THEY ARE ALL GUILTY.

Judge Harding, presiding recently at a term of Mecklenburg County Superior Court, pointed out very specifically that in the eyes of the law the man who buys and drinks liquor is as guilty as the man who makes and sells it.

The decision of Judge Harding was announced after Charlotte Church workers appeared in court to present a plea of mercy in the case of a convicted bootlegger. As Judge Harding will preside in this county within several months, it is interesting to get his views on this matter.

"The man who drinks whiskey and the man who buys whiskey are just as guilty in the eyes of the law as is the man who makes it. With the amendment of the liquor laws of the State, all distinction between the charges brought against the distiller and the drinker was wiped out.

"The prohibitionists have now reached the end toward which we have been striving. We have at last come out boldly and decreed that there shall be no drinking. We don't care how much whiskey is made nor how much is sold if no one drinks it.

LEARNING FROM EXPERIENCE.

R. D. Goodman, county farm agent, declares it is most important that farmers should complete their cotton picking as early as possible so they can break up their cotton lands. Mr. Goodman delivered the same warning last year, but at that time he was not heard by as many men as have this year taken his advice.

There is a reason for the increased interest in Mr. Goodman's warning. The farmers are learning from experience that it is best to fight the boll weevil with every agency at their command and they are doing everything possible to check its spread.

And the early breaking up of the cotton fields gives the farmer a start next Spring. It will be easier to work the field that was plowed this fall with a tractor or heavy horse-drawn implement. Just what the weevil is going to do in this county in the future is still a problem. In some sections of the county the insect did great damage this year. In others it did little damage. But there is no question about its presence or the destruction it wrought. It has to be fought or cotton abandoned.

before the weevil reached North and South Carolina.

MURDER TRIAL WILL CONSUME SEVERAL DAYS

Morgan to Be Tried For Life For Shooting of Honeycutt of Oakboro Last August.

Judge Morgan, of Oakboro, will defend his life in Superior Court here next week, he being charged in the first degree with the murder of Oral Honeycutt August 12th on the road between Oakboro and Stanfield.

The facts in the murder case, as brought out in the preliminary hearing, were that there was bad feeling between Morgan and Honeycutt on account of the latter's accusation that Morgan had written a libelous letter concerning Honeycutt. Morgan's denial of the accusation and offer to go with Honeycutt to the parties in question and clear the matter brought words that left the matter ripe for further exchanges when the two met on the road a few miles from Oakboro.

A brilliant array of lawyers representing both sides have been retained, indicating that the case will be hard fought both as to defense and prosecution. State Solicitor F. D. Phillips, of Rockingham, County Solicitor W. E. Smith, J. R. Price, Esq., and H. C. Turner, Esq., represent the State, while the defense will be represented by Brown and Sikes, R. L. Smith, Esq., and L. R. Burleson, Esq.

Another case which aroused much interest at the time of the occurrence of the tragedy is that against Miss Mary Milton, a young lady living several miles east of Albemarle, who is charged with manslaughter in connection with the killing of Mr. Allen Carver when struck by her automobile near the ball park last August. This case has a number of phases to which attach deep public interest.

NO CAUSE FOR COMPLAINT

Things Are Moving on Nicely in the Old North State.

Wilson, N. C., Nov. 16.—In the opinion of Carl Goerch, editor of the Wilson Mirror, North Carolina has no single predominant need; "things are moving very nicely" in the Old North State and there is "no cause for complaint."

Quoted as to what in his opinion is North Carolina's greatest need, Mr. Goerch made the following answer: "When do you consider the most beautiful motion picture actress on the screen today?" "Practically everyone has some special favorite; let us presume that yours is Mary Pickford."

"And now, let us presume further that you received a letter from some one in a distant city, asking you what Mary Pickford needs to make herself beautiful."

"You know exactly how you would feel, don't you? And that is exactly how I feel in trying to answer the question relative to North Carolina's greatest need."

"There aint no such animal."

Intelligence

This German police dog, owned by Allan Mellon, daughter of the secretary of the treasury, certainly is the cat's eye-brows. He can flirt, smoke cigarette, wear spectacles, and pose for photographs, which is something.

"To prove it, first let us take up the essentials and requisites of a progressive development."

"Among the first to be mentioned probably will be a good educational system. In this connection, everyone knows that North Carolina has the finest school in the South. This is true not only of the towns, but of the rural districts, as well. Splendid equipped brick buildings have superseded the one-room frame structures which formerly were to be seen nestling by the road side. Our greatest need certainly is not along educational lines."

"We lead the nation in road building. Consequently, we can pass up this feature of development without further attention. Our greatest need certainly will not be found there."

"How about agriculture? A state that can jump up to fourth place in the Union, from an agricultural standpoint, certainly is going some. And the best of it is that we are making more progress in farming all the time. Idle acres are being reclaimed; new settlers are coming here from other parts of the country. Diversified farming is being given much publicity."

"Manufacturing industries? We have our share of them. For years certain sections have been bowling for more factories and more mills. North Carolina, however, doesn't need so many industries. This is primarily an agricultural section and not industrial center. We have interested quite a number of mills and factories in locating here and others are coming from time to time. Our progress in this direction is very satisfactory."

"Natural resources? We have a fine climate, waterway transportation facilities and every formation of soil from the mountains in the west to the coastal plain in the east."

"What, then, is North Carolina's greatest need?" "For answer, we refer you to the question concerning Miss Pickford's greatest requisite for beauty."

"A state that is leading the South can have no greatest need. We may need a number of smaller things, incident with our progress and development, but we can get along without them just as well. We are beginning to advertise ourselves in more aggressive form and the rest of the country is beginning to find out something about North Carolina. Things are moving along very nicely, thank you, with no cause for complaint."

LOWLY JOBS WORKED BY GERMANS TO INCREASE INCOMES

Professional Men Doing Something as Big Professions to Make Living. Leipzig, Nov. 16.—This is a time of by-professions in Germany. Doctors, lawyers, teachers, professors, scientists, dentists, preachers, government employees and actors who still cling to their old calling are, for the most part, doing something else in their free time to piece out their incomes.

DINNER STORIES

An old lady walked into the office of the judge of probate and asked: "Are you the judge of reprobates?" "Well, that's it, I expect," quoth the old lady. "You see, my father died detested and left several little infidels, and I want to be their executioner."

Mild But Suggestive. The more than usual lack of intelligence among the students that morning had got under the professor's skin. "Class is dismissed," he said, exasperatedly. "Please don't flap your ears as you pass out."

He—Do you think that you could learn to love me? She—I'm afraid not. T—'Tis as I feared—too old to learn.

"Here," said the salesman, "is a pair of pajamas you'll never wear out."

"Er—yes, they are rather loud for street wear, aren't they?" "Oh, Marjorie, wouldn't you like to have been made love to by a knight of old?" "No, dear; sitting on an iron knee never did attract me any."

Preserved Penny—Aren't you paying the savages too much for that land? Goodman Fish—Perhaps; but then they are to pay me the equivalent annually for the privilege of hunting on the land.

Tom—They say people with opposite characteristics make the happiest marriages. Tim—Yes, that's why I'm looking for a girl with money.

Hub—What, $100 for that hat? Why there's nothing but a $5 frame and a few dollars worth of trimmings. Wife—And $90 worth of style, dear.

He—It wouldn't be much trouble for us to marry, my father is a minister, you know. She—Well, let's have a try at it anyway—my dad's a lawyer.
