You want your boy to get along in school, of course—make good grades and never fail to pass. Do you realize that his food is more important than his textbooks—that active minds are best produced by sound, well-nourished bodies?

Don't put just anything into Willie's lunchbox. Take time to prepare something wholesome—from left-overs, perhaps, but appetizing. If he comes home at noon, give him at least one warm, substantial dish.

KANNAPOLIS DEPARTMENT

Kannapolis, Nov. 15.—One of the prettiest weddings of the season occurred Saturday evening at six o'clock at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Walton on South Main Street when Miss Kate Seamon became the bride of Herman Miller. The house was beautifully decorated with yellow chrysanthemums and cedar.

Miss Edna Mae Widenhouse sang a solo, "I Love You Truly," and then as Mrs. Charles Ferguson played the wedding march Rev. C. K. Turner, pastor of the First Baptist Church, who officiated, led the bridal party and was followed by the little flower girl, little Miss Helen McCray Walton. Following her came Mrs. C. M. Cannon, maid of honor, and Raymond Connelli best man, and next came the bride and groom who were both dressed in grey. The bride carried a pretty corsage of white chrysanthemums.

After congratulations were made the wedding supper was served which was enjoyed by all and those present also enjoyed a radio concert.

Shortly after the ceremony the bride and groom left for Florida where they will remain for a week. After returning they will make their home in Kannapolis.

Many nice presents were presented to Mr. and Mrs. Miller, and among them were two beautiful sets of silver from the bride's father in Scotland.

Mrs. Miller is the daughter of Mr. Seamon in Scotland and she has been in our country about three years. Since her arrival she has made many friends by her winning disposition. She has also been an active church worker in the First Baptist Church for some time. Mr. Miller is the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Miller, of Walnut Street.

Says He Was Up in Class With Caruso. New York, N. Y., November 15.—Nicholo Zerza, singer, has filed suit for $250,000 against the Metropolitan Opera Company.

The complaint alleges that he "was held down" at the period "when he enjoyed the same fame and reputation as Enrico Caruso and it was a moot question who was the greatest singer." He says he had a contract for opera and was forced to sing in concert, his reputation being damaged thereby.

CHINESE WAR RESULT OF QUARREL OF FORMER FRIENDS

Explanation Shows What It's All About Anyway. San Francisco, Nov. 17.—"What's it all about?"

This question is asked by the average newspaper reader who glances casually at an occasional front page account of the civil war in China. For the benefit of those who are not students of Far Eastern affairs, the following explanatory digest, as gleaned from the various news reports of the Chinese situation, is given:

China, with its more than 400,000,000 population, has been in a more or less chaotic state since the overthrow of the Manchu dynasty in 1911 and the formation of the Chinese republic. Chinese presidents have come and gone, the country has been divided into warring factions headed by "tyrants," or military provincial governors, and a large percentage of the population has been constantly under arms.

General Chang Tso-lin and General Wu Pei-fu, former friends but now bitter enemies, are the two outstanding figures in the current controversy. These two leaders joined forces in 1920 to overthrow the famous Anfu club, a monarchist organization which threatened the new government. With Tsoo Kun, the last Chinese president, then inspector-general of Chihli, General Chang became the controlling power of Peking.

General Wu permitted things to continue until 1922, when, declaring Chang was establishing a military dictatorship in the capital, he drove the latter back to build up an army, manufacture munitions and Maneburia. Chang began at once to train and have his officers trained in modern military tactics. For two years China has expected a renewal of hostilities between the two militarists.

"Two somewhat inconspicuous typhoons," "strated the fireworks." In the latter part of last August, General Chi Shieh-yuan, military governor of Kiangsu, apparently with the approval of Tsoo Kun, attacked the forces of General Lu Yung-Hsiang, the Chekiang military governor in control of Shanghai, and, with the aid of General Wu Pei-fu's forces, finally took that city.

In the meantime, General Wu decided it was time to eliminate Chang Tso-lin and thus bring about a reunification of China. General Chang, the Manchurian "war-lord," decided at about the same time that General Wu should be eliminated. So Chang declared war against the Peking forces and started his army toward Chihli. He met Wu's troops outside the Great Wall and fighting continued for several weeks over a front of many miles. The most sanguinary battles took place not far from Shihankwan, near the eastern border of Chihli.

With varying reports of successes coming from the headquarters of both leaders, Feng Yu-shiang, known as the "Christian general," recently hurled a bombshell into the controversy by appearing at Peking with his troops and announcing that Tsoo Kun must resign as president. General Wu is banished to Tibet and peace made with Chang Tso-lin.

General Feng, with the best paid and best equipped troops of the Chihli forces, had been sent to the front to hold back Chang's brigades. Apparently Chang and Feng arrived at an understanding and the next announcement was from Peking, where the "Christian general" had taken control.

All sorts of reports emanated from the capital. It was said General Wu had fled with his troops to Tsiangtung, Shantung; that Tsoo Kun had resigned, that Tuan Chi-jui, the powerful former Anfu leader, would assume charge of the government, and that a real reunification of China would take place.

It later developed that Wu had not fled to Tsiangtung. Instead, the Chihli leader and his forces appeared midway between Tientsin and Peking and entrenched preparatory to a battle to oust the "Christian general" from the capital. It appeared (October 29th) that the feud between Chang and his enemy was far from being settled.

Last reports were to the effect that General Feng had suggested a conference with General Wu with the object of bringing about some sort of an adjustment between the latter and General Chang. At that time the whereabouts of Chang had not been made known.

General Wu's claim is that Chang an outlaw at heart and that, if he should gain control of the Peking government, he would attempt to place the "Boy Emperor" back on the throne and restore the Manchu dynasty. Chang declares that Wu is the obstructive element in the work of reorganizing China and that President Tsoo Kun was not elected by the people but by a parliament that was bribed.

COTTON IN THE BOLL GINNED SUCCESSFULLY. Load Weighing 1,270 Pounds, Burr and All, Turns Out Bale Weighing 318 Pounds.

Roxboro, Nov. 15.—Twenty or more farmers and business men of this town and community witnessed a feat of cotton ginning at the ginney of G. W. Thomas which probably means as much to the development of the cotton growing industry in this section as the invention of the cotton gin meant to the south as a whole.

J. R. Lummus, who lives a few miles from Roxboro, brought in a load of cotton weighing 1,270 pounds, which had been pulled burr and all instead of being picked clean in the field. With Mr. Thomas' up to date plant, including the new boll breaker and cleaner attachments, this load of bolly cotton netted a bale weighing 318 pounds, which sold on the local market at 20 cents.

The work was done under the direction of Joe T. Banks, experimenter and boll ginning expert from Texas. The farmers who witnessed this novel process were enthusiastic about it, for it was a clear demonstration that every boll of the local crop that has cotton in it can be saved.

Cruelty to Animals Results in Arrest. Greensboro, Nov. 15.—Wesley L. Peacock, a contractor of this city, was arrested here today on a warrant charging cruelty to animals, and fourteen mules that police took out of harness yesterday while working on one of his jobs were still in charge of police today. A hearing will be given Peacock Tuesday.

The investigation leading to the issuance of the warrant for Peacock was made upon cruelty to the animals, and the police said that they found the mules with raw and bleeding shoulders, crippled or otherwise unfit for work, doing heavy grading on the job west of the city. Peacock was out of town when the police took the animals out of harness, but action was taken today upon his return.
