SECRETS OF TWINS SOLVED BY SCIENCE

May Be Two Persons or Double Edition of the Same Individual.

From earliest times twins have been objects of unusual interest and curiosity, for there is real humor in the situation presented by the existence of two editions of the same person.

In human beings we recognize two distinct kinds of twins—duplicates and fraternal, writes H. H. Newman, Ph.D., professor of zoology at the University of Chicago, in the October number of Popular Science Monthly. Fraternal twins are merely brothers and sisters who happen to be conceived and born simultaneously. There is no reason to expect them to be more alike than are other brothers and sisters, except that they are of the same age and are likely to have nearly identical experiences.

Duplicates twins, on the contrary, are really two editions of the same individual. They begin life as a single egg, and are as closely related genetically as are the right and left halves of one's own body. No wonder, then, that it is sometimes necessary to resort to ribbons of different colors in order to tell them apart.

A strange thing about twins is that quite commonly they are reverse or mirror image duplicates of each other, and not exact duplicates. By this is meant that the right side of one twin is more often like the left side of the other twin than like his own left side. It not uncommonly happens that one twin is right-handed and the other left-handed. In not a few cases it has been observed that the whirl of hair at the crown goes clockwise in one twin and counterclockwise in the other. This is one of the surest evidences that the two were once right and left sides of a single individual.

Sometimes it happens that twins, taken at first glance to be duplicates, prove to be much less alike than one would expect. Are these to be classed as fraternal twins because they do not fill our expectations as to resemblance?

Let us examine a parallel case. Look at your own face in the mirror and note that your two eyes are in some respects quite unlike. Your two hands, especially in the details of the fingerprints are very different. The shoe clerk tells you that one of your feet is about half a size larger than the other. The tailor finds difficulty in fitting you because one shoulder is higher and broader than the other. Look yourself over and see how different your two halves really are. Why should you expect, then, that the two halves of a former individual that are now separate would be any more alike than two halves that have remained together as part of a single individual?

One on the Police Sergeant.

Raleigh News and Observer. It is an old story they tell at the police station. Sergeant Bailey sat at the report desk in the station room in the late hours of the graveyard shift. The phone rang and some man at the other end of the night spoke: "Is this Sergeant Bailey?" he asked.

"Yes." "Will you do me a favor sergeant and look out and see if the electric light is burning at the corner of Davis and Fayetteville streets?"

"Wait a minute," said the sergeant. He rose and made his way through the dark city court room to the window. He came back to the phone.

"Yes, it's burning," he said. "Well, blow it out and go to bed," came back the reply.

BABY BURIED ALIVE BY MOTHER SAVED BY HUSBAND

Man Says Young Wife Slipped Away to Bear Child—Two Children, Eight and Six, Are Living.

Forked River, N. J., Sept. 15.—A story of a young wife's alleged attempt to get rid of her new-born baby by burying it alive was unfolded to Ocean county detectives at this village. Her husband, a laborer, charged she had on "three or four" previous occasions succeeded in similar crimes.

The mother, Mrs. Eugene J. Saunders, thirty, who has an eight-year-old boy and girl six, was taken to the Lakewood Hospital yesterday afternoon. Although no formal charge has yet been made, she is under arrest there. Next Thursday, before she is released from the hospital, her case will be presented to the grand jury.

Saunders told Detective Burge and others of the county prosecutor's staff that he had watched his wife carefully for several days because she expected a baby and because her previous conduct in similar circumstances made him suspicious.

Early yesterday, he said, she gave birth unattended to a girl. Saunders declares he watched her take the infant into a clump of woods and bury it under sand and leaves. He raked away the tiny mound and found the child still breathing. Leaving it where it lay, he got his wife to their home, then returned in his automobile for the baby.

He took it and the mother to the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Saunders, here and notified the prosecutor's office. An ambulance was called from Lakewood, twenty-five miles away, and both were taken to the hospital, the mother for medical attention and observation. Physicians found the baby apparently none the worse for its treatment.

Saunders accused his wife of burying several of her babies, but explained that he had "never been able to catch her at it." Detectives have not yet started an investigation of these additional accusations. The woman has offered no statement and her condition thus far has precluded questioning.

Music Has Charms.

Dearborn Weekly.

There comes a story from Arkansas that a dairyman has been able to attract manure from his cows by the simple device of serenading them with jazz music. Dances are held in the barn and besides affording enjoyment for the dairymen's guests it fills his milk pails in the morning.

That "music has charms" is a trite saying that has been proved from the time that Jubal became the father of those "that play on the horn and the organ." Music has been defined by some as a "series of pleasant sounds," but the lead of what is really "pleasant" in the way of sounds widely differs among the people of various nations, and there is no reason to doubt that taste in music as widely differs among animals. The great thing seems to be to gauge their tastes in this respect. Horses will prick up their ears and prance when a brass band plays, but dogs will howl as if in mortal agony at the same kind of music. It is therefore interesting to note that the cow loves jazz and generously responds.

There was once a poultry farmer in Ontario who discovered this same fondness of animals for certain kinds of music. After considerable research he found that his hens were particularly fond of ragtime music, so having learned that instrument in his youth he thought he would try its effects in the chicken coop. The results were beyond his wildest expectations, and the egg basket was filled to overflowing every day. It was far better and cheaper than keeping his lights burning all night as some of his neighbors had done with the notion of making the hens work overtime.

The psychological effect of music in various directions is well worthy of scientific research, if only to ascertain its value as an adjunct to farm production.

GLAD SISTER ESCAPED OPERATION

"Physicians had given my sister up to die; they wanted to operate for gall stones, but she was too weak and could only talk in whispers. I got her a bottle of Mayr's Wonderful Remedy and in three weeks she was able to get about and walked a mile to church." It is a simple, harmless preparation that removes the catarrhal mucus from the intestinal tract and allays the inflammation which causes practically all stomach, liver and intestinal ailments, including appendicitis. One dose will convince or money refunded. Gibson Drug Store and druggists everywhere.

A MAN WHO BECAME FAMOUS

Doctor E. V. Pierce, whose picture appears above, was not only a successful physician but also a profound student of the medicinal qualities of Nature's remedies, roots and herbs, and by close observation of the methods used by the Indians, he discovered their great remedial qualities, especially for weakness of women, and after careful preparation succeeded in giving to the world a remedy which has been used by women with the best results for half a century. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is still in great demand, while many other so-called "cure-alls" have come and gone. The reason for its phenomenal success is because of its absolute purity, and Dr. Pierce's high standing as an honored citizen of Buffalo is a guarantee of all that is claimed for the Favorite Prescription as a regulator for the female system.

What the World Is Doing

Dog Travels Three Thousand Miles to Home and Gets Medal

Bob, a Scotch collie, recently traveled approximately 3,000 miles to return to his home in Oregon after having been lost in the middle west. Its owners had taken it with them on an automobile trip, and while they were crossing Iowa, Bob strayed away. After an unsuccessful search, they went on to Indiana and then drove back to the Pacific coast, never expecting to see their pet again. Six months after their return, Bob came trotting home, weak from fatigue, foot sore and with claws worn short. It developed that the animal had trailed the automobile from Iowa to Indiana and then had started back on the long trip to Oregon. The state humane society, after investigation, presented the dog with a medal and school children petitioned the village council to give it the freedom of the streets for the rest of its life.

Weather Superstitions Are Disproved by Science

Several common superstitions concerning the weather have been dispelled by the weather bureau at Washington. In both Europe and America there is an old belief that a severe storm—the so-called "equinoctial gale"—is due about the date of either equinox, that is, March 21 or Sept. 22.

According to scientists there is no maximum of storm frequency either in this country or abroad close to the date of either equinox. Of course, in the long run, storms do occur about these dates, just as they occur at all other times in the year, but there is no reason why they should be especially frequent at the equinoxes.

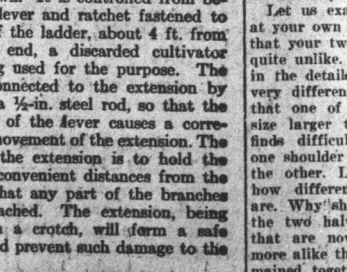

Commenting on the moon's influence on the weather, the bureau says: "Modern science is unable to find any evidence that the moon affects the weather to an appreciable extent, and is unable to conceive of any reason why it should." The belief in "dry" and "wet" moons, indicated by the position of the lunar crescent in the evening sky, and a host of other notions are denounced as merely idle superstitions.

Handy Orchard Ladder

Pruning and fruit picking can be accomplished in a shorter time and with less damage to the trees with the specially devised ladder shown in the illustration. It is possible with the use of an old-style ladder. Upon the upper end of a common ladder a forked extension, made from a length of 2 by 2-in. oak and two lengths of tire iron, is hinged to swing up and down. It is controlled from below by a lever and ratchet fastened to the side of the ladder, about 4 ft. from the lower end, a discarded cultivator lever being used for the purpose. The lever is connected to the extension by means of a 1/2-in. steel rod, so that the movement of the lever causes a corresponding movement of the extension. The object of the extension is to hold the ladder at convenient distances from the trunk so that any part of the branches can be reached. The extension, being inserted in a crotch, will form a safe support and prevent such damage to a tree
