Misses Nevada and Pearl Benson and Mr. S. L. White spent Sunday in Woodleaf visiting in the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. Bousso.

Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Gray were in Charlotte on business Monday.

Miss Martha Rowe was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Deval in Concord Sunday.

Mrs. C. F. Farley, of High Point, spent Monday night with Mr. Ira Montgomery.

Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Peeler and family and Mr. and Mrs. Chick Demarcus and daughter, Lilian Kirk, were dinner guests of Mrs. C. J. Kirk in China Grove Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Laker and son, Howard Jr., and Miss Virginia Nola, spent Sunday in Concord at the home of Mrs. Linker's father.

Miss Lucile Rollins spent the Easter holidays with Miss Lorene Smith, at her home near Mooresville.

Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Connell and family, of High Point, who were en route for Allen, N. C. Sunday were visitors in the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Connell and were accompanied on their trip by Mrs. J. C. Connell.

Miss Dorothea Sepp, of Mooresville, was the guest of Miss Johnnie McKinley during the holidays.

Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Glosom and family, of Allen, were guests in the home of Mrs. Tilly Walters Sunday.

Mrs. Albert Beaver underwent an operation in the Statesville hospital Tuesday, and is getting along nicely.

Miss Mary Belle Parks and her friend, Miss Mary Washburn, of the North Carolina College for Women in Greensboro, spent the Easter holidays with Miss Parks' home folks.

Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Blackman and family spent Sunday afternoon with Mrs. Blackman's sister, Mrs. F. F. Harrington in Mooresville.

Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Lipe, of Millington, spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Lipe.

The Stewards of the Trinity Methodist church will entertain the Ladies Aid Society in the church on Thursday evening.

A quiet but interesting wedding was solemnized Saturday afternoon at 4:00 o'clock when Miss Elsie Lipe, of this city, became the bride of Mr. Lee Bostian, also of Kannapolis. The ceremony was performed by Rev. W. E. Ruffey, at his home in Landis. The bride and groom left Saturday night for a bridal trip to Virginia, stopping over in Winston-Salem and at other points returning Monday afternoon. Mrs. Bostian is the daughter of Mrs. Margaret Lipe, of Juniper street and is a brunette of charming loveliness. Her wifemore disposition has won for her much popularity.

Mr. Bostian is an enterprising young man and has a wide circle of friends.

On Monday night a lively band of serenaders heralded the news to those of the neighbors who may not have been informed of the event. Mr. and Mrs. Bostian will make their home for the present with the latter's mother on Juniper street.

Hope Workable Results Will Follow the Geneva Conference

Washington, April 15.—With the sailing from New York today of Representative Theodore E. Burton, of Ohio, to head the American delegation which will participate officially in the league of nations conference at Geneva next month for control of international traffic in arms, it became known here that the Washington government is very hopeful that definite, practical results will flow from that gathering. Other members of the American party, including technical experts, will sail Saturday for Geneva.

The Washington administration is anxious to co-operate to the fullest extent with other nations to bring about practical measures for curbing the arms shipments. It realizes that the tentative draft convention prepared by the temporary mixed commission of the league, which will form the basis of the Geneva discussions, is only a committee proposal, however, and that it has been approved as yet by no government. Exhaustive study of the draft convention by Mr. Burton and his colleagues has shown it to contain many acceptable features from the American viewpoint, but in other respects it will require considerable modification.

The American delegates have satisfied themselves that it would be impossible to sign off entirely on the international traffic in arms. Such a course would merely result in compelling nations not yet producing arms for themselves to set up and maintain such industries as necessary to their own security. For that reason it is believed that the league committee plan to establish a system of licensing arms shipments is the only method of curbing the traffic satisfactorily and preventing arms from getting into improper hands.

The tentative convention would impose an obligatory duty of approving orders for arms received by its nationals. The idea in this provision was to define transactions to recognized governments. It represents many difficulties from the American point of view, however, and the delegation is expected to press for modifications at Geneva which would make signature responsible only for the production of up-to-date arms shipments from their territory. It is argued that this would be fairer to the non-producing states, which are the only customers of military arms manufacturers.

Fill the Y. M. C. A. and Keep Prisons Empty

BY P. WHITWELL WILSON

(The following article is based on the author's personal study of the American Y. M. C. A. Mr. Wilson, now residing in the United States, is a former member of Parliament, correspondent of leading British journals, contributor to numerous American newspapers and periodicals, and author of several popular religious books, including "The Christ We Forget.")

"We are not to allow our sense of duty to be dulled by usage and familiarity."

So speaks the Rev. S. Parkin Cadman, D. D., the President of the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America; and he speaks of the Y. M. C. A. "The multiplicity of its benefits," says he, "has earned for it the support of the best citizens of all Christian lands."

I have been inquiring into this "multiplicity of benefits." What are they?

The nation was shocked by the senseless cynicism with which two lads, reared in respectable homes, murdered a school-fellow. It is a dangerous thing for society to neglect boys during that period when they think they are too old to need moral training, yet have not chosen an ordered career. By boys of this age the ranks of bandits are recruited. What is the remedy? It is not prison but prevention—not electrocution but influence. Fill the Y. M. C. A. and automatically, you empty the penitentiary.

To purify the mind of the boy by the fresh breeze of athletics, to rescue genuine games from the grip of the bookmaker, to broaden the boy's outlook by educational trips, and to restore the often interrupted companionship between boys and their fathers—these express the policy of the Y. M. C. A.

It is mainly the city that has the "Y." But the small town and village are seeking a larger landscape. And the "Hi Y" or Y. M. C. A. for High Schools is one agency by which the community of only a thousand or two finds itself.

The Y. M. C. A. is the home of the man who has left home. But it is not merely a club by day and a dormitory by night. It is not, like a hotel, a commercial proposition. Its members are brought into a fellowship. They learn that life is more than eating and sleeping and earning, more than the swimming pool and the gymnasium, more than a course at college.

Whether in a city, an institution serving a mixed community, or attached to some industrial plant, or maintained in a great university, the Y. M. C. A. aims at an objective beyond itself. Not only does it operate; it is the basis of operations at a distance. No member is true to his Association who fails to give to others in service as least as much as he has himself received.

There are 10,000 foreign students in the United States. Many have come from the Orient believing that here they will see the Christian Faith in operation. The Y. M. C. A. provides trained advisers of their own language and race, who form them into congenial groups, help them in their perplexities and surround them with an environment of friendship. There is much in Western countries that distasteful to these eager discoverers. Invaluable, therefore, is a contact which furnishes them with true hospitality.

The Y. M. C. A. stands for the principle that what is found to be the abundant life most to be desired in the world, in China and Japan, in Latin America, in the Philippines, in India and in the Near East, these are leading statesmen, merchants and educators to whom the ideal of a clean and healthy manhood has made an irresistible appeal. In the Y. M. C. A. they see an invaluable instrument of physical, mental and moral hygiene. Evidence of this demand for the Y. M. C. A. are overwhelming.

As the Y. M. C. A. is the ally of the Churches at home, so is it the ally of the foreign mission abroad. The Student Volunteer Missionary Movement, developed by the Y. M. C. A., has recruited thousands of men and women from colleges and universities who have brought youth and health and education to the task of evangelizing our race. If the spread of the gospel of a more abundant life for all nations interests a rising generation, the reason is largely the efforts, direct and indirect of the Y. M. C. A.

Christianity, as a label, is not forced on Moslem, Hindu and Confucian, but is clearly revealed in a life within the walls of the Y. M. C. A. men of all faiths are welcome. But there is only one faith big enough to offer such a welcome.

In other countries, as in the United States, the Y. M. C. A. has been established as far as possible on an autonomous foundation. China, Japan, India, the Philippines—they all have their own staffs, largely consisting of their own nationals. And much of the money invested in their buildings is raised by these nations themselves. The Y. M. C. A. is thus a university in self government, free from graft, favoritism and other corruption. For the good name of the United States in other continents, there is here a true generation. In the Y. M. C. A. North America discovers her best.
