McAdoo Supporters Get Another Chance to Show Support When Seconding Speech Was Made Today.

SMITH ALSO GETS ROUSING WELCOME

Hundreds of Supporters Were Packed Into Hall to Boost Him.—Speech Made by Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Madison Square Garden, New York, June 26.—All set for a demonstration for Alfred E. Smith, the Democratic National Convention today opened up with a new demonstration for Wm. G. McAdoo.

Immediately the smoldering embers of yesterday's demonstration for McAdoo sprang to life, and the McAdoo demonstration was on anew with fresh vigor and force after an overnight rest.

State standards were rushed into the aisles at the head of a pushing, milling column of McAdoo boosters, who pushed and wormed their way through the hundreds packed there for Smith, with some difficulty, but no disorder.

Chairman Walsh rebuked the noise makers and got a round of applause. The New York delegation as if disclaiming responsibility for the rumpus in the galleries, stood up in a testimonial of approval for Chairman Walsh.

This was another day of tumult and fever interspersed with oratory. Only three nominations had been made yesterday when adjournment ended the one-hour demonstration staged in behalf of McAdoo, and about seventeen nominations remained on the schedule.

The platform advanced early today by a drafting sub-committee to the point of being put into its first tentative form, but with the Ku Klux Klan and league of nations proposals, is not to be taken up until all of the nominating speeches have been made.

Madison Square Garden, New York, June 26.—Four years ago in the Democratic national convention at San Francisco, a vigorous young man in the flower of his youth secured the nomination of Governor Al Smith, and won for himself the vice presidential nomination.

Today the same young man still rich in the vigor of his mind, but fighting gamely against the creeping inroads of infantile paralysis, was assisted to the platform in Madison Square Garden to nominate the Governor of New York for the Presidency.

He was Franklin D. Roosevelt, former assistant secretary of the navy, and manager of Governor Smith's campaign. He stood in the place of the late W. Bourke Cockran, now gone to his grave, and whose brilliant oratory of four years ago still was fresh in the minds of the delegates.

With a husky negro on one side and a 200-pound negro policeman on the other, Mr. Roosevelt virtually carried up the stairway leading to the speaker's platform and placed in a chair. But he was laughing and smiling gamely all the time, and when the effort was over the policeman stood beside Mr. Roosevelt's chair and applauded.

And then, when the course of the roll call for the nomination of candidates, Connecticut yielded to New York, and the convention realized that the crippled but smiling young man on the platform was going to nominate Governor Smith, a roar went up that fairly lifted the Madison Square Garden roof.

With the assistance of the men about him Mr. Roosevelt lifted himself to his feet on his crutches and made his way to the speaker's desk with effort and probably pain, propped himself against the table, and laying aside his crutches began his address. The roaring demonstrations continued until Mr. Roosevelt himself quieted it.

GOV. SMITH GETS OVATION

(By the Associated Press.) Madison Square Garden, June 26.—Having given a renewed but brief demonstration for Wm. G. McAdoo, the Democratic national convention today plunged into a rip-roaring demonstration for Alfred E. Smith that was going on unabated more than an hour after it started.

Like the principal McAdoo demonstration of yesterday, the Smith demonstration was aided and pushed along by a complete organization of demonstrators, hundreds of whom marched into the hall from the outside, bearing banners and noise making devices.

Galleries and guest sections obviously filled with friends of the New York Governor for today's event, let out a continuous series of yells, howls and whistles. No sooner had Franklin D. Roosevelt finished his speech placing the New York Governor in nomination than the racket broke loose. Bands, rosters armed with megaphones, cheer leaders, singers and others with all the equipment of professional demonstrators, burst out into the aisles and began a procession about the hall.

From the speaker's stand it appeared that probably half the delegate space was taken up by the demonstration, either by contributing to the marching parties which bore various state standards, or by standing on chairs and waving flags and joining the cheering.

The other section of delegate space, apparently interested in looking at the show, stood up, but gave no evidence of joining. In the machinery of the demonstration about every device seen heretofore and some new ones appeared. Children as young as three and four years were used.

Some of them were dressed as ragamuffins, others as newbies, and all of them had automobile license plates hung around their necks bearing the words "All Smith."

Fathers who presumably had rented the children out for the occasion, tried to balance some of them on the high rail about the speaker's stand, fifteen feet above the floor, with the result that the youngsters were scared to death and belabored lustily. After some experiments, the children were removed. Although state standards were carried in the procession, the delegate spaces remained well filled while it was going on.

The galleries, the professional demonstrators, and the rosters who had been packed into the galleries up under the roofs, and into every nook and cranny on the floor, made the bulk of the noise, and at times actually drowned out the band.

From the speaker's stand it appeared that probably half the delegate space was taken up by the demonstration, either by contributing to the marching parties which bore various state standards, or by standing on chairs and waving flags and joining the cheering.

At the hour and a quarter mark Mr. Roosevelt waved to his lieutenants on the floor to quiet the demonstration. Senator Walsh began hammering with the gavel and Mr. Roosevelt was lifted up beside him. Supported on his crutches, he raised a hand for silence, and slowly the great hall began to quiet down.

Anna Case was brought to the front of the platform and brought the crowd at last to complete order by singing the Star Spangled Banner. After some difficulty order was restored, and Chairman Walsh directed the secretary to continue with the call of the roll.

The Big Bosses

There was more than passing significance in the conference here pictured between George Bryan, big Democratic boss of Chicago, and Tom Taggart of Indiana.

THE COTTON MARKET There was a Renewal of Covering on July Shorts During Early Trading.

New York, June 26.—There was a renewal of covering by July shorts in the cotton market during today's early trading. A few additional notices were issued, but they evidently brought out no offerings of consequence, and after selling at 29.10 at the opening, July soon advanced to 29.47, or 34 points net higher.

SECRETARY MELLON HEARD IN MEETING. Secretary of the Treasury Called as a Witness for the Defense.

New York, June 26.—Secretary of the Treasury Mellon today was called as a witness for the defense in the trial of Gaston B. Means, former special agent of the Department of Justice, and Elmer W. Jarnecke, charged with violations of the prohibition law.

Hiram C. Todd, special deputy attorney general, asked Judge Wolverton to restrict the Secretary's testimony to topics pertaining to subjects of the indictment. The court upheld objections to questions put by Means' attorney as to the alleged removal from the Overholt Distillery in Pittsburgh of a large quantity of whiskey on forged permits obtained by a man named Goodman.

Secretary Mellon testified that he had an interest in the Overholt Distillery. Mr. Mellon said he had talked with J. W. Hubbard, of New Jersey, about the liquor transaction which caused the indictment of Means. He said Hubbard told him he had paid money to a friend for the release of whiskey but that he had got neither the whiskey nor the money.

IRELAND TRIES TO REGAIN ITS EXPORT EGG TRADE During 1921 Eggs, Chickens and Feathers Worth $50,000,000 Were Exported.

Dublin, June 26.—Patrick Hogan, the free State Minister of Lands and Agriculture, has introduced into the Dail a bill to regulate the export of eggs. Eggs are one of the most important of Irish exports, and the industry has recently shown signs of deterioration.

Under Mr. Hogan's bill all eggs for export must be collected in premises registered by the ministry of agriculture, tested and graded under official supervision and packed in standard boxes. It is hoped by abolishing defective packing and grading to double the Irish egg export.

NO OFFICIAL PART FOR U. S. IN REPAIRATIONS CONFERENCE Will Be Represented Only Informally in London Next Month, Coolidge Spokesman Says.

Washington, D. C., June 25.—The United States is not only willing but anxious to assist Europe in pushing the settlement of her reparations problem, but does not intend to participate in any political difficulties overseas, a spokesman for President Coolidge said today in commenting on the proposed inter-allied conference in London next month to consider means of putting the Dawes plan into effect.

President Coolidge was said to feel that it must be recognized America has certain interests in Europe, both direct and indirect, but that these would not be served by active participation in the conference. This government will be represented informally, it was expected, but no possibility was seen that either Charles G. Dawes or Secretary Hughes, who plan to be in London with the American Bar Association about the time of the conference, would take part as American delegates.

Claims Formula Renders Battle Gases Harmless. New York, June 25.—F. N. Pickett, of London, the man who bought up and destroyed surplus war materials on a great tract of land near Boulogne, France, arrived on the steamship Majestic today with the formula of a gas which he claims would counteract the deadly effects of war gases.

Mr. Pickett said he also brought an arsenic formula which he believes will successfully combat the boll weevil, adding that he would go to Alabama following his Washington business and make tests in conjunction with officials of the department of agriculture.
