Concord and Cabarrus county joined hands today in paying homage to the heroes of the Confederacy, with appropriate and beautiful Memorial Day exercises. The exercises were held today instead of tomorrow, which is Memorial Day, because of the fact that the children will not be in school tomorrow and it would be difficult to get them together for the exercises.

The new high school auditorium was used for the exercises and it was filled with veterns, Daughters of the Confederacy, high school students and other interested spectators. The children of the grammar and primary schools were not taken to the auditorium but after the exercises at the school they formed a line of march that moved to the court.

Mr. Foote told the wholesalers it was up to them as to whether or not they should have large sums tied up in a great variety of slow moving goods. The 26-inch dress material, he said, was "inherited" from the time when wool goods were produced in that width and 54-inch material was unknown.

Efforts are being made, he said, to reduce the 900 color shades on the market to 44. The National association of finishers of cotton fabrics and textile color card associations are working on the idea.

Senator Wheeler,

(By the Associated Press.)

Washington, May 9.—John S. Pratt, the special assistant attorney general who assisted in securing the indictment against Senator Wheeler in Montana, today laid before the Senate committee investigating the subject the documentary evidence on which the indictment was partially based.

The material consisted of photostatic reproductions of correspondence said to have passed between Senator Wheeler and Gordon Campbell, the Montana oil leged to have appeared unlawfully before the Interior Department.

One letter, ostensibly from Wheeler to Campbell, dated March S, 1923, asked Campbell "to have your office send me details of permits in order that when I take it up I may be able to discuss it intelligently with the Department of the Interior."

Pratt also produced what purported

Pratt also produced what purported to be a letter dated May 5, 1923, in which Gordon Campbell offered E. S. Booth, the solicitor of the Interior Department, 40 acres of land out of one oil permit, and suggested that 40 acres additional be assigned to F. M. Goodwin, assistant secretary of the interior if the permit could be granted.

The letter said that if Campbell "could get his hooks" on the land the two officials assisting, they could "make more money than they would otherwise make in a long time."

Booth, responding on May 19, according to the records, said he would take the matter up with Goodwin, although he himself had left the Interior department on May 1st.
