GREENSBORO COLLEGE GETS $30,000 OFFER

B. N. Duke Make Proposition to Give $25,000 and W. W. Flowers $5,000.

Greenboro News.

Conditional gifts of $30,000 to the Greensboro college endowment fund were announced yesterday by President S. B. Turrentine.

While in New York last week President Turrentine received an offer from B. N. Duke to give $25,000 and from W. W. Flowers to give $5,000 provided the remainder of the $300,000 sought is obtained. Mr. Duke is widely known for his contributions to Trinity college and has made one gift of $10,000 to Greensboro college. Mr. Flowers, formerly of Taylorsville, now with Liggett and Myers Tobacco company, has also displayed interest in the institution.

Both these gifts are directed to be applied on the endowment fund to be made of $500,000. Already the board of trustees of Greensboro college had recommended that the college endowment be raised to half a million dollars. The alumni of the college have agreed to undertake the raising of $100,000 of this amount. Over $10,000 of the last named fund was pledged a few days before and during last commencement in May.

USE THE PENNY COLUMN—IT PAYS

Hunt's Washington Letter

BY HARRY B. HUNT, NEA Service Staff Writer.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Of the 2194 delegates and alternates who will hold the right to vote for Democratic presidential candidates at New York, 2166 might as well be voteless.

For in the final showdown the men who emerge as Democratic standard bearers will be determined within a little group numbering not more than 50 individuals. These are the men who will control the men who hold the votes, after the deadlock has nullified the "instructions" by which the majority of delegations will be bound at the start.

Some of these, perhaps half a dozen, qualify under the designation of "bosses." The remaining 20-odd, as befitting their dignity and the scope of their influence, are "party leaders."

But together, the bosses and the leaders, a mere handful in number, will decide who is to be the candidate.

TAMMANY'S spokesman, together with Norman Mack of Buffalo, former Democratic chairman, and Frank Hague of New Jersey, will decide what disposition is to be made of the Smith strength should the hour come when they admit his defeat.

Tom Taggart of Indiana, Joseph M. Curley of Massachusetts and George Brennan of Illinois complete the sextet as "bosses" who will be "in on" the final arrangements.

LEADING candidates at the time of the deadlock, of course, will have some say-so as to what combinations will next be tried out. When McAdoo gives up, if that hour arrives, his wishes will be followed and in using a gradual switch to the rival most in his favor. If that fails to draw support from other camps, another test with another dark horse will be made.

This see-sawing, this tentative feeling out of sentiment for the various candidates, may continue through many ballots. In these manipulations all sorts of combinations may be tried out, not necessarily by McAdoo and his leaders but by Smith, Glass, Davis, Underwood, Ritchie and their lieutenants. On the basis of favor shown during this period of jockeying will come the final showdown.

IN addition to the "bosses" and the major candidates involved, the men who will have a hand in shaping the final decision, and who will command enough strength to make their decision stick include:

Cordell Hull, present national chairman; Homer Cummings, former chairman; George White, who managed the Cox campaign; Senator Pat Harrison, keynote speaker; Senator Joe Robinson, Democratic Senate leader; E. T. Meredith of Iowa, former secretary of agriculture; "Tom" Love of Texas; William Kemper, Missouri; Walsh of Montana, oil inquisitor; Fred Lynch of Minnesota; Bernard M. Boruch of New York; Vance McCormick of Pennsylvania; and Senator Simmons of North Carolina; Stanley of Kentucky and Swanson of Virginia.

SOMEWHERE in that list of bosses, leaders and Democrats of influence lies the combination that will name the Democratic leader.

But just what that combination will be, how it will shape and why, can only be guessed at in advance.

RALSTON of Indiana, it may be noted, although mentioned as among the first list of "dark horse" possibilities, is not included. Ralston's fate will be determined irrespective of any activities by himself.

The "uninstructed" Indiana delegation will be in the hands of Taggart, who will start them in for Ralston, without his name having been placed formally before the convention. Where Ralston and the Indiana votes finally wind up will be determined, as will the result of the convention by the control of 30 men over the 1923 ballots cast.

BUSTLE OF MODERN LIFE INCREASES VOGUE OF COAT FROCK

COAT frocks are worn more and more. It is perhaps on account of the strenuous life we lead that women are so much in love with these coat dresses, made to be put on like a coat in a minute, and generally fastened on the left side, either with a single large button, or with a row of smaller ones. At the Longchamps Races, a few weeks ago, many coat frocks were seen. Henri Creange writes us from Paris a Patou model being especially admired. The coat frock is especially charming when it is developed in the model sketched. The slight "lift" of the lapped over skirt is very smart. The dress fits snugly and is trimly buttoned part way down on the side. The rest of the buttons are left undone, which serves the double purpose of adding chic to the costume, and, piece of luck, to the wearer.

The severity which is sometimes too evident in the coat frock is here completely relieved by the charming femininity of a soft ruffled gumpie and collar, and ruffles on the sleeves. This lingere trimming can be either of organdy, satin de Lyon, or silk tulle, and with two sets she may be always dainty.

The little hat is one of the seasonal crown semi-sport shapes, and is quite easy to manufacture. It is also made of the Drapaea.

The vogue for simplicity, thin lines, and fabric hats are worn by smart women for practically all daytime occasions.

25 Minutes gas for a full meal

then COOK with the Gas Turned Off

With the gas on but 25 minutes, can you go away for the afternoon and return to find a perfectly cooked meal? You could if you cooked as some women in this city do—on the Chambers Fireless Gas Range.

You would not only free your hours for many things you have in mind, but would cut your gas bills in half and make food more delicious by keeping the flesh juices in.

For the dishes you roasted or baked in the specially insulated Chambers Oven and those you boiled or stewed under the Thermomane, you would burn gas only a few minutes, then turn it off.

Retained heat would finish the cooking and on returning you could count your gains in economy of gas, time, effort, food and flavor.
