GIVING TO THE CHURCH.

The Winston Sentinel quotes from Billy Sunday, holding a meeting in the Twin-City, relative to money and religion. The evangelist declared with emphasis that people need to be trained in the matter of their giving money in meeting their religious obligations.

The Sentinel then says:
"The average person has not taken seriously enough the financial responsibility in the realm of religion."

"He carelessly tosses a coin on the collection plate or writes a check for the church, which represents much less than he is spending for things of much less importance, and does not seem to feel he is doing anything wrong."

"If he feels that he has to practice economy in his spending, he cuts down on his church contribution."

"Too many men, in 'vixing up' their financial obligations to the church appear to feel that this is the least important obligation of all."

"If they have any money left, after spending all they want to gratify their own personal desires, they are perhaps willing to give it to the church."

The Salisbury Post contends, and rightly so we think, that giving to the Church "is a matter of education." When our people better understand the great importance of the Church they will not hesitate to give to it before anything else. "We must know how important it is that we give not only money, but other things as well, to the great cause of Christian civilization," says The Post.

There are many people who make the Church donation the last on their list and yet they would not be willing for the Churches to go out of business. They realize full well that without the Church the money they keep for other purposes would be of no benefit to them. The Christian Church is the one force that holds civilization together. "The Church is not perfect," admits The Post, "but it is the best thing on earth today, with all its faults, and taken out of our community life in the community would be a chaotic wilderness and men would have no opportunity for making money and no occasion to spend it."

We should remember these things when called upon to aid the church. We should remember that we are aiding the very foundations upon which life is built. Take away the Christian spirit and life would be one grand grab after another. People might make money but what would money avail them? Some one else would come along and take it away, for if there were no Churches there would be no laws. The laws of the world are after all founded on the Ten Commandments.

Of course we should give just as liberally of our time and talent as of our money to the Church. The Church needs material things, to be sure, but above all it needs personality, and only persons can give that.

Stewart's Washington Letter.

NEA Service Writer

WASHINGTON—After a quarter of a century in state and federal tribunals in Chicago, the famous Desmet district of Lake Michigan case is coming up to the United States supreme court on appeal. It dates so far back that not many people remember just how it started.

THE Desmet is a big tract—a good many acres of "made land" on Chicago's north shore lake front. At first it was just the North Side city dump.

A North Side man as big as Chicago has a lot of refuse to dispose of. This dump grew fast, away out into the lake, 10 or 15 minutes' walk, and about twice that far north a big south from the foot of East Chicago avenue—a dozen or so of city blocks. It consisted of cinders, old bottles, bones, tin cans, all sorts of junk.

It wasn't an attractive spot and Chicago in those days wasn't as crowded as it is now, so the land wasn't needed immediately and it seems to have occurred to nobody to claim it until, unexpectedly, "Cap" George Wallington Streeter did. Then everybody wanted it.

THE "cap" has been described as a squatter. Nothing so unromantic! He was master of a barge on Lake Michigan. One night his barge broke loose from the tug which was towing it through a storm toward the shelter of the breakwater at the mouth of the Chicago river, and the waves dashed it up on the dump. Then the "cap" had an inspiration. He claimed the coast on which he had been cast away "by right of discovery," named it the "Desmet district of Lake Michigan" and hung onto it for years.

HIS case was better than it looked at first glance. The Desmet district was bounded on its landward side by a roadway, which originally had run right along the lake front, so that there were no actually abutting property owners. It really lay off all by itself and the "cap" was the first person who ever had laid claim to it. A score of interests immediately took steps toward evicting him. The "cap," full of fight, organized an army of about a dozen men—armed with rifles, too—to defend himself. The East Chicago avenue police came on the jump, also with Winchester. But on second thoughts, there wasn't much the police could do. If the land belonged to the "cap"—and nobody was in a position to say it didn't—he was entitled to keep trespassers off.

THE affair finally resolved itself into a legal contest, but with the threat of an armed clash always looming in the background, like the Balkan menace in a Chicago setting. Presently the "cap" began quit-claiming little patches in the Desmet for settlers to build shacks on. Thus arose the city of Streeterville—population 200 or 300. The courts were slow. Rival claimants against the "cap" grew impatient. At length they decided to oust him at all costs. Once out, they thought they could keep him out. So one night a strong party of claim jumpers descended on the Desmet. They found the "cap's" army right on the job. Not only were they repulsed—one invader was killed.

THAT was the "cap's" undoing. He got a year in the penitentiary. Taking advantage of his enforced absence, the opposition gained possession of the Desmet. The "cap" never recovered it. He kept on suing, however, until his death in 1921. Now his widow is pushing the case.

THE Desmet today is worth millions and the buildings on it are worth millions more. And there must be big money behind the "cap's" widow, as there must have been behind the "cap." It costs to litigate for 25 years. As to the issues at stake, they're plenty important enough to be worthy the attention even of the United States supreme court.

election, or if he has opposition it will amount to nothing. The Observer speaks of Mr. Barrier as the "successor to Mayor Womble," and a man fully capable of carrying on the fine work done by Mr. Womble and his administration officials. Mr. Barrier undoubtedly has the confidence of the entire city and he is certain to be elected. There have been rumors here lately that he will be opposed by some candidate sponsored by Republicans and independents, but little attention has been paid to the rumors. The Democrats hold the balance of power in Concord and they are willing and anxious to back Mr. Barrier at the election to be held May 5th. No candidate has come out in opposition to him, and none is likely to do so. If he does, he will be slaughtered by the overwhelming Barrier vote.

A cemetery for noble horses in which he buried ten regal, history-making rulers of the turf has been established at John E. Madden at Lexington Kentucky, in the hope that this may be the "Westminster Abbey" for great horses.

EX-KAISER PLEASED AT ELECTION RESULTS

Quite a Celebration is Staged at Doorn Home of Former Monarch of Germany.

Doorn, Holland, April 28.—The former Kaiser at his chateau here last night, expounded the significance and importance of Von Hindenburg's election as related to the restoration of the monarchy and the Hohenzollern dynasty. Wilhelm, who seemed in excellent spirits, spoke to a home circle audience including his wife, the Princess Hermine, his two children, his court marshal, Von Moltke and others of his former imperial entourage as well as two high officers from Germany and one German ex-ambassador.

However, the Hohenzollern banner no longer floated from the chateau today. After the speech the audience broke into enthusiastic cheers of "Heil Der Kaiser!"

The servants were treated to a generous allowance of wine to celebrate the occasion.

Despite this celebration it is said by well informed persons that Von Hindenburg's victory is less likely to affect the ex-kaiser personally than it is the former crown prince, whose activity and influence in military quarters have been increasing. It is understood that the Princess Hermine brought back that impression from her last trip to Berlin.

J. Hampton Rich is Trying a New Scheme.

Union Republican.
You cannot lose Major J. Hampton Rich, try as hard as you will. He is the sole originator of the Boone Trail Association and has secured many noted men throughout the country as members. He has visited Europe, paid homage to the king and in this country has addressed great assemblies on "Mob Control." He is now affiliated with an organization known as the boys road patrol or some other high-sounding name but his latest venture is the organization of the Daniel Boone high school and incorporation papers have been provided for same.

It is not stated where the school is to be located, probably on wheels, so that it can be rolled from town to town along the Boone trail, but according to the Watuga Democrat, Major Rich has succeeded in gathering around him a notable list of well known business men as his associates. The Watuga paper says that the Daniel Boone high school is a non-stock corporation formed by T. C. Bowie, West Jefferson; R. L. Doughton, Laurel Springs; C. C. Wright, Hunting Creek; B. B. Doughton, Boone; A. H. Eller, W. M. Hanes, J. H. Rich, Thurmond Chatham, Sanford Martin, Winston-Salem; Judge T. B. Finley, North Wilkesboro; Dan Beard, New York City; David Abernethy, New York City and H. D. Myers, Chapel Hill, for the purpose of operating a consolidated high school during the school period of eight to nine months each year, and to conduct during the summer months a school for scouts and scout masters' training and of recreation methods, etc. Corporation empowered to purchase, lease and otherwise acquire, hold, mortgage, convey and otherwise dispose of all kinds of property, both real and personal, deficiencies of the United States, and generally to perform all acts which may be deemed necessary for the proper and successful prosecution of the objects and purposes for which the corporation is created. To have no capital stock. Period of existence ninety-nine years. New members admitted on the majority vote of the incorporators.

Ford Attempts Solution Of Used Car Problem.

Much interest has centered recently in the announcement of the Ford Used Car plan. This interest has been evidenced by both the public and the automotive industry generally, for it is the first move made by any large automobile concern toward solution of the so called used car problem. Under the plan, which is supervised by the company, all authorized Ford dealers place a guarantee upon used Ford cars sold by them then insuring to the purchaser satisfactory mechanical operation of the cars under ordinary driving conditions. Reports received from the branches throughout the country, it was said at the offices of the Ford Motor Company in Detroit, indicate two things—greater buyer confidence on the part of the public and a general feeling among Ford dealers that the plan is certain to promote customer satisfaction. On the basis of the reports so far received the plan promised an effective solution for used car handling by Ford dealers and one in which the public will benefit.

DINNER STORIES

Teacher—What are the three important Greek orders?
Small Boy—Cups, skuffey, roas, bli sandwich, and peas cocosant pie.

Mr. Neulich was in the worst possible frame of mind to receive the would-be son-in-law and his reply was a decided negative.

"But," said the young man, "what is your objection to me as a suitor for your daughter's hand?"

"My principal objection is that you cannot keep her in the style in which she has been brought up."

"Oh!" said the youth. "At any rate, I can start her on bread and milk, the same as you did."

Customer—How can one tell imitation pearls from the real ones?
Salesman—Ah, madam, one does not tell; one keeps it to oneself.

"You are fond of using big words," "Yes, said a friend of mine, once saved his life by using a long word."

"How so?"
"Called me a prevaricator. If he'd called me a liar I'd have gone to him at once; by the time I looked it up in the dictionary he was blocks away."

"Trotky is a man of few words," remarked Brown.
"Well," answered the flippant friend, "you take a look at some of the words in a Russian dictionary and you won't blame him."

"Motorist, are you? Got the latest thing in cars, no doubt?"
"I guess so; it has never got me anywhere on time yet."

Once a city man out of work had "hired out" to a farmer. At four o'clock in the morning the newly employed hired man was called to breakfast. A few minutes later the old farmer was astonished to see the man walking off down the road.

"Say! Come back and eat breakfast 'fore you go to work!" he yelled after him.
"I ain't goin' to work," the man called back. "I'm going to find a place where I can stay all night."

Caller—Good morning. I called to see if the doctor couldn't give me something for my tonsils.
New Nurse—I'm sorry, sir, but the doctor never buys tonils—he removes them.

It Makes a Difference.
"Your daughter is very shy," remarked the guest.
"Yes," replied the old-fashioned banker, "and I am glad of that as I would be disgusted to have any of my employees at the bank that way."

Wife—I won't dispute with you. I told you two hours ago that I had nothing more to say on the subject.

Corra—And when he proposed, I couldn't keep back my tears.
Dora—You couldn't, my dear?
Corra—No; he had been eating onions.

Henry—Gagner used to be a great sportsman. Is he reconciled to married life?
George—I think so. I called on him recently and found him sitting ashes through an old tennis racket.
