ROTARIANS LEARN ABOUT JACKSON BOYS' SCHOOL

Superintendent and Students Give Program at Luncheon—Make Fine Impression.

Charlotte Observer, 25th.

Stonewall Jackson Training School at Concord, the state training school for boys, had the dominant place on the program of Charlotte Rotary club at its weekly luncheon Tuesday at the Chamber of Commerce. Present were Charles E. Boger, superintendent of the institution, and Mrs. Boger, Miss Goodman, of the faculty, and three boys who are inmates of the institution, Charles Maynard, Albert Hill and J. J. Jones, the latter a Charlotte boy.

A brief program staged by the representatives of the institution was an impressive revelation of what the Jackson Training School is and what it is doing. Charles Maynard, a boy apparently 16 or 17 years of age, elicited an ovation by his solo singing, accompanied on the piano by Miss Goodman. First he sang "Mother MacLure" and as an encore selection sang "Carolina Rose." But the applause was so enthusiastic and prolonged that he sang another encore, "Peggy O'Neil."

Two smaller boys, apparently 12 or 13 years of age, gave recitals, and their absolute composure and complete absence of stage fright, with their impressive and forceful delivery, made a deep impression upon their audience. Master Jones recited a poem, "It Couldn't Be Done," and Master Hill recited another poem, "That's Pop," followed by Bertin Bralley's now familiar "As Soon As You Get to North Carolina."

Questioned by Rotarian John W. Fox, who introduced the guests, Mr. Boger stated that a complete survey of all the boys who had gone out from the Stonewall Jackson Training School in the 14 years of its history showed that 80 per cent of them had made good after leaving the school. There are in the institution now 398 boys. The school began 14 years ago with one building; now it has 12 in use and two others in course of erection. These buildings have been provided by the state, by various counties, by the Kings Daughters and other organizations and individuals.

The institution is controlled by a board of directors, part of whose membership is appointed by the governor of the state and part elected by the board. The state legislature at last session appropriated $120,000 a year for maintenance and $35,000 for two years for permanent improvements.

At the beginning of the day's program two little girls, Pauline Bradley, daughter of Dan Bradley, and Ruth Bradley, daughter of J. M. Bradley, delighted the assembly with several numbers which they played on the ukulele, first accompanying Rotarian Melvin O'Grady and the assembly in singing "It Ain't Nothin' to Me Now," and then singing one or two pieces themselves, playing their own accompaniment.

NO TRACE FOUND OF MISSING CONCORD GIRL

At Least Police Officers Have Not Been Notified if Girl Has Been Found.

Police officers this morning stated that they had not been advised of the finding of Leah May Starves, 15-year-old Concord girl who disappeared last week, and so far as they know she is still missing. The officers were advised last week by parents of the girl that she was missing, but they have heard nothing of the matter since Sunday when the father stated to them that he had made a trip to Greenville, S. C., where he believed his daughter had gone, and had been unable to locate her there.

It is said that the parents of the girl believe she left Concord in the company of another woman and later joined two men. The party was believed to have gone to Greenville and the police there assisted in a search for them, but they were not found.

Interest Growing in the Waldrop Campaign.

The service Tuesday night under the tent on the school ground of No. 2 school was well attended, there being a large number present, and everyone seemed to be taking a good interest in each service. Evangelist Waldrop preached from Luke 14:28. His subject was "Counting the Cost." The congregation was very attentive to the message of the evening. The preacher was somewhat handicapped owing to the fact that he got an over-draft of damp air Monday night and it affected his vocal cords, making it very difficult for him to speak. Evangelist Waldrop's message was presented under two main heads: First, "The Cost of Being a Christian"; second "The Cost of Not Being a Christian." The preacher held up a high standard of Christianity and urged the importance of Christians living up to the Bible standard. He also showed the loss of not being a Christian, in this life and also in the life to come, stressing the point that the greatest loss that any man can have is a life spent here without Christ, and the greatest sorrow that can possibly come to a human soul is when he stands before God to give account of his stewardship in this life, and finds that he must face the issue without Christ as his advocate.

The services have shown a fine spirit on the part of all the pastors and the audience. So far as we know, this is one of the first meetings of its kind ever held in Concord, and we are sure it will prove a great blessing to the town at large.

Evangelist Waldrop is not preaching denominationalism, but in a very able and strong way he is preaching Jesus Christ. What the old world needs greatly is more men and preachers like Evangelist Waldrop.

The singing is fine. The choirs of the different churches are falling in line nicely. Also the performance at the piano by R. P. Benson Tuesday night was appreciated by all, especially by the music director, Prof. Jones, and we give a special invitation to each and every service as he is a good church worker and a useful man.
