Carcassers Spread Infection
Carcasses of animals which die on the farm should be destroyed or buried so deep that other animals cannot get to them. Failure to do this has often been the cause of much infection among stock. The government recently made an investigation with the view of determining whether or not infection can be spread in this manner. A farmer lost from 80 to 100 chickens which he threw into his hog pen. He also hauled the cleanings from the chicken coop into a field in which the hogs ran. Tests showed that these fowls had tuberculosis. Further tests showed that the hogs had avian tuberculosis which was the type found most frequently among fowls.

FOR THE PROMOTION OF BETTER CITIZENSHIP
The United States Is Prosperous. But We Are Far From Perfect. The people of the United States are 6 per cent of the world's population; yet, though we are thus outnumbered 16 to 1— we own nearly half the railroad mileage and almost three-fourths of the telephone equipment in the world.
We consume more than half the world's output of coal, iron, steel, copper, petroleum, cotton, timber, and printing paper.
We own nine out of every ten automobiles in the world—
Only half of our eligible voters actually vote even at the presidential elections.
Five million of our people over 40 years of age are illiterate.
Ten millions of our children of school age are not attending school.
We spend more for tobacco, cosmetics, and chewing gum than we do for education.
Our wage earners lose wages amounting to over two billion dollars a year because of preventable sickness.
In 1900 the number of homicides per 100,000 population in cities was 35. Now it is 9.3.
In 1870 there was 1 divorce for every 18 marriages. Last year there was 1 divorce for every 8 marriages.

Tigers Pilot

This is Capt. Dyer, bow on the Princeton crew this season. He expects to pilot the Tigers to a most successful campaign on the briny deep. The material at hand is said to be the best in years.

good citizenship are realized, the council discovered that a Community Score Card had been found very effective in several States, not only in stimulating local initiative and developing competition among communities for excellence in the essentials of good citizenship, but also in creating a truly American community spirit, and in improving conditions of re-creation, health, homes, schools, churches, business, and farms. The council, therefore, developed a Community Score Card designed to serve as a reliable means of stimulating communities to evaluate their own successes and failures and thus to discover for themselves what they could do to realize more fully the national ideals and thus become better places in which to live.

State Committees Have Been Formed
President Coolidge invited the governors of the several States to take the initiative in organizing intercommunity competitions, using a community score card to define the rules of the game. As a result of this appeal, co-operating committees have been formed in 22 States and competitions are now under way in several States.
Interest in Community Life Is Up
There is everywhere a profound devotion to American ideals and a deep lacon in the relative standing among States and communities with regard to American citizenship. This latent interest may be made active through proper leadership and through the wise use of funds with which to stage intercommunity contests on such a scale as to command general interest. Herein lies a unique opportunity for great public service in this most fundamental matter of developing a citizenry hale and eager to carry on successfully this greatest of experiments in self-government.

But Leadership Is Needed
The Federal Council and the State committees are without funds for the accomplishment of this purpose, but they believe that there are in every State many citizens who are looking for an opportunity to contribute their means for the promotion of public welfare. They further believe that the score-card method of building better citizenship in each particular State and therefore in the Nation, is an enterprise from which greater results can be secured for less expenditure of time and money than in any other way. By suitable prizes and effective publicity, the energy of the people can be released in the direction of working spontaneously together to express the ideals of American better citizenship as defined in the Community Score Card.

Practical Procedure
The Federal Council of Citizenship Training has issued, besides the Community Score Card, a pamphlet describing its own experience and suggesting how a State or a community may proceed practically to initiate this enterprise. For further information apply to the chairman of the council, the Commissioner of Education, United States Bureau of Education, Washington, D. C.

Electric Ray Captured
Russell Coles, whose hobby is deep sea fishing, recently captured a giant electric ray near Morehead City, N. C. The fish, which weighed 120 pounds, was presented to the Museum of Natural History in New York. According to Coles, the ray had enough electric charge to "stun an elephant." He did not catch the fish in the regular way. It was stranded near his boat by the zeedling ride and members of his crew prevented it from getting back into the sea. When the fish was dead the "batteries" near its head contained practically no electric energy.

Like New!

It is gratifying indeed to have friends comment on a charming new frock! And more gratifying when the dress is really not absolutely new—merely rehabilitated. But so fresh and spotless on its return from the cleaner's that it was taken for a newly purchased garment. It is incidents like this that have established the name of BOB'S as a synonym for fresh cleanliness.

NOT GUILTY—A PACK OF CARDS

A Soldier Proves That It Contains a Bible, an Almanac and a Common Prayer Book.
A private soldier by the name of Richard Lee was taken before the magistrate of Glasgow, Scotland, for playing cards during divine services.

A sergeant commanded the soldiers at the church, and when the person had read the prayers he took the text. Those who had Bibles took them out, but this soldier had neither Bible nor common prayer book, and pulling out a pack of cards, he spread them out before him. He first looked at one card and then another. The sergeant of one company saw him and said:

"Richard, put up the cards. This is no place for them."
"Never mind that," said Richard. "I took the Bibles over a constable's shop (Richard prisoner and brought him before the magistrate)."
"Well, soldier, what have you to say for yourself?"
"Much, sir, I hope."
"Very good. If not I will punish you severely."

"I have been," said the soldier, "almost six weeks on the march. I have neither Bible nor common prayer book. I hope to satisfy your worship of the purity of my intention."
Then, spreading the cards before the magistrate, he began with the ace:
"When I see the ace, it reminds me that there is but one God."
"When I see the deuce, it reminds me of the Father and Son."
"When I see the trey, it reminds me of the Father, Son and Holy Ghost."
"When I see the four, it reminds me of the four evangelists that preached—Matthew, Mark, Luke and John."
"When I see the five, it reminds me of the wise virgins that trimmed their lamps; there were ten, but five were wise and five were foolish, and were shut out."

"When I see the six, it reminds me that in six days the Lord made heaven and earth."
"When I see the seven, it reminds me that on the seventh day God rested from the great work He had made and hallowed it."
"When I see the eighth, it reminds me of the eight righteous persons, who were saved when God destroyed the world, viz.: Noah and his wife, his three sons and their wives."
"When I see the nine, it reminds me of the nine lepers that were cleansed by our Saviour; there were nine of them that returned thanks."
"When I see the ten, it reminds me of the Ten Commandments which God handed down to Moses on the tables of stone."
"When I see the king, it reminds me of the great King of heaven, God Almighty."
"When I see the queen it reminds me of the Queen of Sheba, who visited Solomon, for she was as wise a woman as he was a man. She brought with her fifty boys and girls, all dressed in boys' apparel, for King Solomon to tell which were boys and which were girls. The King sent for water for them to wash. The girls washed to the elbows, the boys to the wrists. So King Solomon told by that."

"Well," said the magistrate "you have described every card in the pack except one."
"What is that?"
"The knave," said the magistrate.
"I will give your honor a description of that too, if you will not be angry."
"I will not," said the magistrate, "if you do not term me to be the knave."
"The greatest knave I know is the constable who has brought me here."
"I do not know," said the magistrate.
"If he is the greatest knave, but I know he is the greatest fool."
"When I count how many spots there are in a pack of cards, I find 365, as many as these days in the year. When I count the number of cards in a pack I find 52—the number of weeks in a year. I find there are twelve picture cards in a pack, representing the number of months in a year, and on counting the tricks, I find thirteen, the number of weeks in a quarter. So, you see, a pack

The Dollar Bill Popular Currency

The ever growing popularity of the dollar bill has become a problem at Washington. The government at Washington is faced with the necessity of either greatly expanding the capacity of its printing plant to meet the public demand for circulation of the unit of paper currency or inducing the public to be more economical in its use. Just why there is such a demand for the dollar bill that its circulation has increased more than seven times since 1900 and exactly three times since 1910, is a puzzle which Assistant Secretary Dewey has started out to solve. He hopes by the study to find means of obtaining a more sparing use of it.

The big plant bureau of engraving and printing, built in 1914 with the expectation that it would meet the nation's demand, was forced in March to deliver to the United States treasurer $7,824,000 one-dollar bills to keep up with the public demand for them. To visualize the bulk of this job the bills weigh approximately 133,472 pounds. One of the chief difficulties is that the capacity of the plant is so pressed by the demand that the bills have to be put in circulation as "green" money fresh from the press and with out opportunity to "cure" so they will stand the rough usage they get. Just now the average life of the bills being put in circulation is only about four months, although treasury officials have been endeavoring to increase that span ever since the war.

The treasury has tried to meet the problem and give the big engraving bureau time to catch its breath and store up a few million bills for the "curing" process by restoring the silver dollar to popularity, but thus far the public have frowned on the "tear, whell." Efforts to restore it to circulation in any substantial volume have been fruitless. It is estimated that if 40,000,000 silver dollars could be placed in circulation the money saving in paper money would run into thousands of dollars annually.

"Emmie says she is the unluckiest girl in the world."
"What's the matter now?"
"She was just about to marry a traveling man when he was admitted to the firm, and now he will be at home all the time."
