Prominent Farmer Held For Shooting Neighbor

Martin Bost Surrenders to Sheriff as Result of Shooting Tuesday Night of Jesse Vanderburg.

WOUNDED FARMER IS IN HOSPITAL

Condition Said to Be Serious But He Has Chance to Recover.—Cause of the Shooting Still Unknown.

Jesse Vanderburg, well known farmer of No. 9 township, is in the Concord Hospital suffering from dangerous wounds alleged to have been inflicted by Martin Bost, another prominent farmer of No. 9, and Bost is in the county jail where he will be held pending the outcome of Vanderburg's wounds.

The trouble between Bost and Vanderburg occurred at the home of Bost, according to information received by Sheriff Caldwell. What led to the trouble has not been determined, however, as both men refuse to discuss the case.

Vanderburg is suffering from pistol wounds in his chest and leg. He also has a broken arm. It was stated at the hospital this morning that he has a chance to recover.

First reports of the shooting were brought to Concord about 9:30 Tuesday night when neighbors of Vanderburg and Bost came to Concord for an ambulance. L. A. Weddington and M. M. Linker answered the call, bringing Vanderburg to the local hospital in the ambulance of the Bell & Harris Undertaking Parolers.

Physicians at the hospital declared it would be unwise to operate on Vanderburg until this morning because of the fact that he was so weak when he reached the hospital. Early this morning he was reported as resting as comfortably as could be expected.

Neighbors who questioned the wounded man also declared he would not discuss the case with them. He declined to tell Sheriff Caldwell who shot him, muttering, "I can't talk."

Many rumors concerning the shooting have floated in from No. 9 but none of them seem well founded enough to offer a solution. One rumor says Bost declared he shot Vanderburg when the latter was advancing on him with an axe, but as both men decline to talk even this rumor cannot be substantiated.
