RICHMOND-FLOWE STORE ROBBED AGAIN TUESDAY NIGHT
Police Can Find No Clues as to Identity of Thieves Who Loot Clothing Store.
Richmond-Flowe was the scene of another robbery Tuesday night, this being the second theft which has occurred in that store within the last six months. The amount of goods stolen was estimated by store officials as being between three and four hundred dollars. The store was entered from a second story window. The second floor does not extend back to the building and the thieves climbed to the roof of the one-story part, pried apart the iron bars which were supposed to protect the store from entrance by that means and then entered. A careful selection of the goods was made, a quantity of shoes, hats, suits, hosiery, suit cases, hand bags and other articles being taken. During the selection, the goods were torn from the shelves or from the cases in which they were placed and what was not wanted was thrown on the floor. When the store was opened early Wednesday morning, the whole place presented a wrecked appearance. In getting the goods away from the store, a truck or automobile was used. The back door was used in making the exit and the goods were hauled away in the conveyance. Nothing was known of the robbery until clerks entered the store early Wednesday morning. The police heard no unusual noises and were unable to find any clues by which to identify the thieves. The robbery of this store which occurred early in the fall of last year was very similar to the Tuesday night theft. At that time, entrance was made in a side door and a truck was used in getting the stolen goods away. At that time, the store was left in an attempt to cover the loss. Owing to the fact that the fire was discovered before 11 o'clock, the time of that robbery was able to be determined. As it was on a Saturday night, and the store was not closed until 10, and the robbery took place immediately after closing time. Chief L. A. Talbirt stated Wednesday morning that he was of the opinion that there was a band of men who were going over this part of the state making their depredations on store owners. He said that he had conversed with two store owners from Cornelius and Davidson and they reported two thefts in the last sixty days.

Opening Service of New Kannapolis Presbyterian Church.
Kannapolis, March 10.—The opening service was held in the auditorium of the new Presbyterian Church on Sunday evening, March 8th. The pastors and members of the other churches of the town were extended a cordial invitation to take part in the worship and those delightfully accepting the invitation were: Rev. C. K. Turner, and members of the First Baptist Church; Rev. M. L. Edenhour and members of the Kimball Memorial Lutheran; Rev. J. F. Moser and members of the Trinity Methodist Church, and Rev. L. A. Peeler and members of St. Johns Reformed Church. The service was well attended, about eight hundred being in the church, while many were not permitted because of the lack of room. The church was prettily decorated, the pulpit being banked in flowers and after the choir had rendered two selections, the visiting pastors made appropriate talks. Rev. Mr. Jamison, pastor of the church, then preached a helpful and very impressive sermon from 1 Cor. 13:1.
R. D. Goodman Takes Sunderland Hall Girls on Field Trip.
Twenty-two Sunderland Hall girls accompanied R. D. Goodman to the County Home Tuesday evening on an inspection of the fruit trees in the orchard. The trees at the County Home have been sprayed and pruned regularly with the result that they are among the most perfect to be found in the county. In the course of agriculture which is given at Sunderland Hall, a field trip is made each year under the supervision of Mr. Goodman. According to Mr. Goodman, if questioning meant interest, then the Sunderland Hall girls were most interested in the matter of raising fruit trees.

"The Narrow Street" romantic mystery comedy, featuring Dorothy Devory and Matt Moore, is the feature being shown today and tomorrow at the Pastime.
"The Sea Hawk," with Milton Sills and a supporting cast including Enid Bennett, Lloyd Hughes and Wallace Berry is being shown today and tomorrow at the Star. Shows begin at 2 o'clock, 5 o'clock and 8:15 o'clock. Special music.
Minerant Salesman Found Dead Under Car.
Winston-Salem, March 10.—Jake King, 75, an itinerant medicine and soap salesman, whose home was six miles west of Reidsville, today was found dead under his overturned car on a highway six miles south of Medicine, by P. E. Martin, Madison mail carrier. King had suffered a stroke of paralysis several years ago and was in feeble health. It is thought possible that he suffered a second stroke while driving along the road and that he was virtually dead before the car turned over on him. King lived alone, and so far as known had no relatives in this section.

NO MORE AUTO LICENSES TO BE ISSUED HERE

Discontinuance of Branch Offices Over State of North Carolina Announced.
In a letter received Wednesday morning by H. W. Blanks, of the Chamber of Commerce, an announcement was made to the effect that the branch office of the license department here is to be discontinued on March 31st. The letter was sent by C. W. Roberts, active vice-president of the Carolina Motor Club under whose auspices the branches were established. In this letter it was stated that it was hoped that a plan could be worked out whereby it would be possible to confine the various branches, but that whatever was done would have to be a new arrangement after April 1st. The significance of the letter is that in the future it will become necessary for automobile owners who wish to license their car to send to Raleigh for the number as was formerly the case. The present system was started a year or so ago and during the time since its installation, it has proved a great convenience for motorists. The reason for the action of the state in stopping the issuance of licenses through branch offices is not known. It is to apply to all branch offices in the state. The text of the letter is as follows: Mr. H. W. Blanks, Mgr., Carolina Motor Club, Concord, N. C. Dear Mr. Blanks: Due to transfer of the Automobile Department there is a possibility that all branches will be discontinued, so far as the issuing of license is concerned. This is to advise you that all present arrangements will terminate on March 31st, and the State or ourselves will not feel under any obligations after that date. We are very much in hopes that we can work out some plan whereby the Commissioner will agree to continue the various branches, but whatever is done will have to be a new arrangement after April 1st. On March 20th at Greensboro there will be a joint meeting of the Carolina Motor Club and the Carolinas Automobile Trade Association with the Commissioner as a witness at which time we will discuss this and other motor vehicle matters. It is imperative that you as a dealer arrange to attend this meeting and urge as many other dealers and car owners as possible to attend. Please let me know if you will be in Greensboro on the 20th. Cordially yours, C. W. ROBERTS, Vice President.

SEARCH WITHOUT WARRANT.

Statesville Daily.
The Supreme Court of the United States holds, Justice, McReynolds and Sutherland dissenting, that it is lawful for officers to stop and search automobiles and other vehicles for liquor without a warrant. The court draws a distinction between the search of vehicles and buildings—residences, or business places. A warrant is necessary for the search of buildings, but inasmuch as a ship, a motor boat, a wagon or an automobile could be moved out of the jurisdiction of the officer pending the obtaining of the necessary papers, the officer may proceed without the warrant in unreasonable," says Chief Justice Taft, delivering the opinion of the court "if a prohibition agent were authorized to stop every automobile on the chance of finding liquor." And yet in effect that is exactly what the decision gives the officer the authority to do. True the Chief Justice declares that the officer must have "reasonable or probable cause for believing that the automobile which he stops" has liquor in it that is being illegally transported. But after all the officer is the judge of what is "reasonable or probable cause." Careful and prudent officers will not of course attempt search without satisfactory reasons. But many of them—in fact the great majority—keep on the chase, will not have difficulty in forming a belief that something may be wrong and make search without the "reasonable or probable cause" contemplated by the court. And in localities such as Iredell county, in which there is $50 prize money for every automobile found carrying liquor, incentive for the search is strong. At the same time it is realized that under modern conditions it would be impracticable to wait for a search warrant. If the automobile could not be detained while the warrant was being issued, the rum runners would find their freedom greatly enlarged. Those who carry liquor in their cars, no matter how small the amount, have only themselves to blame if they get in trouble. Innocent people who may be held up and searched are of course greatly humiliated. But the humiliation could be borne with some degree of composure if the officers treated the suspects as possibly innocent until evidence to the contrary was forthcoming. But too many of the officers add to the humiliation by being very openly about their search, treating the suspect as guilty until he establishes his innocence. It is the ugly officer, in some cases ignorant and brutal, without intelligent comprehension, or indifferent to the rights of the accused, that arouses the storm of indignation against reckless search, shooting into cars without evidence that they are contraband carriers, etc. The court is in favor of the right of the officer to use force to stop a car in the absence of actual knowledge that it was a contraband carrier. It is unfortunate that this question was not before the court.

New Traffic Experiments.
The anti-jaywalking ordinance lately put into effect in Los Angeles is already stamped a success by that city's traffic authorities. There the movement of pedestrians who wish to cross busy streets is confined to street corners where they must obey the traffic signals. In the last six weeks the law was in effect over 200 persons were arrested. Only violators unacquainted with the ordinance were released; all other offenders were fined $5. The number of arrests has since steadily decreased. These things are claimed as accomplishments for the new law: vehicular traffic has been reduced by 40 per cent; pedestrian traffic has been facilitated 50 per cent, and accidents to pedestrians from autos have been reduced 95 per cent. As a result Los Angeles strongly recommends the anti-jaywalking ordinance as a pattern for others in the proposed standardization of auto laws. Los Angeles will in July test the right of a municipality to exclude horses and horse-drawn vehicles from the streets. It claims that most traffic blockades are caused by slow-moving vehicles and for that reason has reserved certain thoroughfares for auto traffic exclusively. It has abolished parking privileges in many places and is trying out a new system of one-way streets. Deaf mutes have lost their right to drive autos in Maryland. The State Commissioner of motor vehicles' rules against them at the outset, contending that the affliction was a menace to other drivers. The deaf mutes appealed the case but the Harford county circuit court has upheld the commissioner's view. A popular attitude to the lack of uniformity in traffic laws was voiced by A. W. Frye, supreme commander of the Macabees, in addressing an automobile men's conference. He declared it impossible to drive from coast to coast without being arrested for violating one law or another. "Every individual police department has its own rules," he commented, giving these as examples: a left-hand turn around a traffic officer at Harrisburg, Pa., means arrest whereas to drive "inside" a Washington, D. C. traffic post also means arrest, the hand signals used in California and certain other western states would invite accidents in the East, and vice versa. There is a widespread movement to have state auto license tags standardized. Various organizations are interested. At the request of Governor Jackson, of Indiana, a bill has been introduced in the legislature of that state aimed to provide permanent license plates in Indiana. In many states the tags are made at post-offices. The District of Columbia figured out that it cost less than 14 cents to make a pair of plates for which the capital city motorist pays $1. The proposal that motorists be compelled to take out insurance to provide relief in case of accidents has elicited a statement from a committee representing car-ualty and surety companies that investigated the subject to the effect that the scheme would not tend to reduce accidents but would serve to increase them. In clearing the idea, the report asserts that "the prime and fundamental need is to prevent accidents" and suggests that "all regulatory legislation be framed with that end in view." "Prevention," it asserts, "should not be subordinated to indemnity." It thinks compulsory insurance would make many motorists careless. Wet Mitties Ousted. Three midshipmen of the United States naval academy charged with drinking in quarters were permitted by Secretary Willbur to resign rather than be fined. Another cadet has been recommended for dismissal because he wore a pair of white silk gloves on duty instead of white line ones that the regulations provide. However, Rear Admiral Wilson, retiring superintendent of the academy, denies the stories of a "plot" to flunk or otherwise weed out members of any of the classes. Jack Remann, the Canadian heavy weight champion, has been engaged by the Geopose Valley A. C. of Rochester to meet Leo Gates, the Indian fighter of New England, in a contest of 12 rounds to be staged on the night of March 16. Cochroaches are the methuselahs of insects. They do not reach mature age until two or three years of age.
