COLLEGE TEACHERS SAP FAITH IN BIBLE, IS BRYAN'S CHARGE

Commoner, Appearing at Fundamentalist Meeting, Hotly Attacks the Evolution Theory. New York World. William Jennings Bryan, appearing unexpectedly on the platform at Calvary Baptist Church yesterday afternoon, featured the last day of the series of Fundamentalist mass meetings with a sarcastic accusation of college men and college teachers.

"When I first opposed evolution I was told by a minister that a thinking man couldn't agree with me," said Bryan. "I answered that only two per cent. of the population were college graduates and that 98 per cent. still had souls."

"I was informed by Prof. J. H. Leuba, of Bryn Mawr, that more than half of the 6,500 scientists we have in the country don't believe in God. From the same source I have the information that in nine colleges it was found 15 per cent. of the freshmen, 30 per cent. of the sophomores and from 40 to 45 per cent. of the graduates have discarded the principles of Christianity.

"The change in these students is due to their teachers, who are undermining the faith of our boys and girls in the Bible. If they shake one's faith they also shake one's morality."

Discussing the Unitarian Church, Bryan put in another dig at college graduates. He pointed out that the Unitarians deny the Virgin birth of Christ, the Biblical miracles and the Resurrection, and then he inquired, "Does it grow?"

The Unitarian Church is 100 years old and yet has less than 100,000 members," he continued. "But it has the highest percentage of college graduates."

If we were to make a choice between science and religion, Bryan declared, he would have his son learn the "Rock of Ages" rather than the ages of rock. And he insisted that the present controversy between the Fundamentalists and the Modernists, including the question whether evolution should be taught, is the greatest issue in the world today.

CAN BUILD A RAILROAD ACROSS THE MOUNTAIN

Says Frank Miller, Engineer—Bowling Says Constitutionality is Assured. Greensboro News.

Tam C. Bowler, member of the Appalachian and Western North Carolina railway commission, in Greensboro last night after a meeting of the commission in Raleigh yesterday announced that Attorney General Manning had informed the commission that there was no question as to the constitutionality of the $50,000 appropriation for preliminary surveys and that he would shortly deliver an opinion to that effect.

At the same time Frank T. Miller, engineer for the commission, made public a report submitted yesterday to the effect that the preliminary surveys for the proposed railroad had gone far enough now to establish definitely the fact that at least two and probably three feasible and practicable lines had been run by the engineers. On any one of the three lines, Mr. Miller thinks, a railroad could be built within the limit of grade and curvature laid down by the commission.

Collegiate Institute Basketball Team.

Mt. Pleasant, N. C., Dec. 10.—The basketball team of the Collegiate Institute will open its season Wednesday when they play the fast Edwards Business College team from High Point on the home grounds. Although four of last year's varsity, including the famous Ray Roberts, were lost to the team through graduation, it is expected that the team this year will be one which will give any opponent in the same class a good deal of trouble.

This year's schedule will include games with the Y. M. C. A. teams of Concord and Charlotte. A number of the stronger high school teams of the state will be played also. Everything points towards a successful season for basketball with more interest being shown than ever before.
