Unique Fur Trimming

THE lines of this coat are familiar, but the trimming is not. These mottled bands that trim the hem, sleeves and collar are ducks' breasts used as fur banding would be. The material of the coat is very heavy satin, lined with a delicate gray.

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE HOLDS BUSY MEETING

Plans Made For "Good Will Day" When Residents of Conary Will Be Guests of Local People.

The Chamber of Commerce staged a busy meeting Tuesday night, taking up matters relative to holding a "Good Will Day" in Concord, asking for the reappointment of W. C. Wilkinson on the highway commission, providing for visitors during the time when the hotel is torn down, arranging for the "modeling" of the tourist camp, and other matters of lesser importance.

The "Good Will Day" is to be something new in Concord. On this day, the date of which is to be in the early part of June, all the residents of the county outside of Concord are to be invited to the city as the guests of the local citizens.

A program is to be provided which will keep the crowd entertained for the entire day. A tentative program provides for features among which are to be an Old Ford contest, a fiddlers contest, a horseshoe contest, a milking contest, greasy pig contest, and a number of other contests.

Another feature, one which is calculated to cause much amusement, is to be the tug-of-war between the merchants of the east side of Union street and the merchants of the west side of the street.

All stores are to close between the hours of two and four. Dinner will be served by the people of the city. A telegram was sent to Governor McLean urging that W. C. Wilkinson, of Charlotte, be re-appointed to his position on the State highway commission at the expiration of his term.

The report on the housing committee was received and in regard to this problem which will begin when the hotel is torn down, A. F. Hartsell was appointed to take charge of the matter. All persons who have rooms which they can rent to visitors while the hotel is being built are asked to communicate with Mr. Hartsell at once.

Work is to be started at once in making the tourist camp behind the Y. M. C. A. a "model one." F. C. Niblock leads the committee to arrange this work. Plans call for a first class camp.

The matter of printing a booklet with Concord's advantages as a business and residential center was discussed and the matter was taken under advisement by the officers. In regard to cleanup week, it was decided to ask all merchants to clean up their premises and to start a campaign to get the residents of the city to plant flowers and make their homes as attractive as possible.

Through the efforts of the Chamber of Commerce, it was announced that the board of aldermen had agreed to start collecting garbage from the homes preparatory to putting in an incinerator next year.

P. T. A. Meets Thursday Afternoon.

Mandy Lou: Wait a minute, Cuticura; I got to go in and buy me a brush and some toothpaste. Day tells me it's a necessity to clean your teeth every day.

Cuticura: Yes, dat's so all right. But dey ain't no necessity ob buyin' er toothbrush jes for dat. Why don't you use youah Missus's toothbrush an' stuff, de same as I does? I ain't one ob dese highflutin' kind o' people who's so afraid ob a few germs; is you?

The Carpenters' Union was the first of American labor organizations to demand and secure the eight-hour day.

Kalamazoo, Mich., is to be the meeting place for the 1925 convention of the International Typographical Union.

EARTHQUAKES IN EARLY NEW ENGLAND

Recent Shocks Have Directed Attention to Previous Disturbances.

Boston, March 11.—The recent shocks of earthquake have directed attention to previous seismic disturbances, and more particularly those that have shaken the eastern United States and Canada. The Indians had traditions of prehistoric earthquakes; and the list, which begins soon after the landing of the Pilgrims is longer than is popularly supposed. Several shocks are recorded in the early histories and annals of the various scientific and philosophical societies.

The earthquake in June, 1638, was the first that occurred after the landing of the Pilgrims. It is said to have been preceded by a rumbling noise like remote thunder, growing continually louder and drawing nearer. Then the earth began to quake until the shock threw down the pewter from the shelves, toppled over stone walls, and shook off the tops of chimneys. In some places it was difficult for people to remain standing.

The course was from northwest to southeast, and it was observed by the Indians beyond any of the English settlements. A second shock, not so strong, followed the first after an interval of half an hour. On Sunday, March 5, 1642, another very perceptible trembling of the earth was noted, but it did no damage. Again, on October 19, 1653, a little earthquake gave the divines of that day a theme for ponderous sermons, and in 1658 the earth again trembled.

In January, 1663, there was a series of shocks extending over a period of several days. The disturbance, according to a chronicler of the day, was preceded by a great roaring noise, and the first shocks came about seven o'clock in the evening. The houses rocked violently, walls were cracked, and chimneys were toppled over. Men, women and children ran out into the streets and open places. In eastern Canada the effects of this earthquake were even more severe. In Quebec two hills were thrown down and formed a point of land which extended far into the St. Lawrence River.

This earthquake extended to New York and Pennsylvania. Then there were slight earthquake shocks in 1685, 1688, 1670, 1765 and 1720. Near the end of October, 1727, came another memorable shock. Like its predecessors, this shock was heralded by a roaring noise. It was observed by those who were abroad that as the shock passed under them the surface of the earth perceptibly rose and then sank. This shock was felt from Pennsylvania to Maine. The places of greatest violence appears to have been the town of Newburyport, at the mouth of the Merrimac River. There the earth opened and cast up a quantity of sand and ashes mixed with sulphur.

On September 5, 1732, there was an earthquake shock of considerable extent, although comparatively slight in its consequences. It was strongest in Canada and northern New England, but was felt as far down the coast as Maryland. On February 6, 1737, and on December 7 of the same year slight shocks were felt.

VIRGINIA CONGRESSMAN REFUSES SALARY RAISE

Harry St. George Tucker Follows Lead of Ancestor Who Also Declined Increase.

Washington, March 10.—Representative Tucker, Democrat, Virginia, has refused to accept the $2,500 increase in congressional salaries on the ground that members of the last Congress who are re-elected to the next should not accept the increase as they were chosen to a position carrying $7,500. Mr. Tucker's grandfather, Judge Henry St. George Tucker, a representative in the fourteenth Congress, refused an increase in salary for the same reason and the money has remained in his credit in the treasury for 100 years.
