Hunt's Washington Letter

By HARRY B. HUNT
 NEA Service Writer
 Washington—It may be a shame to take the money, but—

Any member of Congress having conscientious scruples against accepting the recent pay increase that body voted itself will just have to accept it. If he doesn't take it willingly, it will be forced on him.

Such is the ruling of Comptroller General J. R. McCarl, who normally is the best man in the government to let loose of a penny that he doesn't have to part with.

In his job as independent auditor of Uncle Sam's expense, McCarl disallows all sorts of bills that people want paid. But the stand McCarl takes in regard to congressional salaries is that the law says they are $10,000 a year and $10,000 they must be.

Any member who refuses to sign the payroll on the $10,000 basis seeks to evade it not actually break the law, he holds. And of course that is not to be thought of.

The only legal course, McCarl rules, for members who do not feel they are worth $10,000 a year as congressmen, is for them to accept the full amount, receipt for it, and then return such amount as they deem an overpayment to the treasury's "conscience fund."

The McCarl ruling came as a result of the refusal of the Hon. Henry St. George Tucker, of Lexington, Va., to accept his first salary check drawn at $10,000 instead of $7,500 a year.

It's a matter of family pride, it seems, with the Hon. Henry St. George Tucker. One of his ancestors was serving in Congress when the bill was passed raising congressional salaries from $5 to $8

PLEDGE SISTER HOME, SO HUSBAND LEAVES

"What in the World Did You Bring Her For?" He Asks.

Burlington, April 1.—Love for an invalid sister, an epileptic sufferer, whom Mrs. Earl W. Idelman took from a Columbia, S. C., hospital and brought here, where she expected to join her husband, a banker, is suggested as the reason for her husband leaving a few hours after she arrived, with no word from him since.

Mrs. Idelman, a refined lady of mature years, appealed to the police department for aid, admitting that her financial circumstances were exhausted in getting here, and in transporting her permanent home.

She told Chief R. D. Bain that her husband said "What in the world did you bring her for?" commenting on her sister, who she declared had been the subject of abuse in the hospital in which she was a patient.

Livingston's Cotton Letter.

New York, March 31.—The market has shown an improved tone today. Perhaps this has resulted largely from its improved technical position, but aside from that the day's news has been rather less encouraging than the bearish standpoint. Declines in grains and stocks have now gone far enough to suggest that liquidation in those markets has pretty well run its course. People who have been selling cotton on the weakness in grain, at least, have found less encouragement in the position of what around 145 per bushel for May delivery, and the situation in this respect combined with the fact that trade buying appeared in considerable volume on the basis of 24.50 for July contracts yesterday and with the failure of this morning's weather map to show as much rain as anticipated in the southwest, has led to considerable covering, possibly to some fresh buying in cotton today. As a result prices have recovered something like 30 points of their recent loss and while there has been no recovery of general confidence on the long side, shorts are becoming less aggressive.

Tucker Wouldn't Take 'Em'

Republicans who are trying to draft Gen. John J. Pershing, for the battle to hold Missouri's one G. O. P. seat in the Senate, seem to feel that Senator Selden Spencer will be unable to swing another victory in that border commonwealth. Friends of Pershing, however, feel that while it would be fine for the G. O. P. to have Pershing as its candidate, it would not be so desirable for Pershing to be a candidate.

The party would have everything to gain by his nomination. He would have everything to lose.

It is not to be expected that Pershing, as a senator, could add anything to the prestige and fame he won as commander of the American armies in the World War.

DINNER STORIES

A Lovely Time Being Had By All

Larned Kane, Tiller and Toller. The wedding bells pealed joyfully at the home of Mr. H. R. D.—last Tuesday, when their highly accomplished and beautiful daughter, M—, became the blushing bride of that sterling young brother C—, played Meddlesome's wedding march on his cornet, and considering the fact he has only had it a short time, he sounded good. Her O—, who has been helping through the harvest and picking up a little on the side, performed the nuptials. The bride's costume was a sort of a gauze affair and white slippers and stockings to match. Of course she wore heavy clothes when they went on their wedding trip. Quite a merry crowd assembled to see them off, and as they didn't have any rice, some of them got it throwing roasting ears. H— was struck under the eye by a large ear and blacked it pretty bad. They drove right to Larned and stayed all night at the hotel, and then took their wedding trip to Kinsley and Dodge City. They have rented the old home place and will be at home next Tuesday. M— expects to take charge of C— & J—'s cook shack the rest of the season.

Young Wife: The post office is very careless sometimes.

Sympathetic Friend: "Yes, dear. Why?"

Young Wife: "Fred sent me a post card yesterday from Philadelphia, when he is staying on business, and the silly postoffice people put an Atlantic City mark on it."

The playwright rushed up to the critic at the club. "I've had a terrible misfortune," he announced. "My three-year-old boy got out on my new play and tore it to pieces."

"Extraordinary that a child so young should be able to read," said the critic.

"Fore!" yelled the golfer, ready to play. But the woman on the course paid no attention.

"Fore!" he shouted again with the same effect.

"Ah," suggested his opponent with disgust, "try her once with three-ninety eight."

Awkward Friend (who has been permitted to hold the baby, with disastrous results): "Terrible! Terrible! I can't imagine how it happened. Really I assure you, I—I hardly ever drop a baby."

Talleyrand, it seems, hated to write letters, and when he could not escape answering a note his style was telegraphic. Two autographs of his were recently sold, both addressed to a widow who remarried.

In answer to the news of death he wrote:

"My dear—Alas! Devotedly yours."

"When the consoling widow told him of her second marriage he wrote back:

"My Dear—Bravo! Yours devotedly."

WHAT'S THE MATTER WITH THE RAILROADS?

From The Augusta Chronicle comes the surprising information that only one railroad in the South, the Georgia & Florida, is co-operating in the Southern Exposition to be held in New York in May.

"Where," The Chronicle asks, "are the other great railroads?" And further: "There is the great Southern Railway System which boasts that 'the Southern Serves the South,' there is the Atlantic Coast Line, the Louisville & Nashville, the Seaboard Air Line, the Central of Georgia and other great railroads. They all were asked to go into this plan to advertise the vast resources of the South and all of them refused. What is the reason? These roads have millions, even hundreds of millions invested in the South, and yet they do not seem to think it a good thing to put money into an exhibit of Southern resources."

The Southern Exposition is an untried experiment, to be sure, but that is more reason the railroads of this section should co-operate to make it a success. The exposition is designed to exploit the opportunities of the South and the railroads are needed to make this exploitation a success.

The Greenville, S. C., News says "there is appalling ignorance of the South in New York and the Southern Exposition is conceived in the hope of substituting enlightenment for it. At a mechanical convention in New York last year a visitor expressed great surprise that there were ice companies in the South—he did not know the Southern people had money enough to buy ice. The Southern Exposition hopes to drive away such foolish ideas and to impress the metropolis with the progressiveness and up-to-dateness of the section which only a few decades ago was virtually in ruins."

The railroads have as much to gain from the exposition as any other business industry and failure for the exposition would be felt by them along with the rest of the South.

The Greenwood, S. C., Journal several times has stressed the backwardness of the railways of the South in promoting through publicity and other methods the development of the South.

ANOTHER POWER PROJECT.

The Southern Power Company is prepared to spend another million and a quarter dollars in this section of the country for water-power development. From offices of the company in Charlotte comes the announcement that the latest development will be made near Lancaster, S. C., the work to be started as soon as another project now under development is completed.

Officers of the company in making the announcement of the new plant pointed out that demand for electric power made it necessary for the company to add to its present facilities. The proposed plant will make twelve for the company and will add materially to the power production of the organization.

The Southern Power Company is rapidly becoming one of the gigantic industrial organizations in the South. For a number of years it has been furnishing Piedmont Northland South Carolina with practically all of its power and the fact that another plant is to be erected to care for the increased business of this section indicates that the company intends to keep pace with the industrial development in every other line.
