IN AND ABOUT THE CITY

MORE RAIN FOR CONCORD FOR OVER THE WEEK-END
Rain Has Ruined Roads, Flooded Lands and Caused Streams to Overflow Their Banks.
Concord is again in the grasp of a rainy spell that seems to have no stopping point. Despite the fact that more than a normal supply of rain has already fallen this month, the downpour continued almost unbrokenly over the week-end. Roads in the county are in terrible condition as is to be expected as a result of ten days of rain. In some sections traffic is practically impossible and on some of the more important highways chains are a necessary adjunct to travel. Road forces have been unable to work for some time and as a result the roads are at the mercy of the elements.
Streams in all parts of the county are overflowing their banks today. Lowlands are inundated and passage on some of the bridges in the county has become dangerous on account of the high water. The ground is so thoroughly soaked that all of the water runs off as fast as it strikes the ground and this tends to aggravate conditions with the streams.
A number of basements in the city have been flooded, some of them as a matter of fact, having been flooded since the heavy rains of last week. Pumps are working overtime in these basements, it is said, but the water continued to run and seep in.
The weather man yesterday promised only showers today, with a prospect for clear weather tomorrow. There are few signs today of any clear weather and the report today calls for uncertain weather.

CONCORD Y PLAYS CHARLOTTE Y BASKETBALL TEAM TONIGHT
Salisbury Post Says Concord Team One of the Best Appearing There This Season.
Despite the bad weather, it should be well worth the time and inconvenience for any one who cares to venture forth tonight to see the Charlotte team in action against the Concord Y team. The coming battle promises to be one of the liveliest scraps of the season.
It is well known in Concord that the Charlotte Y team is one of the best in the state. In past years they have always put out teams that were remarkably fast and remarkably clean. This year's team is no exception. It has everything that the others had and perhaps a little more. Charlotte has had a most successful season and are looking to continue this success in tonight's fray.
Playing for Charlotte are former college stars such as Abe Neiman, Bill Yates, Jack Milstead and John Yates, all of Carolina; John Schenck and Dan Mallory, of Davidson, and Hugh Smith, a Y product.
Concord hasn't been playing such bad ball of late and should give Charlotte the time of their lives. The locals have recently developed a system of passing which looked mighty good and worked better against Salisbury. Then too, they have been perfecting their shots and this should be a telling point in their favor.
The game with Salisbury Thursday night brought to light the fact that the Concordians have one of the fastest teams that has ever been in the city. The report today calls for uncertain weather about the game.
The locals played a good game and a hard game; the kind of playing that would have ordinarily won from the average team. But under the fire and barrage of goal shots by the Concord forwards and under the heavy guarding they were forced to face, the locals found that they could not total enough points to win.
Not a dull moment occurred in the game. The passing of the Concord team was well high perfect. The boys from Cabarrus handled the ball as if it were a mere toy; tossed it over their heads around them; behind and beyond them, and always into the hands of one of their teammates. When they wanted a long pass, the sphere would go through space with the speed and precision of a rifle bullet, and again there would be a man waiting.
The dribbling of Morrison, guard, was one of the features of the game. This lad was as fast as a streak, and could dribble the ball all the way down the court with his opponents trying their hardest to take it away from him. Dick, the stellar forward, hung up a total of eight field goals and one four for 17 points, the high score of the game. He made several shots from near center of the court and at a difficult angle that were unusually good.
Wolf, the other forward, played an excellent floor game and scored 10 points. His work was smooth and pretty. The big center, Bell, took the tip off when he desired and aided in passing was another good man on the floor. Coltrane was an effective guard and gave the Salisbury forwards plenty of trouble. The entire team was one of the smoothest running and most accurate appearing here this year.

A PLEA—THAT'S ALL
It is an easy matter to smile when the sun shines bright and all goes well, but it takes nerve to smile when the ship goes down. After almost two years of incessant labor for the benefit of individuals and organizations, I feel that now when the good ship Smiles is about to go down that a plea for support will not go begging.
Friday night at a cost of $150.00 and $15.00 for the High School I am bringing to Concord one of the greatest mystery dramas on the stage, "The Gordian." This great play will be presented by real artists, and Concord gets for $1.00 what other cities pay $2.00 for.
What have I brought this group of players to Concord for? To raise money for the Bible Story Contest. If this is worth while for Concord I ask the support of every citizen to come out Friday night and fill the auditorium and I promise you a great evening's entertainment. That's all.

POSTMASTER W. B. WARD TALKS OF THRIFT WEEK

Points Out Advantages of Saving Regularly and Tells One Way This Can Be Done.
In commenting on the activities of National Thrift Week which began Saturday with "Thrift Day," Postmaster W. B. Ward points out that it is particularly fitting the postal service should play an important part in these activities and pay tribute to the first and foremost advocate of thrift—Benjamin Franklin.
Although the first postmaster general was renowned as a philosopher, patriot, diplomat, inventor and scientist, his name will no doubt live longest by the impression he has made as an advocate of thrift. Many of his writings on thrift have become classics and will be remembered as long as our language is read. One of his most famous sayings: "Never forget to have a penny when all thy expenses are enumerated and paid" appears on the letter which the post office department is putting into every home today.
Postmaster General Ward in an address delivered at a 1924 thrift week meeting in Washington said that if you add to this expression that other one of Franklin's—"Incur no expenses, except that which does good to others or yourself"—you will have said all there is to say on the subject of thrift.
Postmaster Ward also would have the patron of his office more clearly understand the purpose and functions of the postal savings system, the agency of the government by which thrift is promoted. While it is a savings institution in the proper sense of the term, its similarity to a bank ends at that point. The deposits received from individuals are immediately turned over to local banks after bonds to secure such deposits are received from the banks as collateral.
The policy of postal savings also differs from that of savings banks and other savings institutions. The most humble patron of the office is welcomed at the postal savings window. His purchase of a 10-cent savings stamp on his deposit of a single dollar is received as kindly and given as courteous attention as the transactions of the holder of a million dollar account at any bank. And, again, postal savings does not look with disfavor on such of its depositors who, having accumulated a tidy sum, make withdrawal for the purchase of sound investments, a home or a business. It is an educational service and if the people can be brought to realize the importance of saving a real service will have been rendered and a definite purpose accomplished.
