THE SCOTIA WOMAN'S COLLEGE STANDS FOR HIGHEST TYPE

partially above ground. The other, Faith Hall, is of red pressed brick and is four full stories in height. There are two other buildings, a laundry building three stories, and a back store house.

Level grassy grounds surround the buildings. A little over seven acres is owned by the college and the greater part of this seven acres is in the form of a park. The grass is always kept neatly clipped and numerous trees and shrubs make it a campus of unusual beauty.

Of outstanding note in the interior of the buildings is the remarkable cleanliness with which everything is kept. No matter how plain the rooms, the hallways, or the kitchens, there is always one outstanding thing which smites the eye of even the most casual male observer. To women who struggle with housekeeping, it must be a marvel. There is hardly a speck of dirt to be seen in any place in the building. The secret of success, in this case, seems to be in the fact that the girls are required to do the work and are graded on the manner in which they perform their duties.

The main entrance to the group is at Graves Hall. Here one is shown to the president's office which has the usual assortment of books, papers, and miscellaneous articles for student use. The office in this case is also a book supply room, where the students purchase their texts. While we were waiting for the President, one student came in to inquire about a tennis net, another about purchasing some composition books and a salesman came in to get his orders for the week's groceries. The President's duties seemed varied.

At the right of the main entrance is a parlor, a long oblong room in which is leather covered furniture, a piano and a victrola. This is used for the accommodation of guests of the faculty. Behind this is a student parlor with the usual parlor equipment. On the remaining space of this floor are three class rooms and rooms occupied by Dr. Lewis and his wife.

The entire front of the basement, which is hardly a basement since there are windows opening on the campus on all sides, is occupied by two large wings. In the center are two tables which are used by the teachers and the wings at either side are for student use. All students eat in this dining room.

Just to the rear of the dining room are two kitchens, one for the preparation of teachers' food and the other for preparation of students' food. Both are spotless. The range in the students' kitchen, a long low affair, looks almost clean enough to eat "off of", while the large containers for steaming vegetables fairly glisten. The same condition exists in the faculty kitchen where every pot and pan looks as though it were on dress parade.

Instruction in Domestic Science is given in a room to the rear of the faculty kitchen. This department is in charge of Miss Ottilie Oestrich, a graduate of Wisconsin University. The equipment in this department would be the envy of any high school in the state. New tables with individual gas burners are given to the students. In these tables are the usual kitchen utensils which are part of the training in culinary art. On the walls are various charts and at one end is a significant framed motto which has as its text: "Cease to be a drudge. Learn to be an artist."

It is easy to believe that graduates of the school have become artists in their lines of work.

With the exception of a bakery which is also in the basement and from which nearly 500 loaves of bread are turned out in a week, the remainder of this building, Graves Hall, is used for dormitory space.

Faith Hall is a larger building than is Graves Hall. On the first floor are seven class rooms, a sewing room in which are 12 sewing machines for use in teaching sewing, and a very modern and well equipped science room. One wing of the building has a chapel with stained glass windows, giving it a very church-like atmosphere.

Other buildings are the laundry building and a store building. The laundry building is three stories in height and has on the first of these floors, 46 stationary tubs for use by students. Ironing is done on the second floor and the third floor is used for drying.

In this connection it may be said that the students do all the work. It is a part of their training. All the cooking, the washing, the drying and scrubbing is done by the girls. This is considered essential by the authorities in teaching them how to keep house and also reduces the expenses to a minimum. Incidentally, the fee for eight months school at Scotia is $100.

At the beginning of the year, the student body is divided into three shifts. One of these shifts does cooking, another performs house keeping duties while the third does scrubbing and cleaning. "In this way," said Dr. Lewis, "everybody gets a chance to learn the different phases of housekeeping." Not only do the students have to do the school work but they do their own laundry in the model laundry plant.

The student body is very cosmopolitan. It is to be expected that a majority of the girls would come from North and South Carolina. There are, however, girls from very far distant states. The reputation of Scotia as the "Mount Holyoke of the South" seems to be widespread among the negroes of the country with the result that students come from as far north as Pennsylvania and Michigan and from as far west as Arkansas.

Not many go off to college. It is customary for the girls after graduation to get a teacher's certificate and immediately start to work. Some few become servants while numbers marry.

The school day at Scotia begins at 8:30 at which time chapel exercises are held. Recitations are held after chapel until 9 in the afternoon, excepting an hour for lunch. After 3, the girls do the work in the building and later take any recreation which they see fit. There are tennis courts, a basketball court and a baseball diamond. The school has no gymnasium. Of course with all the work which the girls have to do little exercise is needed.

The enrollment this year at Scotia is 270 students. There are at the present 275 students, six having dropped out for different reasons. The school is under calls Paper and College Similar. Newspapers as well as universities are educational institutions, Dr. Ernest DeWitt Burton, president of the University of Chicago, told members of the Inland Daily Press Association at their annual meeting in Chicago.

Both universities and newspapers, he declared, are leaders in knowledge, the principal difference between the two being that the newspaper confines itself to current history, which to the university is only a small fraction of the knowledge of any one of its departments.

"The modern university," he said, "is the nursery of research. The newspaper man has his own field of research, which is the work of the reporter, interviewer, critic, war correspondent and editor, who deal with facts at first-hand.

"As the editors write, so America acts. And America's acts are among the most potent forces for determining the future history of the world."

Duke University May Secure Lehigh Mentor. Durham, March 3.—Howard J. Baldwin, football coach of Lehigh University, is under consideration for director of athletics at Duke University to succeed Howard Jones, resigned, it was learned here today. Authorities at Duke stated that no definite contract had been closed with Baldwin or anyone else as yet but that the matter of a successor to Jones was being considered. Baldwin was football coach at Trinity College some years ago and before it became Duke University.

HUNT'S WASHINGTON LETTER

BY HARRY B. HUNT
News Service Writer

WASHINGTON — Congress is always ready to resent any mention of "pull in politics."

Congressional intercession in behalf of certain causes or individuals, it is always insisted, is merely to get attention to the "merits" of the case.

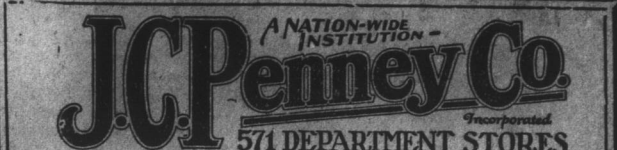

Any "pull" or "influence," in the sense of striving to land special favors for special persons or interests moves members to hot and indignant denial.

And yet, to the man outside looking in, there always seems to be a great mass of measures more or less tinged by the personal interests of members or of certain of their constituents.

The bias, if bias there be in these cases, may be entirely subconscious.

But to outsiders, the effect of personal favor in the advancing of many measures makes the opinion inescapable that "pull" rather than merit decides many matters.

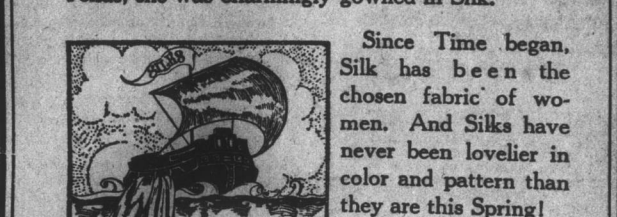

A CASE in point is that just disclosed in a report by the Senate committee on pensions. Because of the clear-cut factors in this case, it illustrates the situation more effectively than could pages of exposition.
