SOME THINK MORRISON IS MENDING SENATORIAL FENCES

Action for Jimison Said to Be a Bid For the Labor Vote. Special to Greensboro News. Charlotte, April 12.—The latest move in the Jimison case was the topic of conversation in many groups here this morning. Yesterday as Jimison went to the court house to surrender himself and start serving a sentence on the county chain gang imposed in city court following his conviction on a charge of transporting liquor, friends, led by former Governor Cameron Morrison headed him off and made arrangements with City Judge Williams to re-open the case Tuesday morning. It is believed that strong pressure will be brought to bear to have Judge Williams change the sixty-day sentence to a fine.

Jimison's friends point out that this was his first offense and that the law does not specify a road term for a man convicted of his first offense. Former Governor Morrison's activity in the case has caused considerable comment. He explained his action by saying that while he and Jimison often had differed on political questions he wanted to see justice done. The former executive also remembered Jimison's aid during his campaign for governor and this, he said, moved him to arouse himself in behalf of the former Winston-Salem and Spencer Methodist minister.

Some were inclined to the opinion that the former governor is mending "fences," says this view was induced by the generally run-up and accepted fact that Morrison has eyes on the United States Senate. Jimison has taken an active part in labor activities and Morrison's playing the part of the Good Samaritan, according to the gossips here, may be partly prompted by his knowledge of the size and power of the labor vote in this state.

Another feature of the case, it was said here today, is the apparent reconciliation between Col. T. L. Kirkpatrick and the former governor who are said to have split following the governor's appointment of the state highway commission shortly after taking over the chief executive office.

The re-hearing in city court Tuesday morning is expected to draw a packed house.

So you're buying a limousine? But I thought you said you were short of money.

Oh, this is a saving. You see, I'm always misplacing my umbrella.

MISS ALEXANDER MAY SEEK THE CHARLOTTE MAYORALTY

It Seems to Be Practically Certain That She Will Enter the Campaign. Charlotte, April 12.—Interest was added to the Charlotte municipal campaign here this morning when a tentative announcement by Miss Julia Alexander, member of the house of representatives from this county, that she would run for mayor in the May elections.

Miss Alexander, who several weeks ago announced herself a candidate for the Democratic nomination for governor in 1928, did not make a definite announcement today of her entrance into the race, but said that she was being urged by a great number of persons to enter the campaign and that she was seriously considering the move.

Friends of Miss Alexander indicated that it is practically certain that she will enter the campaign. It is said that if she does she will command a large following from the start and will prove a real contender for the honors with Mayor Harvey Moore, who has announced for re-election. Mayor Moore at this time is the only man definitely in the race.

Jim Humeys, former commissioner of public safety, also has been considered a candidate for mayor but his friends say that he probably will not enter the campaign.

The Beauty of Painted Farm Houses.

Carence Poe in The Progressive Farmer. "To hold make the South a land of painted farm houses"—this is one of the earnest ambitions of The Progressive Farmer. We want to see paint used because it is economical to use it. In this day of high-priced lumber, high-priced carpenters, and high prices on all other building costs, it is almost criminal to spend all the time and money required to build a house and then not insure the life of the building by painting it. "Save the surface and you save all."

But while we are interested in paint as a matter of economy, we believe we are even more interested in it as an aid to beauty. How drab and cold and dead seems an unpainted farm house in winter! On the other hand, how remarkably does a painted house brighten the landscape, add cheer and color to the outlook, and suggest enterprise and progress on the part of the farm family living there.

Be careful while selecting the experience you want. You can't get your money back if not satisfied.

Drives Galore.

Monroe Enquirer. I see by the papers that Charlotte is in the midst of a college drive. Next month there will be a chamber of commerce drive. Then comes the month in which the signing of the declaration of independence will be celebrated, and no doubt a drive for funds will be in order. In the past, if I mistake not, there have been drives for various and sundry in the Queen City—Y. M. C. A. drives, hospital drives, Salvation Army drives. The wonder is that the folks up there are not driven daffy by drives and no doubt diggin' drives.

Clean Slate for Criminals.

Rome, April 11.—A fire that destroyed the district in which the Messina court of justice are situated, and incidentally consumed all the papers relating to police court cases in the town and province, is believed to have been the work of criminals anxious to have their records destroyed.

Orrin—Why don't you marry? You seem to love children.

Matty—Only other people's.

Orrin—Well, I can introduce you to a widow with 11.
