Harding Funeral Train Still Further Delayed PLACED IN MAUSOLEUM

Railroad Officials Predict OFFICIAL CEREMONIES AT WASHINGTON WILL END That It May Be Nine or Ten O'clock Tonight Before It Gets to Washington.

CANNOT REGAIN THE LOST TIME

Thousands Upon Thousands

On Board Harding Funeral Train, Youngstown, Ohio, Aug. 7 (By the Associated Press).—Inability to regain during the night the time lost yesterday caused railroad officials in charge of the funeral train of President Harding to predict on arriving here at 9:10 today that it might be around 9 or 10 o'clock tonight before the lend of the trip is reached at Washington.

Train Loses More Time.

Gallery Junction, Pa., Aug. 7.—The entire population of the villages and hamlets, augmented by hundreds who came from the country section beyond the railroad flanked the Baltimore & Ohio tracks as the Hagding funeral train running at reduced speed, passed through western Pennsylvania. The mourners are so numerous that the train lost additional time on its journey to Washington.

Traffic was halted for blocks at every street intersection and the people were massed so densely along the right of way that the train could only creep and at times stopped altogether. It probably was the greatest demonstration for a public figure the city has ever witnessed and can compare only with the reception accorded the body of the only other chief executive of the nation ever brought here—Abraham Lincoln, in 1865.

Not only did people gather in the hot, dusty rallpoad yards and stand for hours wedged so tightly together that they could scarcely breathe, but they peered by the hundreds from windows and from hopse-tops. Every point of vantage had
