

State Legislature Will Finish Work Tomorrow

Early in Week It Was Predicted End Would Come Later But Work Will Be Ended on Time.

BIG CHANGES IN LAWS ARE MADE

New Laws Will Put State Government on Practically New Basis When They Start Working.

Raleigh, March 6 (By the Associated Press).—With a record for legislation drastically changing the administration of the state government, the General Assembly is expected to adjourn tomorrow, sine die, with the completion of its allotted sixty day session.

Behind it in Raleigh will be left a state government in which the Governor has been given largely increased powers; some of the duties of state and insurance departments have been transferred to the revenue department; powers of the corporation commission have been increased by giving it control over the inter-city bus lines.

One of the outstanding facts about the 1925 General Assembly, however, is the extent to which it has followed the Governor's lead. With one exception every request made by him has been granted.

Taxes have been increased by the Legislature so as to provide an annual revenue of approximately $12,000,000 compared with approximately $8,000,000 as heretofore.

A deficit in the general fund of the state of approximately $9,000,000 has been recognized as existing as of June 30, 1925, and $400,000 per annum has been provided for in the appropriation bill to begin the funding of this deficit.

A road bond issue of $20,000,000 divided equally between 1926 and 1928 was passed for continuance of the highway program of the state, bringing the total bond issue for this purpose to $36,000,000.

Legislative leaders had planned for an issue of $35,000,000 but Governor McLean in a message to the body urged it to be limited to the smaller sum and his advice prevailed.

At the Governor's request the Legislature has enacted into law the legislative budget system, making the Governor the responsible head of the state's financial system.

Under this, he has the power to go into the operation of all departments and institutions and recommend changes to effect economies.

All institutions and departments are placed on a definite budget basis, over which they cannot draw without approval of the Governor and the Council of State.

The Governor is made responsible for drawing revenue and appropriation bills each biennium to fit one another, and all appropriations are brought into one bill instead of close to 100 separate measures as heretofore.

The Governor urged upon the Legislature and it approved an educational commission to investigate the state's educational system; a pardon commission to take over the clemency powers of the Governor, this measure being up for its final passage today; a legally appointed executioner of the state penitentiary to relieve the warden of that duty; creation of a department of conservation from the Geological and Economic Survey; creating of an institutional department, out of the state prison which heretofore has been a separate corporation; appointment of a wage investigating commission to investigate wages of all state employees with a view to eliminating unnecessary employees; and adopting standard wage scale; removal of tax collecting powers of the Secretary of State in connection with the auto license department, and those of the insurance department to the Department of Revenue; broadening considerably the powers of the last named department, this change being to eliminate overlapping of work and useless employment of persons to exercise tax collection functions; $20,000,000 for road improvement; daily deposit with the Treasury of all state funds to save interest charges on short term financing, and other measures of less importance.

Movix Tax Gets Attention Again. Raleigh, March 6.—The House today called up from the unfavorable calendar the measure designed to place a tax on moving picture admissions for the benefit of Confederate Veterans, and set it as a special order for 12 o'clock. This action followed the rejection by the body last night of a $2 tax on automobiles of the state for the same purpose.

Near Death

Colonel William J. Simmons, founder and former emperor of the Ku Klux Klan, is near death from injuries received in an automobile accident.

BILL TO ESTABLISH TEXT BOOK COMMISSION

With Full Power to Select Books For State Public Schools.

Raleigh, N. C., March 6.—Full power to select the text books to be used in the public schools of the State will be vested in the Text Book Commission if a bill now pending before the General Assembly is enacted into law.

The bill provides that on or before the first day of April, 1925, the Governor shall appoint five persons who are experienced and versed in the costs and values of wages and services such as are rendered by subordinate officers, clerks and employees of the various State Departments.

According to the provisions of the bill and the salaries and wages have been classified and fixed the schedule must be filed with the Governor, and upon approval by him will become the standard salaries and wages for all subordinates, clerks and employees of the various departments.

The bill requires the heads of each department to file a list of the employees in their respective departments, showing the salaries paid each employee and the salary fixed by the commission under the approved schedule.

BLACKBURN AND O'NEILL QUESTIONED IN PARIS

Asked About Teapot Dome Lease But Both Refused to Answer Questions Put to Them.

Paris, March 6 (By the Associated Press).—H. M. Blackburn and James E. O'Neill, former officials of American oil companies who have been visiting in France, were summoned before the civil tribunal of the Seine on February 24th for interrogation by Ulrich J. Mengart, special representative of the U. S. State Department, in connection with the Teapot Dome naval oil reserve case, it was revealed today. Both men, it was added, refused to testify.

With Our Advertisers.

For Friday and Saturday the Park-Bell Co. has a number of specials for the men and young men.

You always get prompt and dependable service at Howard's Filling Station.

Patt Covington always has something to interest you in his ad. Read it today.

Now is the time to place your orders for awnings. See ad. of Concord Furniture Co.

See the specials for Friday and Saturday in the ad. of the Piggly Wiggly Co. Splendid values in aprons at only 79 cents at J. C. Peasey Co's.

Eight big days of the Spring Opening Sale at Esdra's. Spring goods now on display.

Everything for the gardener at the York & Wadsworth Co's. Phone 30.

The Bob's Dry Cleaning Co. gives you the most thorough and most intelligent service.

MRS. DORA FENTRESS INDICTED BY GRAND JURY IN CURRITUCK

Jury Charges Mrs. Fentress and Riddle Capps With the Murder of Former's Husband on November 9, 1924.

THREE OTHERS IN JAIL FOR CRIME

They Were Not Indicted by Jury and Were Released—Fentress Dead Body Found Near Door to Barn.

(By the Associated Press) Elizabeth City, N. C., March 6.—Mrs. Dora Fentress today was held in jail and officers were searching for Riddle Capps, farmer, of Knotts Island, following the indictment of the two yesterday charged by the Currituck county grand jury with the murder of Mrs. Fentress' husband on November 9, 1924.

Mr. Fentress was found at the door of his barn late one night and investigation since has been underway.

The present law gives the Commission only the power of recommendation and the State Board of Education makes the final decision. The State Board would be eliminated as a factor if the new legislation is enacted.

The purpose of the measure, it is said, is to vest the power in a body which is composed of educators familiar with the books used in the schools and well posted on the educational system.

The measure would provide for the members of the commission to serve five years, subject to removal by the Governor and Superintendent for good cause.

They would receive $200 for their services and after the first year five dollars per diem of actual service for expenses.

26 KILLED AND OTHERS WOUNDED IN EXPLOSION

Soviet Russia Scene of Accident Caused by Explosion of Oxygen Tanks.

Leningrad, March 6 (By the Associated Press).—Twenty-six people were killed and an unknown number wounded by an explosion of oxygen tanks in a building in the center of Leningrad.

The explosion caused a panic in the vicinity, and scattered debris and parts of human bodies in every direction.

Most of the victims were women and children.

Oakboro High School Barely Escapes Disasterous Fire. Oakboro, March 4.—Oakboro had a bad fire scare yesterday morning, and the blaze was discovered just in time to prevent a dangerous loss of property to the large number of pupils of the Oakboro school.

When one of the pupils discovered the blaze through the "scuttle hole," which had been left open, it was getting a pretty good start on the building roof of the Oakboro high school building. The boy gave the alarm, and the students were all gotten out in order.

Then the attention of the larger pupils and the superintendent was turned to putting out the blaze, and with the assistance of all, the fire was soon under control with no big amount of damage done to the building. The damage is said to be entirely covered by insurance.

Only for the fortunate fact that the "scuttle hole" had been left open, the building would, no doubt, have been destroyed, and serious injury might have resulted to some of the pupils who were at work in the building when the fire occurred. But through the hole the blaze could be seen from one of the class rooms, hence it's timely discovery.

The affair, while not so serious, put the people of this section to thinking of the great danger of a public school building, especially a two-story one, being covered with shingles.

Elect Education Board By Mecklenburg People. Raleigh, March 5.—Senator Hamilton C. Jones has introduced a bill providing for the election of the Mecklenburg county board of education by the people in order to carry out the instructions of the democratic county convention last year. Under the present system, the members of the board are selected in the primary and their appointments made by the general assembly.

Senator Jones' bill would provide for their election in the regular election, thereby avoiding their appointment by the Legislature.

Personality?

Virginia Moore, actress, is one of the many pretty things which hop along Broadway for the benefit of the tired business man. Her present agent says a beautiful figure and personality make her irresistible.

DRASTIC LIQUOR CRUSADE IS STARTED IN NEW YORK

New District Attorney Begins Padlock Proceedings Against Best Known Cabarets.

New York, March 5.—Padlock proceedings rather than the arrest of offenders will be used here in the future to enforce the prohibition law, United States Attorney Emory R. Buckner said today.

Mr. Buckner, who succeeded Colonel William Hayward only last Monday, today began proceedings in United States district court to close for at least one year 14 of the city's leading cabarets, clubs and fashionable restaurants.

Mr. Buckner's drive in the city, and, if successful, considerably will dim the luster of the lights of New York's great white way. The fashionable and expensive supper clubs, and night life resorts against which he already has sought padlock injunctions are the Beaux Arts restaurant, Club Moritz, Club Borgo, Club Mirador, Club Deauville, Colney restaurant, El Fey club, Lido-Venice, Montebrook restaurant, Monte Carlo, Montquini's restaurant, Piping Rock restaurant, Restaurant Orlion and the Restaurant L'Aiglon.

MISS MARY M'SWINEY TALKS ABOUT IRELAND

Says Country Has Been Given Freedom in Name Only—King Is Still Master.

(By the Associated Press) Asheville, March 6.—The King of England is the master of Ireland, the Irish Free State is free in name only, and the people of Ireland will not rest until they have attained complete independence, declared Miss Mary MacSwiney, daughter of the late Terence MacSwiney, lord mayor of Dublin, who is in Asheville for a visit with her sister, Mam MacSwiney, at St. Genevieve College.

Governor in Receipt of Protest of Ministers. Raleigh, March 5.—Governor McLean has not as yet made a reply to the letter of the Georgia ministers protesting that article which appeared in the Journal of Social Forces, the University publication, it was stated at the executive offices this afternoon.

The press of legislative business has deprived the governor of the opportunity to even read the article attacked, although he has been supplied with a copy of the same. It was indicated that he would acknowledge the protest of the ministers later.

Launch Plan to Make Wilson's Home Shrine. Staunton, Va., March 5.—Initial steps were taken by prominent citizens of Staunton today to organize a national Woodrow Wilson birthplace memorial committee. President Edwin A. Alderman, of the University of Virginia, a life-long friend of the late President, has accepted chairmanship of the committee, it was announced, and will direct a drive to establish as a national shrine and permanent memorial the birthplace here of the world war President of the United States.

Heavy Fall of Snow Is Recorded at Elkin. Elkin, March 5.—The heaviest snowfall of the winter fell here last night, and but for the rain which followed would have blanketed the earth completely. The snow followed on the heels of the most frightful blizzard of the winter. The mercury having descended on Tuesday to the lowest level recorded during the season.

Change Date For Confederate Reunion. (By the Associated Press) Wilson, March 6.—The date of the annual reunion of the United Confederate Veterans of North Carolina has been changed to June 3-5 at Wilson, it was announced today by John W. Durham, Chapter of Daughters of the Confederacy, in charge of arrangements for the reunion. The change of date was made to avoid conflict with the national reunion at Dallas, Texas.

WANTS A NON-PARTISAN STATE SUPREME COURT

Bill to Provide That Not More Than Three Justices Belong to the Same Party.

(By the Associated Press) Raleigh, N. C., March 6.—Not more than three of the five justices of the Supreme Court shall belong to any one political party within the State of North Carolina if the bill introduced in the house of representatives by Representative Butler, from Sampson county, is ratified by the general assembly. The bill was referred to the house committee on Judiciary No. 2.

According to the provisions of this bill no vacancy occurring in the Supreme Court could be filled either by a vote of the people or by appointment, if as many as three of the remaining members of the body belong to the same political body as the candidate elected or appointed.

The measure which is known as "A bill to be entitled an act to provide for a non-partisan Supreme Court," is worded as follows:

"Section 1. That hereafter no one shall be voted for at an election for the chief justice of the Supreme Court of North Carolina, nor shall the State board of elections declare any one elected to the office of chief justice or associate justice of the Supreme Court, nor shall any one qualify and serve in such court as long as three members of said court shall belong to the same political party."

"Section 2: That whenever one or as many as two vacancies shall occur in the Supreme Court as at present constituted, and whenever any person whose name has been certified to the State Board of Elections as a candidate for either the chief justice or associate justice of the Supreme Court, and who shall be voted for by any number of electors of the State at any election hereafter, the person or persons not exceeding two in number, of a different political party who shall receive the highest number of votes on such party ticket shall be declared elected to the office of chief justice or associate justice of the Supreme Court, and who shall be voted for by any number of electors of the State at any election hereafter, the person or persons not exceeding two in number, of a different political party who shall receive the highest number of votes on such party ticket shall be declared elected to the office of chief justice or associate justice of the Supreme Court, and who shall be voted for by any number of electors of the State at any election hereafter, the person or persons not exceeding two in number, of a different political party who shall receive the highest number of votes on such party ticket shall be declared elected to the office of chief justice or associate justice of the Supreme Court, and who shall be voted for by any number of electors of the State at any election hereafter, the person or persons not exceeding two in number, of a different political party who shall receive the highest number of votes on such party ticket shall be declared elected to the office of chief justice or associate justice of the Supreme Court, and who shall be voted for by any number of electors of the State at any election hereafter, the person or persons not exceeding two in number, of a different political party who shall receive the highest number of votes on such party ticket shall be declared elected to the office of chief justice or associate justice of the Supreme Court, and who shall be voted for by any number of electors of the State at any election hereafter, the person or persons not exceeding two in number, of a different political party who shall receive the highest number of votes on such party ticket shall be declared elected to the office of chief justice or associate justice of the Supreme Court, and who shall be voted for by any number of electors of the State at any election hereafter, the person or persons not exceeding two in number, of a different political party who shall receive the highest number of votes on such party ticket shall be declared elected to the office of chief justice or associate justice of the Supreme Court, and who shall be voted for by any number of electors of the State at any election hereafter, the person or persons not exceeding two in number, of a different political party who shall receive the highest number of votes on such party ticket shall be declared elected to the office of chief justice or associate justice of the Supreme Court, and who shall be voted for by any number of electors of the State at any election hereafter, the person or persons not exceeding two in number, of a different political party who shall receive the highest number of votes on such party ticket shall be declared elected to the office of chief justice or associate justice of the Supreme Court, and who shall be voted for by any number of electors of the State at any election hereafter, the person or persons not exceeding two in number, of a different political party who shall receive the highest number of votes on such party ticket shall be declared elected to the office of chief justice or associate justice of the Supreme Court, and who shall be voted for by any number of electors of the State at any election hereafter, the person or persons not exceeding two in number, of a different political party who shall receive the highest number of votes on such party ticket shall be declared elected to the office of chief justice or associate justice of the Supreme Court, and who shall be voted for by any number of electors of the State at any election hereafter, the person or persons not exceeding two in number, of a different political party who shall receive the highest number of votes on such party ticket shall be declared elected to the office of chief justice or associate justice of the Supreme Court, and who shall be voted for by any number of electors of the State at any election hereafter, the person or persons not exceeding two in number, of a different political party who shall receive the highest number of votes on such party ticket shall be declared elected to the office of chief justice or associate justice of the Supreme Court, and who shall be voted for by any number of electors of the State at any election hereafter, the person or persons not exceeding two in number, of a different political party who shall receive the highest number of votes on such party ticket shall be declared elected to the office of chief justice or associate justice of the Supreme Court, and who shall be voted for by any number of electors of the State at any election hereafter, the person or persons not exceeding two in number, of a different political party who shall receive the highest number of votes on such party ticket shall be declared elected to the office of chief justice or associate justice of the Supreme Court, and who shall be voted for by any number of electors of the State at any election hereafter, the person or persons not exceeding two in number, of a different political party who shall receive the highest number of votes on such party ticket shall be declared elected to the office of chief justice or associate justice of the Supreme Court, and who shall be voted for by any number of electors of the State at any election hereafter, the person or persons not exceeding two in number, of a different political party who shall receive the highest number of votes on such party ticket shall be declared elected to the office of chief justice or associate justice of the Supreme Court, and who shall be voted for by any number of electors of the State at any election hereafter, the person or persons not exceeding two in number, of a different political party who shall receive the highest number of votes on such party ticket shall be declared elected to the office of chief justice or associate justice of the Supreme Court, and who shall be voted for by any number of electors of the State at any election hereafter, the person or persons not exceeding two in number, of a different political party who shall receive the highest number of votes on such party ticket shall be declared elected to the office of chief justice or associate justice of the Supreme Court, and who shall be voted for by any number of electors of the State at any election hereafter, the person or persons not exceeding two in number, of a different political party who shall receive the highest number of votes on such party ticket shall be declared elected to the office of chief justice or associate justice of the Supreme Court, and who shall be voted for by any number of electors of the State at any election hereafter, the person or persons not exceeding two in number, of a different political party who shall receive the highest number of votes on such party ticket shall be declared elected to the office of chief justice or associate justice of the Supreme Court, and who shall be voted for by any number of electors of the State at any election hereafter, the person or persons not exceeding two in number, of a different political party who shall receive the highest number of votes on such party ticket shall be declared elected to the office of chief justice or associate justice of the Supreme Court, and who shall be voted for by any number of electors of the State at any election hereafter, the person or persons not exceeding two in number, of a different political party who shall receive the highest number of votes on such party ticket shall be declared elected to the office of chief justice or associate justice of the Supreme Court, and who shall be voted for by any number of electors of the State at any election hereafter, the person or persons not exceeding two in number, of a different political party who shall receive the highest number of votes on such party ticket shall be declared elected to the office of chief justice or associate justice of the Supreme Court, and who shall be voted for by any number of electors of the State at any election hereafter, the person or persons not exceeding two in number, of a different political party who shall receive the highest number of votes on such party ticket shall be declared elected to the office of chief justice or associate justice of the Supreme Court, and who shall be voted for by any number of electors of the State at any election hereafter, the person or persons not exceeding two in number, of a different political party who shall receive the highest number of votes on such party ticket shall be declared elected to the office of chief justice or associate justice of the Supreme Court, and who shall be voted for by any number of electors of the State at any election hereafter, the person or persons not exceeding two in number, of a different political party who shall receive the highest number of votes on such party ticket shall be declared elected to the office of chief justice or associate justice of the Supreme Court, and who shall be voted for by any number of electors of the State at any election hereafter, the person or persons not exceeding two in number, of a different political party who shall receive the highest number of votes on such party ticket shall be declared elected to the office of chief justice or associate justice of the Supreme Court, and who shall be voted for by any number of electors of the State at any election hereafter, the person or persons not exceeding two in number, of a different political party who shall receive the highest number of votes on such party ticket shall be declared elected to the office of chief justice or associate justice of the Supreme Court, and who shall be voted for by any number of electors of the State at any election hereafter, the person or persons not exceeding two in number, of a different political party who shall receive the highest number of votes on such party ticket shall be declared elected to the office of chief justice or associate justice of the Supreme Court, and who shall be voted for by any number of electors of the State at any election hereafter, the person or persons not exceeding two in number, of a different political party who shall receive the highest number of votes on such party ticket shall be declared elected to the office of chief justice or associate justice of the Supreme Court, and who shall be voted for by any number of electors of the State at any election hereafter, the person or persons not exceeding two in number, of a different political party who shall receive the highest number of votes on such party ticket shall be declared elected to the office of chief justice or associate justice of the Supreme Court, and who shall be voted for by any number of electors of the State at any election hereafter, the person or persons not exceeding two in number, of a different political party who shall receive the highest number of votes on such party ticket shall be declared elected to the office of chief justice or associate justice of the Supreme Court, and who shall be voted for by any number of electors of the State at any election hereafter, the person or persons not exceeding two in number, of a different political party who shall receive the highest number of votes on such party ticket shall be declared elected to the office of chief justice or associate justice of the Supreme Court, and who shall be voted for by any number of electors of the State at any election hereafter, the person or persons not exceeding two in number, of a different political party who shall receive the highest number of votes on such party ticket shall be declared elected to the office of chief justice or associate justice of the Supreme Court, and who shall be voted for by any number of electors of the State at any election hereafter, the person or persons not exceeding two in number, of a different political party who shall receive the highest number of votes on such party ticket shall be declared elected to the office of chief justice or associate justice of the Supreme Court, and who shall be voted for by any number of electors of the State at any election hereafter, the person or persons not exceeding two in number, of a different political party who shall receive the highest number of votes on such party ticket shall be declared elected to the office of chief justice or associate justice of the Supreme Court, and who shall be voted for by any number of electors of the State at any election hereafter, the person or persons not exceeding two in number, of a different political party who shall receive the highest number of votes on such party ticket shall be declared elected to the office of chief justice or associate justice of the Supreme Court, and who shall be voted for by any number of electors of the State at any election hereafter, the person or persons not exceeding two in number, of a different political party who shall receive the highest number of votes on such party ticket shall be declared elected to the office of chief justice or associate justice of the Supreme Court, and who shall be voted for by any number of electors of the State at any election hereafter, the person or persons not exceeding two in number, of a different political party who shall receive the highest number of votes on such party ticket shall be declared elected to the office of chief justice or associate justice of the Supreme Court, and who shall be voted for by any number of electors of the State at any election hereafter, the person or persons not exceeding two in number, of a different political party who shall receive the highest number of votes on such party ticket shall be declared elected to the office of chief justice or associate justice of the Supreme Court, and who shall be voted for by any number of electors of the State at any election hereafter, the person or persons not exceeding two in number, of a different political party who shall receive the highest number of votes on such party ticket shall be declared elected to the office of chief justice or associate justice of the Supreme Court, and who shall be voted for by any number of electors of the State at any election hereafter, the person or persons not exceeding two in number, of a different political party who shall receive the highest number of votes on such party ticket shall be declared elected to the office of chief justice or associate justice of the Supreme Court, and who shall be voted for by any number of electors of the State at any election hereafter, the person or persons not exceeding two in number, of a different political party who shall receive the highest number of votes on such party ticket shall be declared elected to the office of chief justice or associate justice of the Supreme Court, and who shall be voted for by any number of electors of the State at any election hereafter, the person or persons not exceeding two in number, of a different political party who shall receive the highest number of votes on such party ticket shall be declared elected to the office of chief justice or associate justice of the Supreme Court, and who shall be voted for by any number of electors of the State at any election hereafter, the person or persons not exceeding two in number, of a different political party who shall receive the highest number of votes on such party ticket shall be declared elected to the office of chief justice or associate justice of the Supreme Court, and who shall be voted for by any number of electors of the State at any election hereafter, the person or persons not exceeding two in number, of a different political party who shall receive the highest number of votes on such party ticket shall be declared elected to the office of chief justice or associate justice of the Supreme Court, and who shall be voted for by any number of electors of the State at any election hereafter, the person or persons not exceeding two in number, of a different political party who shall receive the highest number of votes on such party ticket shall be declared elected to the office of chief justice or associate justice of the Supreme Court, and who shall be voted for by any number of electors of the State at any election hereafter, the person or persons not exceeding two in number, of a different political party who shall receive the highest number of votes on such party ticket shall be declared elected to the office of chief justice or associate justice of the Supreme Court, and who shall be voted for by any number of electors of the State at any election hereafter, the person or persons not exceeding two in number, of a different political party who shall receive the highest number of votes on such party ticket shall be declared elected to the office of chief justice or associate justice of the Supreme Court, and who shall be voted for by any number of electors of the State at any election hereafter, the person or persons not exceeding two in number, of a different political party who shall receive the highest number of votes on such party ticket shall be declared elected to the office of chief justice or associate justice of the Supreme Court, and who shall be voted for by any number of electors of the State at any election hereafter, the person or persons not exceeding two in number, of a different political party who shall receive the highest number of votes on such party ticket shall be declared elected to the office of chief justice or associate justice of the Supreme Court, and who shall be voted for by any number of electors of the State at any election hereafter, the person or persons not exceeding two in number, of a different political party who shall receive the highest number of votes on such party ticket shall be declared elected to the office of chief justice or associate justice of the Supreme Court, and who shall be voted for by any number of electors of the State at any election hereafter, the person or persons not exceeding two in number, of a different political party who shall receive the highest number of votes on such party ticket shall be declared elected to the office of chief justice or associate justice of the Supreme Court, and who shall be voted for by any number of electors of the State at any election hereafter, the person or persons not exceeding two in number, of a different political party who shall receive the highest number of votes on such party ticket shall be declared elected to the office of chief justice or associate justice of the Supreme Court, and who shall be voted for by any number of electors of the State at any election hereafter, the person or persons not exceeding two in number, of a different political party who shall receive the highest number of votes on such party ticket shall be declared elected to the office of chief justice or associate justice of the Supreme Court, and who shall be voted for by any number of electors of the State at any election hereafter, the person or persons not exceeding two in number, of a different political party who shall receive the highest number of votes on such party ticket shall be declared elected to the office of chief justice or associate justice of the Supreme Court, and who shall be voted for by any number of electors of the State at any election hereafter, the person or persons not exceeding two in number, of a different political party who shall receive the highest number of votes on such party ticket shall be declared elected to the office of chief justice or associate justice of the Supreme Court, and who shall be voted for by any number of electors of the State at any election hereafter, the person or persons not exceeding two in number, of a different political party who shall receive the highest number of votes on such party ticket shall be declared elected to the office of chief justice or associate justice of the Supreme Court, and who shall be voted for by any number of electors of the State at any election hereafter, the person or persons not exceeding two in number, of a different political party who shall receive the highest number of votes on such party ticket shall be declared elected to the office of chief justice or associate justice of the Supreme Court, and who shall be voted for by any number of electors of the State at any election hereafter, the person or persons not exceeding two in number, of a different political party who shall receive the highest number of votes on such party ticket shall be declared elected to the office of chief justice or associate justice of the Supreme Court, and who shall be voted for by any number of electors of the State at any election hereafter, the person or persons not exceeding two in number, of a different political party who shall receive the highest number of votes on such party ticket shall be declared elected to the office of chief justice or associate justice of the Supreme Court, and who shall be voted for by any number of electors of the State at any election hereafter, the person or persons not exceeding two in number, of a different political party who shall receive the highest number of votes on such party ticket shall be declared elected to the office of chief justice or associate justice of the Supreme Court, and who shall be voted for by any number of electors of the State at any election hereafter, the person or persons not exceeding two in number, of a different political party who shall receive the highest number of votes on such party ticket shall be declared elected to the office of chief justice or associate justice of the Supreme Court, and who shall be voted for by any number of electors of the State at any election hereafter, the person or persons not exceeding two in number, of a different political party who shall receive the highest number of votes on such party ticket shall be declared elected to the office of chief justice or associate justice of the Supreme Court, and who shall be voted for by any number of electors of the State at any election hereafter, the person or persons not exceeding two in number, of a different political party who shall receive the highest number of votes on such party ticket shall be declared elected to the office of chief justice or associate justice of the Supreme Court, and who shall be voted for by any number of electors of the State at any election hereafter, the person or persons not exceeding two in number, of a different political party who shall receive the highest number of votes on such party ticket shall be declared elected to the office of chief justice or associate justice of the Supreme Court, and who shall be voted for by any number of electors of the State at any election hereafter, the person or persons not exceeding two in number, of a different political party who shall receive the highest number of votes on such party ticket shall be declared elected to the office of chief justice or associate justice of the Supreme Court, and who shall be voted for by any number of electors of the State at any election hereafter, the person or persons not exceeding two in number, of a different political party who shall receive the highest number of votes on such party ticket shall be declared elected to the office of chief justice or associate justice of the Supreme Court, and who shall be voted for by any number of electors of the State at any election hereafter, the person or persons not exceeding two in number, of a different political party who shall receive the highest number of votes on such party ticket shall be declared elected to the office of chief justice or associate justice of the Supreme Court, and who shall be voted for by any number of electors of the State at any election hereafter, the person or persons not exceeding two in number, of a different political party who shall receive the highest number of votes on such party ticket shall be declared elected to the office of chief justice or associate justice of the Supreme Court, and who shall be voted for by any number of electors of the State at any election hereafter, the person or persons not exceeding two in number, of a different political party who shall receive the highest number of votes on such party ticket shall be declared elected to the office of chief justice or associate justice of the Supreme Court, and who shall be voted for by any number of electors of the State at any election hereafter, the person or persons not exceeding two in number, of a different political party who shall receive the highest number of votes on such party ticket shall be declared elected to the office of chief justice or associate justice of the Supreme Court, and who shall be voted for by any number of electors of the State at any election hereafter, the person or persons not exceeding two in number, of a different political party who shall receive the highest number of votes on such party ticket shall be declared elected to the office of chief justice or associate justice of the Supreme Court, and who shall be voted for by any number of electors of the State at any election hereafter, the person or persons not exceeding two in number, of a different political party who shall receive the highest number of votes on such party ticket shall be declared elected to the office of chief justice or associate justice of the Supreme Court, and who shall be voted for by any number of electors of the State at any election hereafter, the person or persons not exceeding two in number, of a different political party who shall receive the highest number of votes on such party ticket shall be declared elected to the office of chief justice or associate justice of the Supreme Court, and who shall be voted for by any number of electors of the State at any election hereafter, the person or persons not exceeding two in number, of a different political party who shall receive the highest number of votes on such party ticket shall be declared elected to the office of chief justice or associate justice of the Supreme Court, and who shall be voted for by any number of electors of the State at any election hereafter, the person or persons not exceeding two in number, of a different political party who shall receive the highest number of votes on such party ticket shall be declared elected to the office of chief justice or associate justice of the Supreme Court, and who shall be voted for by any number of electors of the State at any election hereafter, the person or persons not exceeding two in number, of a different political party who shall receive the highest number of votes on such party ticket shall be declared elected to the office of chief justice or associate justice of the Supreme Court, and who shall be voted for by any number of electors of the State at any election hereafter, the person or persons not exceeding two in number, of a different political party who shall receive the highest number of votes on such party ticket shall be declared elected to the office of chief justice or associate justice of the Supreme Court, and who shall be voted for by any number of electors of the State at any election hereafter, the person or persons not exceeding two in number, of a different political party who shall receive the highest number of votes on such party ticket shall be declared elected to the office of chief justice or associate justice of the Supreme Court, and who shall be voted for by any number of electors of the State at any election hereafter, the person or persons not exceeding two in number, of a different political party who shall receive the highest number of votes on such party ticket shall be declared elected to the office of chief justice or associate justice of the Supreme Court, and who shall be voted for by any number of electors of the State at any election hereafter, the person or persons not exceeding two in number, of a different political party who shall receive the highest number of votes on such party ticket shall be declared elected to the office of chief justice or associate justice of the Supreme Court, and who shall be voted for by any number of electors of the State at any election hereafter, the person or persons not exceeding two in number, of a different political party who shall receive the highest number of votes on such party ticket shall be declared elected to the office of chief justice or associate justice of the Supreme Court, and who shall be voted for by any number of electors of the State at any election hereafter, the person or persons not exceeding two in number, of a different political party who shall receive the highest number of votes on such party ticket shall be declared elected to the office of chief justice or associate justice of the Supreme Court, and who shall be voted for by any number of electors of the State at any election hereafter, the person or persons not exceeding two in number, of a different political party who shall receive the highest number of votes on such party ticket shall be declared elected to the office of chief justice or associate justice of the Supreme Court, and who shall be voted for by any number of electors of the State at any election hereafter, the person or persons not exceeding two in number, of a different political party who shall receive the highest number of votes on such party ticket shall be declared elected to the office of chief justice or associate justice of the Supreme Court, and who shall be voted for by any number of electors of the State at any election hereafter, the person or persons not exceeding two in number, of a different political party who shall receive the highest number of votes on such party ticket shall be declared elected to the office of chief justice or associate justice of the Supreme Court, and who shall be voted for by any number of electors of the State at any election hereafter, the person or persons not exceeding two in number, of a different political party who shall receive the highest number of votes on such party ticket shall be declared elected to the office of chief justice or associate justice of the Supreme Court, and who shall be voted for by any number of electors of the State at any election hereafter, the person or persons not exceeding two in number, of a different political party who shall receive the highest number of votes on such party ticket shall be declared elected to the office of chief justice or associate justice of the Supreme Court, and who shall be voted for by any number of electors of the State at any election hereafter, the person or persons not exceeding two in number, of a different political party who shall receive the highest number of votes on such party ticket shall be declared elected to the office of chief justice or associate justice of the Supreme Court, and who shall be voted for by any number of electors of the State at any election hereafter, the person or persons not exceeding two in number, of a different political party who shall receive the highest number of votes on such party ticket shall be declared elected to the office of chief justice or associate justice of the Supreme