LUTHERAN WOMEN ARE TO MEET IN SALISBURY

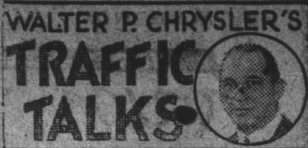

Fourth Biennial Convention of Missionary Societies to Gather October 2-6.

Salisbury, Sept. 16.—St. John's Lutheran Church, of Salisbury, which has the largest Lutheran congregation in the south, will be the rallying point for the 9000 organized women of the missionary societies of the United Lutheran Church of America when the fourth biennial convention meets October 2-6. The size and representative character of the gathering will make this an occasion of special interest to the Lutheran church of the South. It is the first time that the convention has been held in this section of the country and it is particularly fitting that historic St. John's should be the assembly grounds. Although October 2-6 is the date scheduled for the convention the workers' conference on Wednesday, October 1, will attract many delegates and officials a few days prior to the formal opening. In addition to the 178 or more delegates there will be present the members of the executive board, the literature committee, departmental secretaries, missionaries and invited speakers, bringing a number to approximately 250 not including visitors.

Mrs. W. F. Morehead, of Salem, Va., chairman of the program committee, announces that among the special guests of the convention will be Elko Yonemura, a little Japanese girl, daughter of one of the native pastors who is attending Trinity college; Joel Lakra, a Hindu student; and Mr. Murikami, who is to be the Japanese principal of the girls' school. A very interesting and constructive program has been arranged throughout the convention setting forth the various phases of the society's work for women and children in many lands. On the program are Lutheran leaders of national prominence. The opening sermon will be preached by Dr. F. F. Fry, of Rochester, N. Y., and on Sunday, October 4, the convention will hear Dr. C. J. Smith, of Roanoke College, and the Rev. W. C. Schaeffer, of Allentown, Pa. Special addresses will be made by Dr. L. B. Wolf, secretary of the foreign mission board, on "South America and China;" Mrs. C. T. Benze, of Philadelphia, on "Conditions in Central Europe;" Mrs. C. E. Wiles, of Philadelphia, on "Glimpses of Palestine and the Near East;" Mrs. F. F. Fry, on "The Eastern Conference;" Miss Zoe Hirt of Erie, Pa., "Seed Time and Harvest"; and by Dr. J. B. Morehead on "Conserving the Church in Europe and Elsewhere." Rev. Edward Fullenwider, pastor of St. John's Church in Salisbury, Dr. J. L. Morgan, president of the North Carolina synod, and Dr. George H. Cox, North Carolina Lutheran of considerable note, will also have a share in the program.

At the workers' conference on Wednesday morning, October 1, questions of special interest to synodical presidents will be discussed under the leadership of Mrs. J. S. Maloney, of Rockford, Ill. In the afternoon Mrs. D. Burt Smith, of Philadelphia, will conduct a conference for department secretaries. One of the evening programs will be devoted to the varied forms of mission activity in India, Africa, Japan and the Virgin Islands, workers fresh from the field leading the discussions. Another evening program will deal with the forms of church service open to the young women at home and a third will tell of the progress of the plans for a girls' school in Japan. This program will close with a pageant written especially for this occasion. Representatives from the church boards and committees to which the society contributes and from other organizations of Lutheran women will bring EVER MEET THIS MAN? Here is a picture of the man who shoots out his arm at the last minute and see what happens. Be careful and thoughtful.

The morning and afternoon sessions and the Sunday services will be held in the church and the evening sessions and the Light Brigade rally in the auditorium of the Innes Street school, located about two blocks from the "Square," the center of Salisbury's business activity. Entertainment of accredited delegates and officials of the Women's Missionary society will be on the Harvard plan which means lodging and breakfast.

Mrs. J. L. Morgan, prominent in the work of the Society and wife of the president of the North Carolina Lutheran Synod, is general chairman of the program from the local end. The members of the congregation are planning a reception at all delegates and visitors on Wednesday evening, October 1, at the lovely home of Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Heilig on North Fulton street. If the convention program will permit a visit is also planned by the congregation to one of the large cotton mills of the city. Other social features include the convention banquet to be held Thursday evening, October 2, at 6 o'clock; the Light Brigade luncheon on Friday at 12:15; and the Young Women's dinner on Friday at 6 o'clock. These functions will be held in the banquet room of the Yakin hotel.

Mrs. Morehead announces that a half fare reduction may be secured on the return trip providing a certificate is secured at the starting point of the journey properly indorsed at Salisbury by Mrs. Frank E. Jensen, the statistical secretary, and validated by a special agent of the railroad. This reduction is contingent upon receipt of at least 250 certificates which can be obtained on September 25 and will be good until October 9.

The Lutheran women of Salisbury will be assisted in the entertainment of their visitors by Mrs. G. W. McClanahan, of Gibsonville, president of the North Carolina Women's Missionary society, officials of the organization and delegates elected at the recent state convention. All North Carolina Lutherans have been urged to share in the duties of host and hostess, for the occasion of the gathering is of so great importance to Lutheranism in the South as to challenge the pride of every church member. North Carolina delegates to the biennial include Mrs. Julia Hall, of Cherryville; Mrs. John M. Cook, of Concord; Mrs. W. T. Host, of Raleigh; Mrs. J. E. Morgan, of Salisbury; Mrs. G. O. Lippard, of Crouse; Mrs. R. L. Fritz, of Hickory; and Mrs. E. A. Shenk, of Greensboro; the alternates being Miss Lena Moore, of Mt. Pleasant; Mrs. Free Shepherd, of Concord; Mrs. Hubert Patterson, of Albemarle; Miss Laura Efrid of Raleigh; Mrs. E. H. Kohn, of Mount Hilly; Mrs. W. J. Roger, of Newton, and Mrs. J. A. Linn, of Elkroy.
