TO ISSUE NEW LICENSE FOR AUTOS JUNE 15TH

Sub-Station Here Has Received Licenses Tags And Is Getting Things Lined Up For Big Rush.

H. W. Blanks, secretary of the Y. M. C. A. and the Chamber of Commerce, and his secretary, Miss Lucy Richmond Leutz, are getting things ready now for the issuance of new State auto license tags beginning June 15th. The tags were received several days ago but the law says they cannot be issued until the fifteenth of next month.

The tags will be issued from the offices of the chamber of commerce in the Y. building, and Miss Leutz and Mr. Blanks to have everything so arranged that the tags can be issued very rapidly. In order that there will be no delay with the work Mr. Blanks has decided that tags will be issued only to those persons who have with them their titles of registration. "We are going to be rushed at the best," Mr. Blanks said, "and it will be absolutely necessary that persons seeking the new tags have their titles of registration with them. They can show the titles as the blanks are filled out and in this way the work will be greatly facilitated."

It was decided at one time last year to abolish the sub-station here but Mr. Blanks and other officials of the Chamber of Commerce got in behind the matter and the station was opened again. It is a great convenience for auto owners to get their license tags here instead of going through the old custom of sending their application and check to Raleigh. There is no change in the license law this year so the tags will be the same in price as they were last year.

The law requires, however, that before a man can secure a license for a year he must hold a certificate of ownership, and it is for this reason that Mr. Blanks directs all persons to have these certificates when they call at his office to get their new licenses.

"The Wise Virgin" Is Unique Story
"The Wise Virgin," in which Patsy Ruth Miller and Matt Moore are starred and which comes to the Concord Theatre for a two day run today, is a picture built up of unusual situations said to contain a wealth of drama, comedy and romance.

The story centers around a 1924 high speed model of a girl. She fancies herself in love with a titled foreigner. Her grandmother, however, wants her to marry one of her own countrymen and to that end conspires with the foreman of her ranch to court the girl, an idea that he has secretly had in mind for some time.

After much coercion the girl marries the American but her heart remains with the foreigner and she refuses to be anything but a "wife in name only."

To complicate matters there is an attractive young girl chum of the heroine who has made the mistake of marrying for money. The spark of romance being entirely extinguished in her aged but wealthy husband, she casts longing eyes at the husband of her friend and perceives the bright glistening of diamond beneath the rough exterior. Naturally, with so many angles to contend with, the course of true love is made decidedly rough for the man of the big open spaces.

But the grandmother, a resourceful lass, straightens matters out in a most ingenious manner.

In support of Miss Miller and Mr. Moore appear Edith Chapman as the grandmother, Leon Bary as the titled foreigner, Lucy Fox as the girl chum and Charles A. Stevenson as her wealthy but deceitful husband.

Senior Class Play

When "Jane Takes a Hand" on Friday night in the auditorium of the High School, the fun begins. Mammy Josephine, otherwise Nancy Leutz, and Archibald Jackson Montgomery, Robert Hahn, then too, Miriam Coltrane and Penelope Cannon, the aristocratic but poor relations of Jane Dare, give a splendid picture of snobbery and unusual aims. While Franklin C. in Montgomery, gives quite a thrill in his complete subjugation to Dan Cupid when he glimpses the little Southern girl, Jane Dare, portrayed by Dorothy Black.

Mrs. Bates, (the housekeeper), Mildred Propst, also succumbs to the wiles of Dan Cupid when she and Mrs. Poindexter Pendleton, Theo Williams, are married and "denounced" to the gathered family as "the bride and the groom."

Among the aristocrats at the high class boarding house are Mrs. Jenkins, Mary Dayvant, and her daughter, Henrietta, Willie White, and Mr. Smith, James Lineberger.

Mr. Dare, George Howard, and Mr. Mortimer, Billy Caldwell, estranged because of some quarrel years ago, are reunited by the announcement of the engagement of Jane and Jimmy.

Come out and see "Jane Takes a Hand" Friday night, May 28th, at 8:15 o'clock.

Peery, of Lenoir-Rhyne College, approved the graduation of students at several institutions and gave their attention to a number of routine matters presented.

Members of the board expressed regret at the resignation of Dr. Peery, who explained that he resigned so he could resume pastoral work after devoting many years to educational work. The board appointed the following committee to recommend a successor: Dr. P. E. Monroe, Hickory; Rev. J. A. Morte, Hickory; Rev. J. C. Creigler, D. D., Charlotte; Dr. Reitzel, High Point; and W. F. The names of 51 students from Lenoir-Rhyne College and 21 students from Mt. Pleasant Collegiate Institute were presented to the board as graduates and all were approved.

The board spent some time on an inspection tour of the new dormitory being erected at the institute, expressed approval of the plans for the building and delight that the structure is so near completed.

Various routine matters were acted upon when presented at the meeting.

H. B. Winkinson and Rev. L. A. Thomas, both of this city, are members of the board and were present at the meeting.

BUSINESS AND THE OUTLOOK.

Philadelphia Record.

Not only is there better sentiment as to the prospects in business, but some actual gains in trade are noted in last week's reviews. Not everything is of this character as we approach the period of midsummer dullness in many industries, yet there are straws that show how prevailing winds are blowing. In the Northwest, where crop failures brought about bank troubles and general distress to the population not so many months ago, the Great Northern Railroad has just financed among the farmers a 50-mile extension in Montana with subscriptions ranging from $200 to $5000, which is considered a remarkable achievement. In the local field the John B. Stetson Company announced last week that it had received from a single customer an order for nearly 62,000 hats, amounting to $150,000, representing the largest single order ever placed with that company.

Employment conditions continue fairly satisfactory in virtually all sections of Pennsylvania, according to reports made to the United States Department of Labor. A slight recession in iron and steel is noted, but in the majority of plants employment is not much changed except in the bituminous regions of the central and western counties of the State. Employment in the anthracite regions shows only a slight improvement, a large number of miners being without work.

Dun's review of conditions says that despite the existing irregularities and the fact that results in some quarters have been disappointing, business as a whole is in a more favorable position than was the case a year ago, when a retrograde movement was in progress. Although farm work and the development of crops have been impeded by the backward spring, which has also retarded retail distribution, reports from the West and Northwest reveal more clearly the constructive influence of the improved financial conditions in agricultural sections. A sees-sawing in price levels continues in the markets. Last week there were 26 advances and 32 declines. The previous week recorded a majority of advances for the first time since January.

The slowing down of iron and steel production continues after a record output for the three-months' period beginning with January. The feature of the week's development appeared to be an effort at stabilization of prices of steel products at current levels. After the failure of the effort to mark up the prices of these products a diminished demand resulted in a softening of prices, even with unchanged quotations. A cut in prices in order to stimulate business did not result as anticipated.

Activity in the building trades has held structural steel at a high level. The automobile industry is calling for a considerable quantity of material, and improvement is found in the agricultural implement trade. Railroads are in the market for needed supplies, and the oil tank demand is increased.

The cotton market last week showed an upward trend and firmness, in contrast with the movement in recent preceding weeks. Drought complaints from South Texas augmented a feeling that the declines of a week ago had discounted the comparatively high end of May condition figures. Active curtailment, as suggested recently by the National Council of American Cotton Manufacturers, has been begun by New England cotton cloth mills, and still further curtailment will result unless there is a decided improvement. It is said that the chief cause of curtailment lies in the unwillingness of the distributor to take the risk of buying goods ahead, with the possibility of still lower cotton prices.

The wool market is more active and firmer. The wool situation in England is reported to be improved. It had been stated that no private trading would be allowed in Australia, but at Melbourne the market has been open, with only small sales, on account of the firmness in quoted prices.

The Chicago grain markets continue to show wide fluctuations, with alternate advances and declines. The week closed with light operations and firm prices higher and firm, due to weather and crop reports.

The Martinsburg team, a three-time winner of the Blue Ridge League championship, will make the race for its fourth pennant this season with an almost entirely new roster of players.
