This resulted, in a measure in the
