Macfadden Launches New Magazine

Cover of Bernarr Macfadden's New Magazine

New York, Aug. 16.—Bernarr Macfadden, the President of the Macfadden Publications, Inc., owner of Physical Culture, True Story, Movie Weekly, National Brain Power, Beautiful Womanhood and the Metropolitan Magazine, has electrified the publishing world by launching a new magazine of startling purport.

Disregarding the usual conservative "first printing" policy, he has pressed running night and day to turn out an initial issue, running into hundreds of thousands.

In his salutatory, which has attracted national comment, Mr. Macfadden says: "With this issue, True Romances come to life. In it we will attempt to present the true story weighted with the best type of human interest. But there is a higher object for our existence than the mere telling of stories. We claim to be the Salvation Army of the magazine world."

"We intend to visit the homes of the poor; to go down into the dreags of human life. We will describe the squalor, the filthiness of the lives of these people, but every story will present a great lesson. * * * We will put out warning signs in the form of tragic and dramatic experiences that will enable those who are harboring thoughts of misdeeds to see the penalties that they have to pay."

"We expect to make this magazine of fascinating interest from cover to cover. * * * Also you may read of the muck and mire of the lives of the characters presented therein."

Mr. Fulton Oursler, the supervising editor of all Macfadden publications, promises that in the pages of True Romances the reader will find not only stories from the strange book of human life, not only the romances of reality, the treasure out of the hearts of people who have really lived, but even more than adventure and excitement and thrills, Mr. Grove Wilson, a widely known and brilliant magazine man, is in editorial charge.

Mr. Macfadden's rise as a publisher of national prominence has been phenomenal. He is even better known, however, as the Father of Physical Culture, whose name is listed for imperishable fame among those who have served their fellow men courageously—great in the arduous greatness of things done.

Use of Scopolamine Would Violate Two Fundamental Rules of Common Law

By DR. GEORGE W. KIRCHWEY, Penologist.

SUPPOSE the suspect did tell the truth under the influence of scopolamine, the "drug-that-makes-you-tell-the-truth" that created such a sensation in San Quentin. Would evidence obtained through its use be admissible in a court of law? No.

Our system of law is accusatorial rather than inquisitorial. Men used to be tortured to make them confess. The rack and thumbscrew were used. The idea may have been at one time to get the truth, but the effect was to bring a confession from the victim.

The use of scopolamine might be classed as a mild form of torture; but, assuming that it does bring out the truth, it would violate two fundamental rules of our common law. The first of these is that the accused person may not be questioned after arrest or during a magisterial hearing, and the second is that torture may not be used to extort the truth.

In many European continental countries the magisterial function is inquisitorial. He questions the witness, heckles him, tries to wring the truth out of him.

In the English common law this is not done; it is not possible. Under our system the accused man cannot be questioned either preliminary to or during his trial. A confession may not be obtained from a man unless it is a free confession, given without fear or favor. Otherwise it cannot be produced in court. No immunity can be promised. A confession obtained under promise of immunity can't be introduced.

All that can be done is for the accused to be asked whether he wishes to make any statement, and even then the police official must caution him that anything he may say will be used against him. Indeed, we carry it to the point that the district attorney may not draw the attention of the jury to the fact that the accused did not take the witness stand. To do so is to furnish a basis for a new trial, and the higher court must grant a new trial.

Under the effects of scopolamine you will get the false and true, the fact and fantasy bubbling to the surface. If a man in his senses cannot be made to talk, how can he be made to talk by robbing him of his senses.

Four Killed in Panic at French Bull Fight

Paris, Aug. 15.—Four persons were killed and twenty-five injured this afternoon when a bull stamped the crowd at the annual amateur bull fight held near Arles on the Fete of the Assumption. Nine of the injuries are in a serious condition.

It is customary for the youths of Provence who possess skill in the bull ring to participate in this festival combat, which is a great attraction to the provincial fair ones. This explains the incident of today, which could not have occurred at a professional fight.

The maddened animal leaped the barrier into the enclosure reserved for the amateur fighters, who were waiting for a chance to demonstrate their skill. Instantly the young men climbed into the grandstand, where the crowd was thrown into a panic. As the spectators rushed toward the upper tiers of seats the stand fell, burying many in the debris.

Barbers Can't Charge For Unordered Frills

New York, Aug. 16.—If 20 cents is the fixed tariff for a shave in a barber shop, that is all a barber in the place may charge a patron who asks for nothing but a shave.

This was the ruling of Magistrate Oberwager in Tombs Court imposing a fine of $25 on Anthony Santore, barber, at No. 298 Broadway.

Santore was arrested recently on complaint of A. W. Morf, manager of the Woodstock Typewriter Company. He failed to tip the barber who shaved him and when he gave Santore 50 cents he received 20 cents change.

Morf caused Santore's arrest, alleging the proprietor told him that when patrons failed to tip, the amount was added to their charge, as barbers would not work without tips.

In court Santore denied this, saying the additional 10 cents was for a hot towel and other special attention.

FLOOD WATERS ARE HEADED FOR DENVER

Torrent is Sweeping Down the Platte Canyon Toward Denver—Residents Being Warned.

Denver, Colo., Aug. 16.—Flood waters are sweeping down the Platte canyon toward Denver, following a terrific cloudburst early tonight, according to information received at the Denver police department shortly after 8 o'clock.

Every available policeman has been rushed to the lowlands bordering the Platte river outside of Denver, and residents are being warned. The flood waters are expected to reach here in half an hour.

Water is spreading over the lowlands at Littleton 10 miles from here and near Englewood, a suburb. Telephone operators at summer resorts in the Platte canyon, where the water is rising notified the Denver police department.

No loss of life has been reported thus far.

At 3:30 o'clock, all telephone connections with Littleton were reported to have gone down.

The first indications of the near approach of the high waters to the city were given shortly after 9 o'clock when patrolmen reported that the Platte river was rising near Overland park, the motor tourist camp on the outskirts of the city, where approximately 3,500 automobiles are encamped.

Shortly after houses nearby, on the lowlands, besides the river banks were inundated. The water rose above the ground floors of the residence in many instances, and the occupants fled with such belongings as they could hastily gather together.

The rise in the river was rapid but it did not strike the city in the form of a wall of water as had been feared.

In the Valverde district which is about two miles from the business districts the basements and ground floors of many homes were reported flooded.

The Dye Shop Gives Way to the Chromatic Scale

Once upon a time—and it was even so recently as early this Spring, if one wished to be an exponent of the mode one had to look as if one had just stepped out of the dye pot. Ladies were known to come home in tears from the shoe shops because no calves grew whose skins were the exact shade of their new dress. Hats, gloves, hose and even amber beads had to touch the same note in the chromatic scale or they were considered to be too hopelessly out of tune to be worn.

But with summer come hints that subtler melodies are to be the vogue, and the more delicate art of blending colors or even combining opposite shades is being developed. Black and white is sadly inadequate to show the delicious shade of Nile green tiffen, a lustrous piece from the South Manchester looms, that makes the little frock in the picture. The hat is a doll peacock blue with just a reflection of green in its taffeta depths, the ribbon cockade of Indian red. White stockings and brooze strapless pumps complete the very original effect.

The dress is made with a very modified basque, a plain front with flounces that extend, except in the case of the top one, only around the sides and back. Cuffs flare and a collar lies with demure flattery beneath a crisp narrow organdie band.

A procession of very small self-colored buttons marches down the front to be stopped by a sm^l but determined

Immigration's Problems Are Just Now Interesting and Very Perplexing

By MAJ. H. H. CURRAN, in New York World.

Immigration is at present interesting to everybody. And everybody seems to have a plan to solve its problems immediately. People will tell you on the telephone how to deal with immigration thoroughly.

At present we have an immediate, pressing problem: how to get rid of thousands of immigrants weekly so that the couple of thousand arriving daily can be handled. Two-thirds of the immigrants who arrive in this country land at Ellis Island, and in the last four days I have been confronted with all the ramifications of that problem. During the last week and up to Saturday night we will have handled more than 16,000 immigrants. The most we can accommodate easily are 2,000 each day, so you see that we have cause for work and worry.

For those who can regard it impersonally this race for port is a pretty problem in the nature of chess and with all the elements of a game of chance, because we never know exactly how many people we shall have to accommodate. But for those who are also interested in humanity our problem is not merely a pretty and perplexing game. What we do means comfort or lack of comfort for thousands, and I am interested in preventing suffering.

Not a question of who makes NO mistakes, but who makes Least mistakes. Cartoon from The Farm Journal, August 1923.
