Sizing Up the Flapper.

Philadelphia Ledger. The flapper is not a modern phenomenon; the name is new, but her sisters played about in Nineveh and Tyre. However, the flapper as a much-advertised contemporary type has been lauded and derided beyond anything or anybody else.

She has been the target of the severest sermons. She is the theme of solemn commencement addresses. The Sunday newspapers, the theatres, the magazines, the women's clubs and uplift organizations, have done a great deal of worrying as to her present trend and her final destination. Meanwhile, she pursues the rollicking, tempestuous tenor of her way, and much of what she really gives the lie to a great deal that is said of her.

In a medical convention at Atlantic City she is scientifically explained. She is the victim, it appears, of a malady for which the name flapperitis is coined.

That name is indicative of a high-strung nervous organism ever kept taut and tense like a violin string, in the quest of fresh stimuli and untried sensation. The flapper, it is held, needs a rest—certainly the country needs a rest from so much discussion of her.

It was the same type of apparently heedless, thoughtless boyhood that is the war surprised itself and all of us with cool and quiet efficiency and reserves of power little suspected. In a time when many discovered they could do all sorts of things they never thought they could do the flapper grandly rose to the crisis.

After the war came something of a relaxation, and that was only to be expected. There is nothing essentially the matter with the modern girl. She, in her time, will come to be considered old-fogy and conservative. She must endure hearing the same accusations hurled at her that she offers to the older generation now.

Of course, we all need to abate the pace and reduce the stress of "high-tenion" living. The need is not peculiar to the flapper. Let some of the enormous body of self-appointed censors of the flapper watch their own step, read themselves a lecture and take a goodly dose of their own medicine, for their own malady is so much like flapperitis that it would need an expert dissection to detect the difference.

ORDERS REMOVAL OF ENTIRE TOWN

Bustling Oil Community in Wyoming Must Find New Home in Sixty Days. Cheyenne, Wyo., March 6.—The town of Layoye literally was wiped off the map of Wyoming today and its 1,500 residents deprived of their homes by a ruling of Federal Judge T. Blake Kennedy, who ordered that the entire village and its populace must be moved in order to make a clear path for a giant of industry—petroleum.

Public buildings, business houses, homes—everything—must go. Judge Kennedy decreed that the Ohio Oil Company, which leased the land on which the town is located from the Government for oil development, is entitled to full possession within 60 days. An April 21, 1924, he held that the town had been established without legal basis, but did not provide for enforcement of a removal order.

Today's decision means that if any sign of the town is left in 60 days, those responsible will be subjected to citation for contempt of court. Layoye is a modern incarnation of the typical boom mining town of the old West. Prosperity has been general since the town was established in 1920 and the hundreds of men employed in the breathless rush for oil spent as freely as they earned.

Boomed Town. Layoye is located in the heart of the Big Salt Creek oil field. It puffed up through patches of alkali and sage brush almost overnight, forty miles north of Casper, when oil drilling called hundreds of men to that vicinity. In 1922 it took on another spurt of growing, which continued until 1923, and it still is the same bustling village, having one large mercantile establishment, three weekly newspapers, numerous motion picture theatres, automobile agencies and other institutions of work and play which the pleasure seekers demand.

Like the mushroom town that it is, its buildings are flimsy—hastily thrown together shacks for the most part—and easily can be demolished. It is expected that the business interests of the town will be transferred mostly to Salt Creek, a nearby oil town.

Says Layoye to Fight Federal Judges Orders. Casper, Wyo., March 6.—The oil town of Layoye will fight for its existence in the United States circuit court of appeals, Alfred S. Beach, counsel for the Layoye Townsite Association, said here tonight.

Final Adjournment Will Probably Occur Tuesday Night, as of Wednesday. Raleigh News and Observer. "With presiding officers of both houses conceding that they cannot clear their calendars in time for adjournment by tonight at midnight, when pay of members ceases by constitutional limitation, the probable date of adjournment now appears to be Tuesday night, with the clocks pushed up to show a legislative day as of Wednesday."

Definite prediction that the end of the session will not come before Tuesday night was made last night by Lieut. Gov. J. Elmer Long, president of the Senate, while Speaker Edgar W. Pharr, of the House was somewhat more optimistic, foreseeing an end of labor by Monday. Although both houses have been holding two or three sessions daily all this week calendars remain congested.

The revenue bill has finally been agreed upon but the Nettles bill levying a tax on theatres for Confederate pensions, which was adopted by the House yesterday, cannot possibly be put through its readings in the Senate before the legislative day of Tuesday.

The House last night refused to take a vote on final adjournment on the ground that today would be time enough to determine the matter.

Work on New Passenger Station. Winston-Salem, March 7.—Actual construction on the new union passenger station for this city has begun. The concrete forms for the first story of the building are already in place and the concrete poured. Officials in charge of the work state that the work of construction will be rushed as much as possible.

BILIOUSNESS

Retired Minister Tells How He Keeps in Good Form With the Assistance of Black-Draught.

West Graham, Va.—The Rev. Lewis Evans, a well-known retired minister, now past 80, living here, has a high opinion of Black-Draught, which he says he has taken when needed, for 25 years. "For years I had been suffering with my liver," he says. "Sometimes the pain would be very intense and my back would hurt all the time. Black-Draught was the first thing I found that would give me any relief."

"My liver has always been sluggish. Sometimes it gives me a lot of trouble. I have suffered a lot with it—pains in my side and back, and bad headache, caused from extreme biliousness. "After I found Black-Draught, I would begin to take it as soon as I felt a spell coming on and it relieved the cause at once. I can recommend it to anybody suffering from liver trouble. A dose or two now and then keeps me in good form."

Made from selected medicinal roots and herbs, and containing no dangerous mineral drugs, Black-Draught is nature's own remedy for a tired, lazy liver. NC-168

Hints From a House-Wife's Kitchen Diary

Dishes From East and West

TURKISH-AMERICAN PILAF

This near-Turkish national dish proves that one need not go to the Near East to enjoy its savory cooking. Caramelize one quarter of a cup of granulated sugar in an enameled ware saucepan, over a slow fire. Watch carefully and stir so that it does not "catch." Cream together one quarter cupful butter and one third cupful flour. Add one cupful brown sugar, three egg yolks, well beaten, and one-half teaspoonful of salt. Add two cupfuls of chili powder. Bring to a boil, skim, and simmer for one hour. Pour the broth into an enameled ware double boiler and slowly add half a cupful of uncooked rice. Then add half a cupful of cleaned dried currants, which will not affect or be affected by the surface of the enameled ware utensil, which is impervious to the action of fruit acids. Cook until the rice and currants are tender. Meanwhile, melt four tablespoonfuls of drippings or other fat in a pan, lay in the cooked meat and brown slowly. Pile the meat in the center of a hot platter and surround with rice. Curry or saffron may be used in place of the chili powder, if preferred, or as a variation.

TRY THIS BUTTERSCOTCH LAYER PIE

This pie differs from the ordinary kind, in that it is made up like cake. Caramelize one quarter of a cup of granulated sugar in an enameled ware saucepan, over a slow fire. Watch carefully and stir so that it does not "catch." Cream together one quarter cupful butter and one third cupful flour. Add one cupful brown sugar, three egg yolks, well beaten, and one-half teaspoonful of salt. Add two cupfuls of chili powder. Bring to a boil, skim, and simmer for one hour. Pour the broth into an enameled ware double boiler and slowly add half a cupful of uncooked rice. Then add half a cupful of cleaned dried currants, which will not affect or be affected by the surface of the enameled ware utensil, which is impervious to the action of fruit acids. Cook until the rice and currants are tender. Meanwhile, melt four tablespoonfuls of drippings or other fat in a pan, lay in the cooked meat and brown slowly. Pile the meat in the center of a hot platter and surround with rice. Curry or saffron may be used in place of the chili powder, if preferred, or as a variation.

Cut three rounds about a quarter of an inch thick of a flaky pastry to fit the bottom of the pie plate and prick well with a fork. Bake in a hot oven until delicately browned.

When the pastry and filling are cool put the pie together like a layer cake with filling on top also. Cover with a meringue made of the three egg whites beaten with six tablespoonfuls of powdered sugar. Brown slightly in a moderate oven.

DELICIOUS CABBAGE ROLLS

Vegetables are being used in very appetizing ways nowadays, and cabbage, too, has such possibilities. And as cold cooked meat is employed the housewife will find it a very adaptable dish for utilizing the leftovers of a roast. Chop one cupful cold meat, one medium sized onion, one green pepper, and add two cupfuls of mashed potatoes. Season with sage and celery salt and shape the mixture into small rolls. Roll each of these in a cabbage leaf (wilted by placing in boiling water for five minutes) and place them in an enameled ware baking dish. Add sufficient boiling water or stock to cover them about half. Bake for forty-five minutes, or until the cabbage leaves are tender.

These cabbage rolls should be handled carefully and gently while serving so that their appearance is not marred. The enameled ware baking dish is especially suitable because it is so china-like and dainty in appearance that it can be brought to the table and used as a serving dish.

"YE OLDE ENGLISH" PORK PIE

Meat pies owe their distinction to a rich stock or gravy combined with fruit. Although they are all of English origin, they are becoming popular in American homes and are always well received during these brisk days.

Remove the bone from two pounds of a loin of pork (from the neck end). Then cut the meat into thin slices and dust them with salt, pepper and nutmeg. Line a deep enameled ware baking dish with plain pastry, and fill with alternate layers of meat and fat sliced apples, which cannot impair the vitreous surface of the enameled ware. Sprinkle the apples lightly with sugar, and use meat for the top layer. Pour over all, three quarters of a cupful of rich brown stock or boiling water and a tablespoonful of melted butter. Cover with a top crust in which vents have been made and brush over with the beaten yolk of an egg, so that the top will be shiny and nicely browned. Bake in a moderate oven for an hour and a half.

Potatoes can be added, if desired.

If Back Hurts Begin on Salts

Flush Your Kidneys Occasionally by Drinking Quarts of Good Water

No man or woman can make a mistake by flushing the kidneys occasionally, says a well-known authority. Too much rich food creates acids which clog the kidney pores so that they sluggishly filter or strain only part of the waste and poisons from the blood. Then you get sick. Rheumatism, headaches, liver trouble, nervousness, constipation, dizziness, sleeplessness, bladder disorders often come from sluggish kidneys.

The moment you feel a dull ache in the kidneys or your back hurts, or if the urine is cloudy, offensive, full of sediment, irregular of passage, or attended by a sensation of scalding, begin to drink soft water in quantities; also get about four ounces of Epsom Salts from any reliable pharmacy and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys may then act fine.

This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to help flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to activity, also to help neutralize the acids in the system so they no longer cause irritation, thus often relieving bladder disorders. Jarl Salts is inexpensive and can not injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink, which everyone can take now and then to help keep the kidneys clean and the blood pure, thereby often preventing serious kidney complications. By all means have your physician examine your kidneys at least twice a year.
