ARE THE NEWSPAPER "COLUMNS" ON DECLINE?

Robert Quillen Cays Paragraphers Are Too Lazy.

American newspaper columnists become indolent after they attain success, in the opinion of Robert Quillen, paragrapher for a large number of newspapers, who has contributed an article on the subject in the current number of the International Book Review.

"The 'column' is dying, as you say," he states. "It is dying for the same reason that a beje of six months begins to miss the flavor of romance—because men relax and take their ease when they have arrived."

"Religious and political 'isms' thrive best on persecution; no nickel cigar amounts to much after it gets a reputation. How many, many authors turn out rot after they get past a nickel a word? It appears to be a very difficult matter to enjoy the rewards and keep on earning them."

"I do not believe that 'column' conductors have run out of soap. Let any one of them be fired, supposing that he once was clever and now is dull, and on a thin diet he will become clever again."

"Necessity is the mother of industry." The brightest idea the prodigal son ever had came to him after his diet was restricted to husks.

"No man can be clever all the time—and always the disheartening fact remains that the prosperity of his just depends upon the ears of his audience. If he will refrain from being a scold or an ass, and keep the ego properly throttled, the world can ask no more."

"The business of the paragrapher is to be the world's court fool—to preach a bit, to make merry, to be entertaining. It is not the highest callings but the world needs a laugh now and then. If any man can play the pipes, in God's name let him play."

An Expensive Funeral.

Statesville Daily. The widow of George Randolph Chester, noted author, has brought suit against a New York undertaker to recover an alleged excess charge of $6,543 for her husband's funeral expenses.

The complaint alleges that at the time of Chester's death the widow assigned $8,000 to meet the funeral expenses; that of this sum $7,972 was deducted for the expense of burying the writer, and that must have been some funeral.

The allegation is that the business was really worth only $1,420, the remainder being excess charge. It will be recalled that some years ago Dr. Thos. E. Anderson, of Statesville, and some of his poor friends to whom this proposition appended, tried to have a law passed or something, fixing the price of coffins at not exceeding $12. The movement somehow didn't seem to take hold. Folks don't fancy preparation for death, even when they know the Pale Horse is just around the corner.

The incident is recalled to suggest that if the price has "ris" to anything like $7,000, as was charged in the New York case, or even to $1,000, a lot of folks are going to be laid away wrapped in a blanket.

A curious profession for a woman is that of dinner taster. She is a product of Parisian refinement and spends a portion of each day visiting houses and tasting dishes intended for dinner. She suggests improvements and shows the cook new ways of preparing dishes. The duties are pleasant and the compensation ample.

EXTRA GIRL GETS CHANCE TO PLAY WITH VALENTINO

Many girls dream of the day when somebody will discover how beautiful or charming they are and pick them for a leading role in a motion picture. It actually happens to few. Helen D'Algy, twenty-year-old Spanish girl, is one of those few.

She had done extra parts in several pictures without attracting attention until a few weeks ago when Rudolph Valentino happened to be watching a scene being made at the Paramount Long Island Studio for "The Side-Show of Life."

He was struck by her girlish beauty and a few days later, as a result of his insistence, she was chosen as leading woman in his latest Paramount picture, "A Sainted Devil."

Hunt's Washington Letter

BY HARRY B. HUNT NEA Service Writer WASHINGTON—A fine fight for the speakership in the next Congress is assured, whether Democrats or Republicans win.

For a new gavel wielder must be found to preside over the sessions of the sixty-ninth House Speaker Gillett, after six years in the chair, surrendered the chance at another term in that office to pursue the Massachusetts senatorship now held by David Ignatius Walsh of Fitchburg. Whether he will win it is still in doubt, as Walsh is a popular and persuasive campaigner.

But win or lose for the Senate, Gillett will be out of the speaker's chair after March 4 next, and the line of possible and would-be successors already is beginning to form on the right.

THE scrap for speakership is certain to be complicated by the maneuvers and manifestations of independents who will come to the new Congress, for most part, in the guise of Republicans.

Led by Cooper and Frear and Nelson of Wisconsin, this insurgent wing of the G. O. P. is likely to wield even a more deciding influence in the next Congress than in the present one.

It was this group which forced a revision of House rules last year, providing a method for getting pigeonholed measures out of committee and before the House. Indications are insurgent membership will be increased rather than decreased in the new Congress, which will only mean a more effective "balance of power" in the hands of this group.

And the first chance to exercise this power, the first test to reveal the real strength of insurgent elements in the new Congress, will come on the vote for election of speaker.

HEADING the list of Republican aspirants for this honor comes Nick Longworth of Ohio, the stocky, bald-headed son-in-law of Roosevelt, a tried and true Republican "regular."

Just how regular a party man Nick is may be judged from the fact that he wouldn't even follow his famous father-in-law into the Bull Moose party in 1912. For the past four years he has been the G. O. P. floor leader and is now ready for promotion to the speaker's chair.

Crowding Longworth for favor as G. O. P. choice for speaker is Martin B. Madden of Chicago.

Both are completing their twentieth year in Congress, Madden having served 10 consecutive terms. Longworth 19 terms not consecutive.

GILLETTS withdrawal leaves Henry Allen Cooper of Wisconsin the oldest member of the House in point of service. Cooper is just completing his thirtieth year.

Cooper will be the choice of the insurgent Republicans for speaker. By reason of his seniority in service, his personal popularity, his recognized fairness and squareness, his friends believe he will draw the votes of many Republicans outside of the so-called House progressive group.

Should the progressive vote retain its balance of power, as seems probable, with neither Republican regulars or Democrats able to muster a majority for their candidates, a Democratic insurgent coalition to put Cooper across as speaker is not impossible.

It was just such a combination that forced the revision of House rules at the last session, against the Longworth-Gillett-Republican opposition.

FIRST place in the line of possible Democratic selections for speaker is accorded Pinia J. Garrett of Tennessee.

Like Longworth and Madden, he, too, has served 10 terms and has fought his way to a position of undisputed leadership in Democratic legislative ranks.

What KELVINATOR Is and Does. KELVINATOR is the name of an electrical refrigerating unit that fits right into the ice box you now have, and eliminates forevermore the inconvenience and inefficiency of ice-cooled refrigeration. It maintains a dry, unvarying atmosphere in your refrigerator at all times. It maintains a certain predetermined temperature and requires no attention whatsoever, after its installation. It produces a temperature considerably lower than that produced by ice. It freezes crystal clear cubes of ice for the table or the sick room. It is a model of cleanliness and sanitation. It saves labor, food, annoyance and money. It costs less than ice to operate, and its first cost is not a burden. It is operating successfully in more than 40,000 homes, nine of these in Concord. Ask for the names of those using them. Phone 103 and 127. J. Y. PHARR & BROTHER
